CAUGHT ON THE RUN ABOUT TOWN

There were some who doubted when Dr. Bred brought in some buttercups three weeks ago. There were skeptics, too, when GENTLE SPRING Billy Beeson tapped his maple trees. The capture of a butterfly by university biologists was not convincing proof to the incredulous. So the weather man opened up his spring tap yesterday, and if there was anybody who didn't believe he didn't have to wade across the streets yesterday afternoon. Lakes appeared as if by magic and babbling brooks bubbled along the sidewalks and rippled over the crossings. Ice became slush and the slush was transformed to limpid water by the gentle influence of the weather man's persuasion. On the site of the federal building, where workmen will soon be excavating for Uncle Sam's local habit, small boys navigated rafting and got their feet wet and soapy. Birds sang, hens cackled and young chicks pattered about in the sunshine. The householder rejoiced that the coal might last through, after all. The roadmaster began to examine his culverts. There were plenty of signs of spring. The weather man convinced everybody that he has some dandy weather in stock. Perhaps he has some remnants to work off before he puts away his winter store, but he showed Missoula yesterday and she enjoyed the experience.

As usual, the mud revived the talk of paving. All winter, while Higgins avenue was frozen into a natural pavement there were a good many folks who could not or would not see that Missoula needed paving. There were none of these folks to be found yesterday. The condition of the streets, while it was not as bad as it will be in a short time, was bad enough to make a paying enthusiast out of the most unwilling and reluctant slogger. Some there were who cussed about, forgetting the fact that it is Lent, and also disregarding the other fact that this is the University city and cussing is a bad example. But the conditions certainly justified some violence in expression. The mud developed one incident that was worth it all. A policeman helped a woman over a bad crossing. This was an unusual thing for a Missoula policeman to do; the Missoula policemen, as a rule, are shy; they hesitate to offer their services to a woman in distress. Maybe they have suffered rebuffs and have reason to be conservative in their attitude but it was worth while to see that Higgins avenue policeman yesterday helping a woman across a muddy place.

Yesterday there was much pleasant comment about town regarding the new circulation contest, which The Missoulian announced Sunday. There was an interesting lot of inquiry about the conditions of nomination and there were more nominations received than ever marked the first day of a contest in this part of the country. It is going to be a big contest; that was the sentiment which was often expressed yesterday. The five-room house and two lots in Residence addition will make somebody mighty happy. The plans and the rest of the prizes have charm for all who are inquiring into the contest. Then, late yesterday afternoon, The Missoulian bought a handsome Hudson touring car which is to be a prize in the contest. The subscribers will have an interest; the girls in the contest have nothing to gain in regard to the auto; it goes to a subscriber. "In most contests there is nothing for the subscriber," said The Missoulian contest manager when he started this work. "Let us start one which will give to the subscriber a show as well as the girls who are nominated in the voting contest. We will give the girls the biggest prizes which were ever offered in a contest and then we will add a prize for the subscribers." And that is what brought the automobile into the contest. The car is a dandy. It is the Hudson's newest creation. Jack Hayes is demonstrating the car; you can see its counterpart on the street every day. It is the best that could be obtained. And this goes to a subscriber. If you want to learn the details of the contest, call at the office of The Missoulian and the contest man will explain. He's glad to do it.

One of the visitors in town yesterday was E. G. Settle, secretary of the Hall Manufacturing company of Chicago, who was here on one of his semi-annual calls. Mr. Settle swings around the great circuits twice each year, and every time he comes to Missoula he is a bit stronger friend of ours. He is one of the men who constitute the best publicity board Missoula has; he spreads the gospel of the Bitter Root wherever he goes, and he does it just because he likes us. In some places they call him "Settle of Missoula," so earnest is his advocacy of the land of the McIntosh Red. Yesterday morning Mr. Settle wore a real Red Apple smile as he greeted the Man about Town. He was with Secretary Breit-

MANY ARE COMING

W. B. Webb of Hamilton returned last night from a winter in the east, where he visited Washington, New York and other cities and enjoyed a pleasant sojourn. "There is going to be an unprecedented immigration into Montana this year," said Mr. Webb to a Missoulian man. "The railroads are planning for it and the people in the east are talking about it. Montana has the call on the westward movement this year. Our advertising has had its effect and the Bitter Root is the most-talked-of valley in the world. All Montana will share in the movement, but we are going to get a great share of it. I found this thing to be true, that our best advertisement has been the people who have been here and have seen for themselves; they all talk well about us. The plateau country will receive a lot of new settlers as well as the Bitter Root and eastern Montana will get thousands. The whole state will be benefited. One land man said to me in Chicago, when asked about another state: 'You can't do anything unless you have the Montana brand on your land.' That's the way it is all around."

These days are the busy days of Secretary Breitenstein of the chamber of commerce. All of his days are busy, but these are a bit busier than usual and he is just that much happier. He has Missoula's share in the Myers banquet to look after. This includes the sale of tickets to Missoula participants and other arrangements. There are, according to the instructions sent to Mr. Breitenstein from Hamilton, to be two Missoula speakers on the program. One of these will speak for the Missoula legislative delegation and the other will represent the city as a whole. There is much interest in Missoula in the approaching banquet in Appleton. Judge Myers is a warm personal favorite here.

DR. TUTTLE TALKS THIS MORNING

STATE HEALTH OFFICER TO SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY— COLLEGE NEWS NOTES.

Dr. T. D. Tuttle, secretary of the state board of health, will lecture before the university class in elementary hygiene this morning on the subject of "Foods in Relation to Health." The name of the speaker and the liveliness of his subject are advertisement enough for the lecture. It is found to be interesting and should be overlooked by none. The university has been lucky in securing Dr. Tuttle's assistance in giving the course in hygiene and when his subject is considered it will be readily seen that the lecture will be one which should not be missed. The public is cordially invited to attend the lecture, which will be delivered in the university library building at 11:30 this morning to last an hour.

Big Game Tonight.
This evening the Spiders and the Missoula Mercantile company indoor basketball teams will meet in the most dramatic and exciting game of the league season. Both teams are out for blood. The Spiders are assured of first place at the end of the season but this game means as much to them as though it were for the pennant for the Mercantile team has beaten them before. The Mercantile team is anxious to win because a victory will assure its participation in the final series and because if it wins it will lead the league in scoring.

The game will be played in the university gymnasium at 8 o'clock this evening. In view of the keen interest in the game a close contest is expected and it should be well worth the price of admission.

Hawthorne Tonight.
The Hawthorne Literary society will meet at 7 o'clock sharp this evening. A few new members will be received into the society and the names of others will be considered. The society is all the more interested in its finances and the membership is rapidly increasing. A short program will be given and magazine articles concerning the question of the conservation of national resources will be reviewed. James Haines, James Sewall and George Stone are on the program. All who desire membership are requested to be present.

Spring Work Begins.
The touch of spring in the air yesterday and the rapid disappearance of the snow put basketball and indoor baseball in the shade and spring athletics were the only topics of discussion. Ahead the track candidates are beginning to take light workouts in the gymnasium. The high jumpers have begun a little work and the hurdlers and distance men are working on the indoor track. This year's track prospects appear bright for in addition to the big annual triangular meet with the school of mines and the college colleges, there will certainly be a meet with Washington State college and possibly with other western schools this spring. The baseball men, of course, are still working with the indoor parods, but long eyes are being cast at gloves and little hard balls and big heavy bats and as soon as the snow is off the ground real work will begin.

LOCAL SOCIETY

Shakespeare Department.
There was an enthusiastic meeting of the Shakespeare department of the Woman's club yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Mary Bandmann. Mrs. Brittain was in her place as presiding officer and Mrs. Bandmann led the study of the first chapter of "King Lear." The parliamentary drill under the leadership of Mrs. Miles was animated and rigorous. A number of new members were admitted and prospects are bright for the good health of this department.

A Guest From Iowa.
Mrs. H. C. Hill from Milton, Iowa, has come to spend some time in Missoula as the guest of her son, H. H. Hill, who is in the employ of Murphy, Lockman & Co. Mrs. Hill stopped in Billings to visit another son, as she came west, and she is very happily impressed with this, her first experience in a western atmosphere.

UNIVERSITY MOURNS CRAIG'S LOSS

DEATH OF FORMER PRESIDENT CAUSES GENERAL SORROW AT BIG STATE SCHOOL.

Yesterday it was as though a cloud had fallen over the University of Montana. Coming so shortly after the victory in the legislature, the news of the death of former President Oscar J. Craig was almost unbelievable. The celebration in honor of the appropriation measure stopped immediately, for Dr. Craig's influence has been felt even by the latest students in the school and the same common sorrow was felt and expressed by students as well as the members of Dr. Craig's faculty. Many touching tributes were made to the school's greatest friend by the different professors who had worked with him, and his memory was observed throughout the day.

President Dunaway is making arrangements to carry out the university's part of the funeral service as planned by the Masons. Classes will be suspended on Friday and a public service, in which the students, faculty and the alumni will take part, will be held in University hall at 2:30 in the afternoon. The details of the service will be announced later.

It was but two short weeks ago that Dr. Craig wired his congratulations to President Dunaway on the occasion of the university's birthday, repeating the slogan from which his name has been inseparable and for which he was loved so well, "The University of Montana; it must prosper."

The blow has been a severe one and the sorrow at the university is common and deep.
