THE WEATHER

Yesterday was noticeable chiefly for the low temperature. It was a day for overcoats for the men and furs for the women. In order to be comfortable from all signs, and who does not believe in signs, Jack Frost will soon be on the job in all his glory, and it behooves the careful housekeeper to lay in a plentiful supply of coal. The observations:

LIVINGSTON TO PLAY IN MISSOULA AT ONCE

The Missoula high school football team returned yesterday from Livingston, where it played last Friday. The players were rather discouraged by their defeat but said that the high altitude made it impossible for them to do their best and that when the return game was played they would turn the tables. The return game which was agreed upon when the series was first planned, will be played, as agreed, either next Saturday or the following week.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by all dealers.

HIGH HONOR IS PAID FOOTBALL TEAM

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE EIGHTH-GRADE ELEVEN AT BANQUET.

Never did a football team receive higher honor than was paid the eleven of the eighth grade of the Roosevelt school at a banquet tendered on Thursday evening. The event followed the day's work and the menu was arranged by the pupils under the direction of Misses Simpson and Pritchard. Guests of honor were the members of the team, Miss Irene M. Cox, supervisor of music and drawing, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cromwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Williams and Mrs. L. E. Sargent. Principal Sargent was toastmaster. He explained the significance of the occasion and told of the school's pride in the record of its team.

"Our Guests" was the toast of Estella Bryan. She said: "As a member of the Eighth grade class, I feel that no greater honor could be conferred upon me, and that no pleasanter duty could be allotted to me, than that of welcoming you and your friends, to join with us in our festivities this evening. I can find no words to the point in welcoming you, than those of the sailor's toast 'Glad to see you all aboard.'"

"It is good for us to be here together, for a little nonsense now and then, is refreshing to the best men. And even the nonsense is sweeter when shared by friends."

"This is an especial occasion of merriment, for we are celebrating the triumphs of our football team. Each man has proved himself a hero to the cause; and we are more than glad of this opportunity to express our appreciation and admiration of the noble efforts put forth."

"And so, in behalf of the students of the Eighth grade, I extend to you all a hearty welcome; and say with Tiny Tim, Here's to us all; God bless everyone."

"The Team." "The Football Team" was the subject assigned to Bruce Pritchard. His toast was read by Howard Wookley, in the absence of the captain: "I am sure that I voice the sentiments of the entire football team when I say that it is a pleasure for us to be with you this evening, and to accept the kind hospitality offered us."

"We are honestly proud of the games we have won, for we met with success both from the Eighth grade and the Central school, and the freshman class of the high school. They both gave up splendid games. So I propose:

"A toast to the team that loses, since its loss is our gain. Defeat often sharpens ambition. And success, often striving, heals pain."

"So we do not intend to let our success lessen our efforts. We shall strive harder than ever to prove ourselves worthy of the laurels we have won, and to keep them."

"It is our aim to play so well that the 'end' shall always justify the means; to play such a clean game on the gridiron in this world, that we shall not go where there are gridirons in the next."

"Then here's to the football team—the only men on earth who are not intolerant of interference."

"Our School." "Our School" was the topic of the toast by Stillman Ross: "Outside of our own homes, perhaps there is nothing in which we are so closely interested as our school."

"We may toast our faculty and our students, but they make up our school. We may toast our football team, but that is an institution of our school. While each little section has its own part, we are proud of our school as a whole."

"We are particularly proud of our Eighth grade. It means something to a pupil to know that his grade ranks second to none in the state, and to know that every effort on his part contributes something to the reputation of his school."

"We cannot help taking this occasion to express our appreciation of our superintendent, who regulates everything for our best interests and the best interests of the school."

"We cannot help feeling the sincere interest of our teachers, when their support backs us up even in a football game. Other schools may have fine principals, too; but not every fine principal is a good umpire. So let's say as the baseball captain did, 'Here's to our umpire!' He has done what he could; let us forgive what is left of him."

"We may not always do everything that is asked of us as cheerfully as we might; but in the end we know that it is all for our good. When thinking of our school, let's give our toast both to the things we are good for, and the things that are good for us."

"Here's to the Eighth grade of Missoula—second to none in Montana." Marguerite Rafferty spoke in verse on "The Faculty."

"When counting o'er our blessings, And naming them one by one, We feel that the fates have favored us. With the best teachers under the sun."

"Of course, they make us study. And preserve till our lessons are done; But when the tasks are ended, They are always ready for fun."

"When others talk of helpful teachers And those that are fond and true, There's one we put first and foremost: Miss Simpson—here's to you."

"But when it comes to conjugations, Declensions, and the like, Well, the teacher didn't invent them. So we think Miss Pritchard's all right."

"And as for Mr. Sargent, He is far beyond compare; Rain or sunshine, work or pleasure, He is sure to be there."

"When we go to our manual training,

"The Boys." "The Boys" was the toast of Florence Elliott. She said: "After much careful deliberation on the subject, and many interesting discussions of the same, the girls of the Eighth grade have concluded with the jolly old German, that:

"Dere ies no boys, Mid out der boys."

"Tonight, we are expressing our pride particularly in the efforts of our football team. But it is not only of the work of our boys on the football field that we are proud. We rejoice in every good thing that they do. We are proud of every bit of good work in the classroom. We are proud of the good spirit shown in their football games when it is manifested in other ways; for instance, when their lusty voices swell our chorus singing. In short, we are glad and proud of every effort on the part of our boys that raises the standard of our school."

"Then here's to our boys: May success show them all of her joys. And when they have made the final touchdown in the strife, May they kick their balls far past the goal posts. Set by their ambitions in life."

"The Girls." Thomas R. Denny spoke on "The Girls." He said: "We have heard toasts to our friends, our school, our teachers, our football team, and our boys. But our list is far from complete until we have toasted the fairer sex in our school—the girls. Now would our school be complete without them?"

"Even on the gridiron the encouraging soprano notes from the grandstand spur us on to victory. The sadness of the 'Oh's' when we just nearly make a touchdown, make us feel we have to do it next time. The gladness in their faces after a hard victory, makes it seem worth while."

"Yes, and there are times when the word that rhymes with gladness makes us know that we have lost favor. For instance, when we see more beauty in the combination of red and white, than in that of garnet and silver. Oh, we surely can toast 'The gladness of her gladness, when she's glad, And the sadness of her sadness, when she's sad. And the gladness of her gladness, And the sadness of her sadness, Are not in it with the madness of her madness. When she's mad.'"

To do justice to my subject, I should have to toast each one in turn. So,

"Here's to the prettiest, Here's to the wittiest, Here's to the truest of all who are true; Here's to the neatest one, Here's to the sweetest one, Here's to them all!

Girls, here's to you!"

"AT THE FAMILY." Tonight will be the first performance of "The Golden Giant Mine," at the Family theater, by Miss Winston and her company. The play is in five acts, a western drama. Many strong scenes give ample opportunity for the various members to show to advantage.

The manager has secured a moving picture of excellence to amuse the patrons during the waits between acts necessitated by a change in scenery. Baby Ralph, a clever little tad, will make his first appearance on any stage this evening. The curtain rises at 8:30 promptly.

"NO REFLECTION INVOLVED." Washington, Nov. 7.—No reflection was involved in the order detaching Lieut. Frank P. Lahm from the aeronautical service to the signal corps, and directing him to join the Sixth cavalry. This was made plain today by officials of the war department. Both Gen. Franklin Bell, chief of staff, and General Allen, chief of the signal corps, denied the report that Lieutenant Lahm's detachment had anything to do with the taking up of Mrs. Van Deman, an army officer's wife, by Wilbur Wright in the government's aeroplane. Lahm was in charge of the aviation field at the time.

A proposition has recently been made to the members of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union to contribute annually one day's pay toward the establishment and future maintenance of a tuberculosis hospital for its members.
