

TO EXHIBIT GRAIN AT APPLE SHOW

LEWISTOWN PEOPLE WILL SEND DOWN ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY TO MISSOULA FAIR.

Secretary A. J. Breitenstein of the chamber of commerce has returned from a trip to Lewistown, Deer Lodge and Butte, in search of exhibits for the Missoula apple show. The fair at Lewistown was stopped by rain and snow, but nothing has dampened the enthusiasm of the Fergus county people, who will send down a fine display of grains for the local fair.

Business men in Butte, said Mr. Breitenstein, are complaining of the class of apples they get from this section of the state. They claim that orchardists are sending them windfalls, culls and the like. A movement to effect an organization for protection has been started. The dealers do not mind paying the price, they say, but do object to inferior fruit.

Mr. Breitenstein saw some very attractive show windows at Lewistown. He said that the real estate men were very progressive and took great pains with their windows.

CARL CARLSON FOUND DEAD IN BIG TUNNEL

A report early this morning from East Portal stated that a man had been found dead in the St. Paul pass tunnel. It was not known whether the man was killed by a train or whether he died from some other cause. The engineer of a freight train which had just come out of the tunnel found bits of clothing and human flesh on the pilot of his engine and at once sent a section foreman back to investigate. The man found the body in the tunnel, but the body was so mangled that it was impossible to tell whether he had been dead before the train struck him or not. The body was identified as that of Carl Carlson.

REPUBLICANS GATHER AT KALISPELL

Kalispell, Sept. 9.—Republicans are gathering here tonight for tomorrow's county convention. A number of candidates have announced themselves for consideration at the hands of the delegates, but the strongest contest centers around the office of county attorney, in which E. A. Child, who was defeated for the nomination at the last convention, will appear against the present incumbent, J. H. Stevens. Insurgent sentiment is heard as an undecurrent in pre-convention talk, but there appears to be no organization.

SENATOR CARTER A VISITOR

TALKS DELIGHTFULLY OF THE STATE AND THE GARDEN CITY.

"What have you to say for yourself and country?" asked a Missoulian man of Senator Carter, who spent several hours in the city yesterday.

"I have many nice things to say about Missoula," was the diplomatic reply. "I am delighted to see such improvement here."

"Have you a stereotyped form for those pretty speeches this year?" asked some one, mischievously.

"I would have to have a new one for the Garden city. I drove about the place today and saw many attractive things. Your parking system and trees are beautiful. I like to see such ornaments."

"You may say this, young man: We will be down in force next week. We expect to bring about 1,000 people from the east side. The republicans are coming to nominate a cheering ticket, and speak a word of cheer to the boys. You may add that we are not going to depend on the disintegration of the democrats to win, but will carry the election with republican votes."

As the last words fell from Mr. Carter's lips his eyes turned toward Livingston.

"Yes, we are going to win."

"How do you find the farmers? Are they prosperous?"

"In some sections dry land farming did not bring good results this year," said he. "In the Gallatin valley and the south side of the Yellowstone the crops were very good. In Judith basin wheat is turning out better than was expected."

"The grain crops in the Gallatin are superb. The harvesting is well over. One hundred steam threshing machines are at work there now. The yields will be from 30 to 60 bushels of wheat and 80 to 120 of oats to the acre. Hay and clover are exceptionally fine."

"Land values throughout the state are holding up well. There is promise of a distinct increase in immigration over that of last year. People are coming this way."

Senator Carter is as brown as the nut-brown maiden. He has been in the fields and along the highways, watching the farmers at their work. His system is full of Montana atmosphere, and his heart bursting with love for the old state.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT HAS HIS FIRST REST

corporations. I recognize the need of the great corporations as a necessary instrument in modern individualism. As our conditions are now we need this instrument of the corporation, but also we need the complete control by the people, through the government, of the corporations. I cheerfully admit one new thing is necessary, only I insist that the other new thing is there, too."

Colonel Roosevelt indorsed the appointment by President Taft of President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale university as head of the commission to investigate the capitalization of railroads, and of Joseph A. Holmes as chief of the bureau of mines.

After saying that men appointed to do work for the benefit of the people should be chosen without regard to political affiliations, he continued:

Commends Taft.

"Now the good of a general statement like that lies in its application and I will give you an example of how in practice that principle has been applied. We have a bureau of mines, and President Taft recently appointed as head of that bureau the best man that could have been chosen to fill the place—Mr. Holmes, who I know in connection with his professional work although I don't know his politics. I am exceedingly glad that the president has appointed a man like Mr. Hadley of Yale to look into the question of railroad capitalization. You will find some worthy people who are willing to have the government look into this question of capitalization, but they wait it left to the states to deal with."

Mentions Railroads.

"There is an instance of two railroads that run from Minnesota westward to Puget sound, and they were violating the laws of the federal government and violating the laws of the states through which they run. The government have been chosen to fill the place—Mr. Holmes, who I know in connection with his professional work although I don't know his politics. I am exceedingly glad that the president has appointed a man like Mr. Hadley of Yale to look into the question of railroad capitalization. You will find some worthy people who are willing to have the government look into this question of capitalization, but they wait it left to the states to deal with."

"There is only one power that could deal with that kind of a corporation and that is the national government. There is only one power that can deal with big businesses carried on in interstate lines, and that is the national government. Anything that can be dealt with by the states, I favor dealing with in that way. But big business is now centralized."

Colonel Roosevelt also referred to efforts that had been made to obtain deeper waterways throughout the country. Mr. Roosevelt had a fight with the crowds when he tried to make the rounds of the exhibition grounds. Everywhere he went he was followed by throngs of spectators, which the police were unable to control.
