FOOTBALL

This afternoon on Montana field the football eleven which carries the colors of the Missoula county high school will meet the gridiron experts of the Anaconda high school in the first high school game of the season.

GOOD WORK.

No more can the city police or the sheriff's office urge as an excuse for failure to suppress the secretary nuisance, the plea that they receive no support from the prosecuting and judicial officers; the cases that have been heard during the past fortnight demonstrate that there is an earnest desire on the part of the county attorney and the trial courts to see that justice is meted out to the debased fellows who live off the earnings of the women of the under world.

A CLOSE VIEW.

From its position as next door neighbor to Oklahoma, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat has a good opportunity to observe the operation of the bank-guaranty law in practical test.

experiment station for Bryan fans, adopted. "As was expected, Governor Haskell pretends that the national banks of Oklahoma are largely responsible for the suspension of the Oklahoma City institution. Most of the national bankers have been opposed to the guaranty proposition from the beginning.

A HERO'S BIRTHDAY.

Today is the natal anniversary of Admiral Schley; with the setting of the sun tonight, the naval hero passes the three-score-and-ten mark in his life's journey; a nation's felicitations are his due.

THE SECRETARY.

The "secretary" is not the only undesirable citizen, but he is a good selection for the walk-out-of-town campaign. After we get rid of him we can take up the case of the blackmailer and the man who trades away from home.

EVERY EFFORT.

Every effort should be made to propagate the weather man; there are many building enterprises whose success depends upon his good will.

ADmiral DEWEY.

Admiral Dewey asserts that our navy is not a bluff. The assertion is unnecessary; the admiral proved it one Sunday morning in Manila bay.

THE MAJORITY.

The majority situation in New York is interesting, but not to the extent that it overshadows questions of local moment in Missoula.

VERSITY AGAINST MINERS.

Versity against miners in Butte and Missoula against Anaconda on Montana field—there's plenty to interest us in football today.

IN MAKING YOUR WINTER SCHEDULE.

Don't overlook the university lecture course. It will be one of the season's best features.

THE COMPETITION OF THE MILWAUKEE.

The competition of the Milwaukee is giving us increased and improved train service, for which many thanks.

THE HOME MERCHANT.

The home merchant can satisfy your winter needs better than the mail-order man in the east.

THE SOCIALISTS.

The socialists are entitled to just as much liberty as anybody else, but they demand more.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

The Northern Pacific is planning more double track, and certainly needs it.

October sunshine means a good bridge this winter. Boost for it.

GIVES HIS OPINION ON MATTER

PROFESSOR TELLS WHAT IS EXPECTED TO BE SECURED BY CENSUS TAKING.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 8.—The general trend of their suggestions concerning the United States census schedule to secure the data relative to manufactures is indicated in an interview obtained with Professor Carroll W. Duten, one of the group of college professors of economics and manufacturing experts who have been advising Director Durand of the bureau of the census concerning the form and scope of the inquiries to be asked by the special agents making the canvass, beginning January 1, next, for the manufactures census period, which is the present calendar year 1909.

"From 1810, when the first attempt was made to secure data concerning industry," said Professor Duten, "one of the most difficult problems involved in census taking has been the census of manufactures. At each recurring decennial period, each in 1820, when no provision was made for securing statistics of industry, more and more elaborate schedules were prepared, as the growing importance and diversity of the industries of the country seemed to require, until 1890, when the system almost broke down of its own weight.

"Since that time a reaction has set in and there has been a movement in the direction of greater simplicity. This has taken two forms, exemplified in the censuses of 1900 and 1905. In 1900 the schedule was simplified materially by the elimination of certain inquiries and the consolidation of others, notably the inquiries in regard to capital and employees. In 1905 few changes were made in the schedule, but the scope of the census was limited to those establishments conducted under what is known as the factory system, exclusive of the so-called neighborhood and mechanical industries.

"Both of these methods of simplification have been necessary by the changing character and by the growing size and complexity of our manufacturing industries. The tardiness with which the fact that the factory system long ago supplanted the household or neighborhood industries of an earlier stage of our national development has been taken note of in census work was, in part, the result of a desire to make each census comparable so far as possible, with preceding censuses. There was also the desire that the census of manufactures should account for all production not included in the extractive industries or in trade and transportation.

"The attempt to enumerate the hand trades, however, was never successful, and as they became of less relative importance the reasons for abandoning the attempt made a stronger appeal to congress and the census officials.

"The act providing for the taking of the 13th decennial census limits its scope practically to the same field as that covered by the quinquennial census of 1905. The inquiries within this field include the name, location and ownership of each establishment; the character of the industry; the number of officers and employees, with the total amount of their salaries and wages; quantity and cost of materials; miscellaneous expenses; quantity and value of products; time in operation during census year, and character and amount of power used. The only thing required now is to perfect the method of securing the data within these narrower limits.

"It is to this task that the committee of experts on manufactures, called together at the census bureau by Director Durand, have devoted their particular attention. Recognizing the desirability of preserving comparability, they have been loath to suggest radical changes in either the form or contents of the inquiries included in the general schedule of manufactures. They have, moreover, been influenced by the obvious necessity of limiting the expense and effort required to obtain the data in the field. As users of the census figures in research and classroom work, they have also realized the importance of the early publication of the results of the census, and they have been especially anxious to facilitate in every way possible, without sacrificing thoroughness or accuracy, the speedy completion of the field work and the compilation of the information collected.

"It is, perhaps, too early to announce specific changes, as the tentative schedule will probably be tested in the field before its final adoption, but it may be safe to speak of the general trend of the committee's suggestions. They call for definite figures from the books and payrolls of manufacturers, where this does not involve too much trouble, and when the inquiry cannot be regarded as unduly inquisitorial. In order that this should not involve added labor in the filling out of schedules, it has been found necessary to reduce the number of inquiries or sub-inquiries. The theory upon which this has been done is that three or four accurately determined figures are better as a basis of deduction than a dozen estimates which, in many cases, must necessarily be merely guesses.

be regarded as a model the world over and other countries are falling in line with its methods. Its reports are more and more being used as a storehouse of material by economists and social investigators, not only in this country but abroad. In view of these things, the committee has felt that no backward step should be taken at the present time, and that every legitimate effort should be put forth to secure accurate and complete data in regard to wages, hours of labor, and regularity of employment, as evidences of well-being of industrial laborers.

SEEKING TO AVOID ACCIDENTS IN AIR

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 8.—Recent trials of a machine embodying the requirements of a new principle in navigation of the air by means of the aeroplane, have resulted in a partial success. A Huff, Jr., of this city, the designer of the new machine, thinks a little more experimenting will finally lead to complete demonstration of the value of his theory. He is quite content with the results as it is but wants to make accidents less frequent as they now are. Instead of gliding rapidly to the earth in case the motor stopped for any reason, his machine will settle down slowly, the plans being as a parachute. The machine tried out a few days ago at Borneo near here was not provided with a motor but rose easily and to considerable height in tow of an automobile. When the rope holding the aeroplane to the machine was cut the new flyer swooped towards the ground in a graceful curve and then soared upwards for quite a distance. After coming to a momentary standstill it slowly settled to the ground. In its general appearance the machine resembles the more common type of monoplane. The rudder governing horizontal direction is in the rear, while ascent and descent are controlled by means of a pair in front of the machine.

HEALTH AND VIGOR

Miss Edna Buckler, a prominent young lady of Hume, Ill., praises Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for restoring her to health and vigor after being very weak and "run down".
