

COMING TO VALLEY CLEMENT ANSWERS PRESENTS A PLAN CRIMINAL ACTION TO SETTLE LAST CALL OF ACTION

WISCONSIN MAN WILL BUILD A HOME ON LAND PURCHASED NEAR HAMILTON.

Hamilton, Feb. 21.—(Special)—The following was clipped from "The Whitewater Register" of Whitewater, Wis., and should be of interest to residents of Hamilton. Mr. Salisbury has been the state agent for Ginn & company, publishers of school text books. Last fall he visited the valley and bought a tract of land from the O. W. Kerr Land company. After his return, his father, President Albert Salisbury of the state normal at Whitewater, purchased the adjoining tract. The clipping follows:

"Mr. Salisbury came down from Madison on Tuesday for a brief home visit. He leaves next month for the Bitter Root valley, Montana, where he has purchased 10 acres of land near Hamilton. He reports that so many people from this state have purchased tracts at the end of the valley the district has become known as 'Wisconsin Heights.' Alfred Williams, son of Mrs. B. J. Williams, has 20 acres near Mr. Salisbury's land and the two expect to bank together, pending the time when the new homes are built."

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21.—Clay Clement, actor, dramatist and writer of short stories, died at the University hospital here at 10:50 this morning of uraemic poisoning.

Mr. Clement finished a week's engagement at a local theater Saturday night. He had not been feeling well and decided to remain here over Sunday.

During the night it was found necessary to call a physician to the actor's apartments at the hotel. He grew worse rapidly and early today was seized with convulsions. He was then hurried to the hospital, where the convulsions continued. Soon he became unconscious, and died 20 minutes later. Before he became unconscious Mr. Clement told Dr. Gordon A. Beeslie that he had been doing much extra work during the last year, and Dr. Beeslie said this had added greatly to the ravages of an aggravated form of kidney trouble.

The actor last Thursday called in the physician to treat a chronic throat disease, and seemed in ignorance of the fact that he had another more serious ailment. The throat trouble was relieved and the patient expressed his joy at feeling so well only a few hours before he was stricken with uraemic poisoning. His physician said the convulsions were the most acute uraemic convulsions he had ever treated. The actor's wife was asleep in the LONDON, Feb. 21.—Parliament was opened formally this afternoon by King Edward, who was accompanied by Queen Alexandra, and is now fully organized and ready for the work of the session.

The state opening was marked by all the pomp and pageantry associated with these ceremonies. Troops lined the streets from Buckingham palace to the gate at Westminster and drew the usual crowds.

Uppermost in the minds of thousands who witnessed the spectacle in the streets and among the occupants of the red clothed benches in the gilded chamber was the thought of the forthcoming fight which threatens the very existence of the hereditary house of peers and the conjecture that they were spectators of acts precluding historic changes in centuries-old institutions of Great Britain.

The ceremony did not differ outwardly from scores of previous state openings except in the presence close to the throne of the Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia. The former wore the uniform of an officer of the British navy, of which he was recently appointed admiral of the fleet.

Every corner of the chamber was filled, and the varied colorings of the peers, bishops and judges' robes, the court diplomatic, naval and military uniforms with the beautiful gowns of richly dressed women, made a scene of brilliancy.

King Edward, in a momentous speech from the throne, said:

"Recent experience has disclosed serious difficulties due to recurring differences of strong opinion between the two branches of the legislature. Proposals will be laid before you with all convenient speed, to define the relations between the houses of parliament, so as to secure the undivided authority of the house of commons over finance and its pre-eminence in legislation."

"These measures, in the opinion of my advisers, should provide that this house should be so constituted and empowered as to exercise impartially in regard to proposed legislation, the functions of initiation, revision and subject to proper safeguards of delay."

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which in many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

At a few minutes' delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all dealers.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 21.—The wrangle over the $75,000 estate of the late Daniel Russell of Melrose has developed sufficient testimony for a criminal action, no matter which way the scales of justice fall.

The state opening was marked by all the pomp and pageantry associated with these ceremonies. Troops lined the streets from Buckingham palace to the gate at Westminster and drew the usual crowds. COURT IS ADJOURNED DURING THE TROUBLE

Cairo, Ill., Feb. 21.—Because of the great excitement prevailing here and to lessen the danger of further mob violence, Circuit Court Judge Butler today adjourned court for two weeks.

Before ordering adjournment he called for a vote of the eight lawyers in the court room, and they stood five to three for adjournment.

The grand jury probably will be dissolved today. J. W. Wenger, the foreman will ask to be discharged because his wife is a cousin of Alexander Haliday, killed in the attack on the jail. Sheriff Nellis also asks that the jury be discharged, on the allegation that at least one member was present in the crowd during the attack.

GREAT GAINS

The showing of business in Missoula last year was wonderfully good. Have you noticed the figures? They are worth pasting in your hat for reference. In the entire northwest there was no postoffice that showed so great a percentage of gain as that which was recorded by Missoula. The increase over the year before was almost 30 per cent. Each of the telegraph companies showed an increase of from 15 per cent to 68 per cent. That is a good indication of the growth of the city's business. The railway business, both in the freight and passenger departments made an increase which was phenomenal. Two railways are now serving Missoula, where one was sufficient two years ago, and it is noticeable that the two roads are now busier than the single line used to be. The business on the branch lines that radiate from Missoula has increased about 100 per cent in a year. That is the record of 1909. The showing of 1910 will be bigger and better. Why not take advantage of this certainty and place your money where it is certain to double? There is not a chance to lose.

PRESENT PROSPECTS

There are railway construction operations that are certain to be started this spring, each of which concerns Missoula directly and emphatically. The work on these lines will be an important contribution to the volume of local business for the year, but the great significance which attaches to the work is found in the fact that it opens up as tributary to Missoula some districts of great wealth which have, heretofore, been shut out from direct connection with this city. There is scheduled for the year a greater amount of building than the city has ever seen in a single year before. Much of this is residence construction. Take the map of Missoula and see for yourself where this building will be done. You will see at a glance that the growth of the city is into and through Daly's addition. There will be an amazing lot of construction in this addition this year. It is the closest in of any of the city additions. The electric cars place Daly's addition closer to the business center than Knowles addition was two years ago. There is water at every lot in Daly's addition and other conveniences are at hand.
