A STATE MOURNS.

Charles M. Crutchfield honored the name of gentleman. His life, which ended with the visit of the dark angel yesterday, was singularly sweet.

BE CAREFUL.

The experience of the town of Deer Lodge Wednesday emphasizes the wisdom of the course which has been pursued by the Missoula city authorities.

KILLING CHICKENS.

runs along the middle line of the roof of the mouth until it touches the skull midway between the eyes. "Use a knife which is not more than two inches long, one-fourth inch wide, with a thin, flat handle, a sharp point and a straight cutting edge."

TWO GEORGIANS.

In the defeat of Leonidas Felix Livingston for renomination the democrats of the Fifth Georgia district will deprive congress of one of its most interesting characters.

WHISKEY APPLIED EXTERNALLY.

"Whiskey applied externally has a limbering-up effect," says Marce Henry Watterson in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Also, the towns of Hamilton, Plains, Thompson and Stevensville desire to call attention to the fact that the correspondents will have to guess again, who sought to dispatch them by the Boston and Gomorrah route.

The weather man is complimented upon the effectiveness of his work, but he might have got busy a little earlier in the game.

The Butte correspondent who reported Deer Lodge entirely surrounded by flames should go there and study the country.

The chamber of commerce has this week given ample proof of the practicability and effectiveness of its organization.

Deer Lodge has the sympathy of the state, even if her damage resulted from an oil-stove explosion instead of a forest fire.

That man who can discover a successful raftering process will be the only absolutely effective foe of the forest fire.

The effectiveness of organization is demonstrated by the manner in which the railways are coming out of their trouble.

New York is hot enough without any forest fires; a forest fire, in fact, would be a cooling proposition there.

While there will be no fires along the trail, the westward route of Colonel Roosevelt will be well illuminated.

As with the loss of life, so with the damage to property. In the forests it has been greatly overestimated.

Yesterday added to the list of those who were dead in the bulletins and alive in the fields.

Even the most pessimistic is compelled to admit that the local situation is better.

The sunshine will now resume its occupation of coloring the red apple.

And the farther west he comes, the gladder will the Roosevelt welcome be.

The delights of the week shine upon many acts of splendid heroism.

The courthouse clock is another innovation that is satisfactory.

Could it not be daunted by forest fires, he keeps busy all the time.

The German Advance XXII.—The Educational System.

(By Frederic J. Haskin.)

When King Frederick William undertook the gigantic task of reestablishing his kingdom of Prussia after it had been devastated by Napoleon, he said: "The future will belong to the best educated nation."

Believing that the future belongs to the best educated nation, the Germans believe also that the future belongs to the best educated man. Therefore the German soldier is educated in the theory and practice of war—he is not expected to pick it up under fire or to inherit it from his soldierly ancestors.

Every German is presumed to have a special educational training in some special line of work, from pedagogy to plumbing. No one is expected to drift into a trade, calling or profession. A life work is selected for a boy, he is trained for that work, and he is expected to remain in it all his life.

The result of a century of adherence to this doctrine, and of more than 40 years of a national school system based upon it, is that the German people, man for man, are the best educated people in the world.

Another result is that the German people have been trained and educated along special lines until they have lost that individual initiative which Anglo-Saxon thinkers believe is the vital element of national life.

The German child is sent to kindergarten at four or five years old if it has progressive parents. At six the state steps in and compels school attendance. At the beginning the child is given ordinary education, the weeks being divided into eleven hours for German, four hours for arithmetic, one hour for singing, and four hours for religion.

After the child reaches 14, compulsory attendance at day school is no longer required, but he is expected to follow up his educational work in the continuation schools.

MIDSUMMER TOPICS IN CHICAGO

RAILWAY REGULATION AND POLITICS ARE MATTERS OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Increased railroad rates west of Chicago that will add many millions to the revenues of the railroads at the expense of the consuming public in western states, led with favor to Chicago, this is the program said to be accepted by the controlling factors of the shippers' committee, which is ostensibly fighting the rate increase.

State regulation welcomed, instead of opposed, by the interests to be regulated, this is a situation which has developed in affairs of fraternal insurance societies, the action of the National Fraternal congress in indorsing a proposed uniform bill of insurance commissioners having disclosed remarkable facts.

Both republican and democratic headquarters for the congressional campaigns have been opened in Chicago, and from both the outpourings have begun of the brand of optimism which political campaigns always create in quantities to suit.

The hay fever exodus through Chicago to the upper lakes and Georgian bay this year, for some good reason, is a reduced and subnormal exodus.

Great Falls, Aug. 25.—John, the 16-year-old son of Dan Reddan, a well-known resident of Nelhart, was killed today by being thrown from a right-angled horse.

stead of hay fever is to be noted in the voices of some as they exclaim: "Somebody, I haven't had a symptom of it this year!"
