

THE CARNEGIE HERO AWARDS

A NUMBER OF BRAVE, DARING PERSONS GET MEDALS AND MONEY FOR THEIR ACTS.

The Carnegie Hero Fund commission has made a report. To heroes and their dependents (including amounts paid on pension allowances) $248,496.54 has been paid out, and for the relief of the sufferers from disasters, $134,462.06, making a total of $382,958.60. Medals were awarded as follows: Gold, 12; silver, 148, and bronze, 175. The number of cases considered amounted to 3,494; the requests granted, 336, and those pending, 791. Charles L. Taylor, of Pittsburg, Pa., is president.

Purpose.

In making the deed of trust to the commission Mr. Carnegie said: "We live in an heroic age. Not seldom are we thrilled by deeds of heroism where men or women are injured or lose their lives in attempting to preserve or rescue their fellows, such the heroes of civilization. The heroes of barbarism maimed or killed theirs.

"I have long felt that the heroes and those dependent upon them should be freed from pecuniary cares resulting from their heroism, and, as a fund for this purpose, I have transferred to the commission $5,000,000 dollars of first collateral five per cent bonds of the United States Steel corporation."

In making their announcement the commissioners declared that the scope of the fund should be confined:

"To acts in which conclusive evidence may be obtained showing that the person performing the act, voluntarily risked his own life in saving, or attempting to save, the life of a fellow being, or who voluntarily has sacrificed himself in an heroic manner for the benefit of others.

"Such acts must have been performed by persons the nature of whose duties in following their regular vocations does not necessarily require them to perform such acts.

"Such acts must have been performed in the United States of America, the Dominion of Canada, the Colony of Newfoundland, or the waters thereof.

Limitations.

"Mr. Carnegie having directed that, in case of death, widows and children, or other dependents, are to be provided for until the widow remarries and the children reach a self-supporting age, and, in the event of disability, the disabled to be provided for until again able to work, the maximum death or disablement benefit to be paid in any one year to any one family or dependent shall not exceed $1,000.00, the amount and manner of payment in each case to be fixed by the commission upon the recommendation of the executive committee, provided, in no case, however, shall death or disablement benefits be paid unless it shall be clearly shown that the dependents or disabled need such assistance."

The following acts of heroism and the award made in each case are among the cases settled:

Thomas H. McCann, aged 22, draw tender, died saving Alfonso Sekosky, aged eight, from drowning, Portland, Me., June 29, 1904. McCann jumped from a bridge, 25 feet high, into Portland harbor, swam with the boy to a boat, but was too fatigued to get into it himself, and was drowned.

Daniel Davis, aged 23, coal miner, died attempting to save William Monroe, aged 38, coal miner, from suffocation, Sherodsville, Ohio, July 11, 1904. Davis was overcome by black damp while walking into a mine to rescue Monroe, who was helpless from the gas but was later rescued. Silver Medal and $1,000 toward support of widow and two children.

Boy Hero.

Wade H. Plummer, aged 15, school-boy, saved John M. Gibson, aged 19, laborer, from drowning, Lamar, S. C., May 7, 1904. Plummer, having just reached goal in a swimming race, swam to his competitor, who had been taken with a cramp, in the middle of Lynch river, and, after two attempts, rescued him, despite the commands of his father to desist. Silver Medal and $500 for educational purposes, as needed.

Maude A. Titus, aged 16, student, saved Laura V. Reifensnyder, aged 27, from drowning, Yarmouth, Me., July 30, 1904. Miss Titus, when thrown into Casco bay, with three other occupants of a boat, instead of swimming to the overturned boat, as two did, supported Miss Reifensnyder, who could not swim, in a choppy sea until both were rescued. Silver Medal and $2,500 for educational purposes, as needed.

Act of Woman.

Sadie L. Crabbe, aged 33, housewife, died attempting to save Ralph Young (colored), aged nineteen, laborer, from drowning, Avalon, Va., February 11, 1905. Mrs. Crabbe broke through treacherous ice on Great Wicomico river while making an effort to get Young out of a hole. Both were carried off by the current and drowned. Bronze Medal and $2,000 in trust for four children.

Young Cad Is Threatening

MRS. HELEN WOODRUFF SMITH OF STAMFORD, CONN.

New York, July 30.—Young Russell Griswold, prominent socially in New York and Stamford, Conn., seeks through his lawyer, Jacob Gordon, heart balm to the amount of $50,000 from the elderly and rich Helen Woodruff Smith.

The romance involved in this breach of promise suit has interested the east as have few similar cases. According to his statement, Griswold alleges that their romance began nine years ago, when he was president of the senior class of the Stamford high school in his golden-haired, blue-eyed, rosy, unsophisticated boyhood.

The day was fatal to his young heart, Griswold says, when his mother took him to call on the socially famous Mrs. Cummings. He was 18 years old. He says her charm, her grace of manner, her wit, her beauty—just everything about her—set his boyish heart on fire, and from that time on his thoughts through nine long years have been all and only for her.

She treated him kindly from the first, he will aver, and then tenderly, and after her divorce from ex-Mayor Cummings in October, 1907, he was emboldened to ask her hand in marriage. To this, he alleges, she made answer that thrilled him with delight. It was "Yes." But there was a condition to the consent. She said she would not leave her father and would not marry while he lived. When Commodore Smith, then an aged man, should die, she would marry him. But after her father's death in the spring of last year, when Griswold asked her to make good the promise he says she gave him, she refused.

Mrs. Smith in her answer denies all the allegations that he makes, but Griswold says that he has in his possession fully 200 letters to help convince a jury that the wealthy society woman exercised with undeniable grace an fascination her lure over him in boyhood, youth and young manhood.

Yes, indeed, that she called him in these letters her "Siegfried" and herself his "Brunnhilde"; that she promised to love him "always and unto ashes"; that she addressed him as "Dear little Ruzzie" and "sweet boy and honey lamb," and when she didn't sign "Brunnhilde" subscribed herself "Helle" or "Ellie," but that most often, romantically and poetically, and with a certain appropriateness of parallel in the matter of the difference of their ages, she addressed him as "Mein lieber Siegfried" and called herself his "Brunnhilde" after the characters in the Wagner opera.

miner, with two others, rescued Charles A. McCoy, aged 28, ore miner, from a blast in a mine, Ketchum, Idaho, June 13, 1905. McPheters, who had been a place of safety, after having been knocked down by flying rock from a premature explosion, returned to the assistance of McCoy, who had been rendered helpless and was lying near other blasts which were momentarily expected to go off, and helped carry him to safety. Bronze medal.

Rufus K. Combs, aged 48, blacksmith, saved Richard Godson, aged 42, lawyer, from suffocation, Midway, Ky., April 2, 1906. Combs went into a vault containing a gas-making apparatus, and rescued his political and personal enemy, who was overcome by gas, while friends stood by fearing to enter the vault. Silver medal and $1,500, as needed.

James V. Godman, aged 26, civil engineer, died attempting to save William H. Funk, aged 36, city marshal, from suffocation, Warsaw, Ind., July 25, 1904. Godman entered a "lift-well" of the city sewer system, and was overcome by gas while endeavoring to remove Funk, who was already unconscious. Silver medal and $1,811.54 in trust for three children.

Thomas A. Harris, aged 17, porter, saved Ivy G. Blair, aged 15, from drowning, Ogden, Utah, March 25, 1906. Harris, after swimming two hundred feet, rescued the girl in Weber river, which was at flood stage, the current being five miles per hour. Bronze medal and $2,000 for educational purposes, as needed.

James A. Harris, aged 27, farmer, died saving Irvin Choate, aged 17, farmer, from drowning, Brazil, Tenn., June 9, 1906. Harris swam over a hole in Forked Deer river, assisted Choate to within reach of an extended pole, but was too exhausted to reach safely himself. Silver medal and $1,500 toward support of widow and two children.

Florence A. Whaley, aged 19, school-girl, saved Bruce W. McKenzie, aged 7, from drowning, San Diego, Cal., August 25, 1908. In the Pacific ocean, about 49 feet from shore, Miss Whaley swam 10 feet with the boy on her back, holding to her shoulders. Bronze medal and $2,000 for educational purposes, as needed.

Minnie L. Myers, aged 44, matron, saved Annie Glover, Charles Church and Frank Martin, aged six, three and two respectively, from burning, Riverton, Wash., December 28, 1907. Being awakened at 2 a. m., by an alarm of fire, Mrs. Myers aroused the children in the girls' and boys' dormitories on the second floor of a children's home, and led them out to safety. To get Annie, Charles and Frank, she re-entered the building twice. The last time, her own escape was cut off by the fire, and she was compelled to go close to the flames and let herself drop through the stair opening to the first floor. She sustained deep burns of neck, back and hands. Silver medal and $1,000 to reimburse her for pecuniary loss sustained account of fire.

COURT TO HEAR SUIT.

Chicago, July 30.—Judge Dupuy, of the superior court, today agreed to hear a mandamus suit seeking to compel the city to permit the exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures.

OVERLOOK WEALTH ON THE BEACH

RICH QUARTZ AT VALDEZ, LONG TROD UPON, NOW PRODUCING THOUSANDS.

Valdez, Alaska, July 30.—An odd illustration of the truism that wealth often knocks unheeded at our very door is afforded by a remarkable little gold mine near here, which has fairly set the town by the ears with its phenomenal production.

Right on the beach of Valdez bay was the quartz outcrop of the Cliff mine, a spot walked over for years by prospectors and townspeople. And since May 1 of this year, it has been yielding a thousand dollars a day with a three-stamp mill, and in June a pocket was reached that yielded $12,000 in a 16-hour mill run.

The Cliff mine was found by an eccentric Valdezian called "Red" Ellis and was financed locally. The equipment cost but $25,000 and it was all paid for the first month.

The vein is not wide but is said to be extensive as several hundred feet of development workings have failed to reach its limit. The average value of the ore is about $60 a ton and this is reported to be maintained so far as the vein has been followed.

Reports from the Cliff have naturally sent scores out into the neighboring hills prospecting and several locations in the same slate formation and with similar surface characteristics have been made. The excitement has revived recollections of small placer finds in the same section as far back as 1890. Some stinging was even done but with only fair results. "Red" Ellis' discovery in 1906 was the first quartz find. There seems a reasonable likelihood that the extraordinary success of the Cliff will be followed by several others.

CASE IS CONTINUED.

Springfield, Ill., July 30.—A motion to quash the indictment was made in behalf of Archibald B. Johnson, indicted on the charge of bribery and perjury in the legislative investigation. Owing to the illness of the principal counsel for Mrs. Johnston the case was continued until September 26.

AMERICAN ASSASSINATED.

Nogales, Ariz., July 30.—News was received here today of the assassination on July 22, in the Yaqui valley, near Cocorit, of Mrs. Jennie Soudillier, an American woman, and her two sons. The bodies were mutilated in a horrible manner with an ax. The husband of the woman is missing. An official investigation is now in progress.

MARKET MOVEMENT OF THE DAY

New York, July 30.—The reactionary tendency from the rebound which developed yesterday's stock market became more pronounced today under the play of the playmate forces of profit taking on the rise and demand of the reduced short interest. The Pearson settlement also lost some of its influence of speculative sentiment.

A fresh break in Schloss Sheffield to a lower price than yesterday renewed the feeling of apprehension over the integrity of its dividend. The violent fluctuations in the July wheat market were supposed to involve some protective liquidation in stocks.

Large shipments of securities bought for London account during the week are going forward by steamers sailing today. The effect is shown in the downward course of the foreign exchange rate, which points to a continuation of the import movement of gold.

The bank statement showed that relief from the week's liquidation has come to the trust companies and banks outside the clearing house, whose average loans contracted $21,041,100 while the actual loan item of the clearing house banks expanded $20,358,900.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $694,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Grain and Provisions.

Chicago, July 30.—Crowded galleries of the board of trade were puzzled and disappointed today. The speculators had gathered in the hope of seeing a wildly-excited market, the finish of a supposed corner in the July wheat option.

Today was the last day when delivery of the grain could be made and there had been much gossip that the exchange of this might take sensational action to foil audacious speculators. Instead of a whirl of business, and in place of rapidly-mounting quotations, onlookers witnessed a humdrum Saturday session and actually a net decline of 3/8c to 1/4c in wheat for July. Other options were unchanged to 1/2c up. Corn, except for July finished 1/8c to 1/4c higher and oats 3/8c to 1/2c higher. The windup in provisions was a shade higher in most cases than yesterday's figures.

Total transactions in July wheat today aggregated not more than 500,000 bushels, most of it in small lots, none higher than 25,000 bushels. If any extraordinary short contracts had to be settled, they were settled outside of the pit and did not make itself felt in the market. On the whole, the course of the market was downward, particularly in the first half-hour and the final 15 minutes.

At the lowest point of the day the price was 5/8c cents below last night's level. The range was from $1.03 1/2 to $1.09 1/2, with the close at $1.03 1/2. September fluctuated between $1.02 1/2 and $1.03 1/2, closing 3/8c to 1/2c up, at $1.03 1/2 to $1.03 1/2.

Offerings of oats were light. September high and low for the session was 37 1/2c and 36 1/2c, with the last sales at 37 1/2c, a rise of 1/2c compared with last night. The close left
