MISSOULA CITIZEN BOOSTS

ARTHUR HIGGINS TALKS IN BUTTE ON IMPROVEMENTS IN THE GARDEN CITY.

The Anaconda Standard contains the following interview obtained in Butte from a Missoula man:

Arthur E. Higgins is in Butte from Missoula and is enthusiastic regarding his section of the state and its possibilities.

"We are going right ahead in the development of the resources we have in our section, and if we overlook any bet it is a sure thing that we cannot see it on the layout. The street car company is laying its rails through town, the big steel bridge across the Missoula river is completed and they are going to have a big celebration tonight. The Milwaukee & St. Paul has announced the building of one of the largest depots on the entire system and altogether there will be something doing in the industrial world for some time to come. The situation in the railroad yards seems to be improving, and if I am not mistaken there will be an increased movement in freight trains in the near future.

"The depot of the Milwaukee road is located almost directly under the bridge, across the river. The premises formerly occupied by a grocery store on the south side are occupied at the present time as a depot, but this will be changed in a little while and a depot building, 200 feet long, 77 feet wide and nearly 100 feet high, will occupy the present site. In all probability a broad flight of steps will lead from the landing platform on the river bottom below to the splendid edifice, which the company is contemplating. The tracks run along the river bottom and the depot proper will be on the bench above.

"It may seem a little strange to say that the depot will be a skyscraper, but that is what the people who are in a position to know what they are talking about say. The structure proper will be two stories in height and on top of these will be a tower 80 feet high. On the topmost floor will be a clock which will tell the people for miles around the time of day and allow them proper time to make the Milwaukee trains. Just to what use the other parts of the tower will be devoted is undetermined, but one thing is certain, the space will not be wasted, and undoubtedly the high tower will be used for signal purposes."

"Bleriot is too reckless," chirped another little sparrow, "only a few days ago I saw him flying clear up on top of the Savoy hotel and he was up on top of the new Dixon and Cowell building and the wind nearly blew him off. In the past week he has been run over by three automobiles acrobatically escaped with unruffled feathers. Some day—"

The bird stopped short for Bleriot had been sighted coming down Main and two express wagons and has disappeared from the east.

"Where have you been?" asked one of the head chirps.

"Wait a minute until I get my breath and I will tell you all." Bleriot rested a minute then threw out his chest like a pouter pigeon and started in on his narrative.

"I went down to the depot and lit on a freight car and went to sleep, I guess. When I awoke I was out by a little station a long ways from her. The brakeman made me get off. I flew up to the station and read the sign on the door and it said 'Bonner.' I started back all alone and I was awful hungry. I stopped down where they are building the new electric railroad and there was a lot of men working there. I saw where they had eaten their lunch and found a lot of crumbs and got all filled up. There's lots of men out there and I'm going out tomorrow again. They got the track clear down to the post where it says Missoula one mile and it won't be long before they will have that electric line clear into town." Bleriot was tired out from his trip and tucked his head under his wing.

"I do wish they wouldn't have a street car line here," said one sparrow. "I had an uncle who got his feet wet and lit on a trolley wire and he was killed instantly."

"I didn't think you could get killed by getting on a wire," said Willie Sparrow, who had been listening attentively. "I knew that if you put one foot on one wire and one foot on another wire you would get a shock. I think you are mistaken about getting a shock from one wire—I know if you put one foot on the rail and one on the trolley wire you will get a terrible shock."

Feeling much relieved over the safe arrival of Bleriot the sparrows tucked their heads under their wings and fell asleep. NICK.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Eugene Gay, who died Sunday night, were held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mossman, at 835 DeFoe street. Many friends were present and floral offerings completely covered the bier. Rev. J. N. Mackean, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivered a sermon on the life and deeds of the young woman, who grew to maturity in Missoula. Interment was in the Missoula cemetery.

This is Worth Remembering.

Yes, Buy Groceries Early, Too

The early shopping spirit is one of the best moves of late years. Every grocer appreciates it for on the last day or two before Christmas there is a rush and crush in every grocery store that makes good service almost impossible. Everything but fruits and fresh vegetables could very easily be bought a week in advance and this way ease on the final rush. Won't you help make Christmas grocery buying easier for yourself and us by planning purchases ahead as far as possible? Thank you.
