HOME.

Home—the poets sing of it, the evangelist preaches about it, the heart of mankind yearns for it. Home is the dearest place on earth if it is really home. But how can a place of residence be called home if it is garlanded with furniture which has been bought from a mail-order catalogue, if its table is supplied with groceries that have been purchased from an eastern bargain house, if it is heated by stoves that have been shipped into town over the heads of local dealers, and if there is nothing of the spirit of home patronage in its entire make-up?

THE SALOON LICENSE.

There is before the city council a proposition to increase the license of retail liquor dealers from $75 to $137.50. This proposition, we take it, is not made so much with a view to increasing the city's revenue as with the idea of regulating the saloon business of the city, which has attained proportions unreasonable when the size of the city is considered.

YOM KIPPUR.

The Jewish population of America, in common with the Jews throughout the whole world, will engage today in the observance of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, most important of all Jewish holidays. The holiday marks the end of the ten penitential days which began with "Rosh Hash-bona," or the Jewish New Year.

strictly. Besides the long twenty-four-hour fast the day is devoted to prayers and other religious observances.

IN NEW YORK.

If you hear a rumble and a screech and a roar from eastward today, do not be alarmed; it will not forebode the end of the world or the downfall of the nation; it will be merely the reverberation of the noise of New York's celebration of the discovery of the Hudson river by the man whose name that historic stream bears.

The prosperity of a city depends wholly upon the prosperity of its business institutions. This may best be insured by persistent and consistent adherence to the home-industry doctrine.

In the boosting campaign, actions speak louder than words. The man who trades at home does better work than the man who merely shouts.

The natural advantages of Missoula are great, but they cannot overcome the ill effect of the policy of the man who sends away for his goods.

John Flanagan, who made a world's record with a hammer Thursday in New York, is away behind the knocker who trades away from home.

The solidity of Missoula's growth is illustrated by the substantial character of building enterprises now under way—public and private.

The police department can win laurels and fame by cleaning out the nest of the secretaries and driving its inmates out of town.

President Taft is surprised by the fertility of the west, but when he reaches the Montana state fair he will see some pumpkins.

If "joy riding" were fatal only to the riders it wouldn't be so bad. But the innocent bystander too often pays the freight.

These are days when the coal bill is light and the ice man is cut off—the halcyon days of the householder.

President Taft started not only a flood of water but a torrent of eloquence at the Gunnison tunnel.

A good way to fight the man who buys his goods away from home is to refrain from patronizing him.

WOULD ABOLISH TUBS IN PUBLIC PLACES

Washington, Sept. 24.—Declaring that bathtubs are unsanitary in public institutions and should be replaced by showers, Dr. R. W. Corwin, superintendent of the Minnequa hospital at Pueblo, Colo., caused a lively tiff last night at the conference of the American Hospital association being held in this city.

Dr. W. K. Ross defended the tub, saying it was the only practical way of bathing children, and, further, that woman would not like to get their hair wet when bathing.

Washington, Sept. 23.—One of the most striking and picturesque figures around the capitol building was recalled by the death today of John Calhoun O'Loughlin, a former confederate soldier, an old-timer and for many years a guide at the capitol.
