"Arkansas Slim" is behind the counter at the Alloway cafe, which effectually disposes of any doubts that may have existed as to the advent of spring. "You can say that it doesn't make any difference what the weather is," said Phil Alloway yesterday morning, as he slid a couple "sunny side up" from the pan to a shiny white platter for a breakfast on front. "Spring is here because Slim is here. The two of them travel together. I don't plant my garden until he gets here each year, and when he does come I don't hesitate to start in. His instinct is better than that of a mallard duck. He goes back to the walnut groves in the fall, just ahead of the frost, and lives on corn cakes till spring comes. Then he hikes back to Missoula, and I never know him to be mistaken. When he showed up the other morning and said he was ready to go to work again, I knew it was all off with winter and you don't need to worry about the weather any more. Slim is here and that makes it a cinch. I was glad to see him, too, for I was getting anxious about the garden. But it's all right now."

Over on the south side Friday evening, there was a bit of a flurry over the appearance of a real, sure-enough, up-to-date MISSOULA HAREM SKIRT. True, it did not create the riot that was precipitated by the appearance of the bifurcated garment in New York, but it drew attention enough to make it interesting. There was no doubt about the genuineness of the garment. It was worn by a comely young woman whose grace of form and movement made the new duds look quite presentable. But there was some argument for a time amongst the young men who viewed the introduction of the divided attire. The question is even yet undecided as to whether it is a baggy trousers or a tight skirt. "But, anyway," asserted the young man who told about it yesterday, "them was sure some pants." The young woman who wore the attire lives in Missoula, so it may be that the harem skirt has come to stay. Perhaps, however, she will send it away.

"The hardest question we have to answer," said Secretary Brettenstein of the chamber of commerce yesterday, "is contained in the problem of what to pass up and what to accept. Every one of the publicity propositions which comes to the chamber of commerce possesses some good points. Every one of them would do us some good if we took it up in the right way; but if we were to enter into each of these schemes our funds would last about 60 days and we would be broke for the rest of the year. This problem of where to spend the money to the best advantage is the really difficult one. If our resources were unlimited there would be nothing to it. We could have 'Missoula' painted everywhere. But we have to go slowly and accept what we think is best. Because we do not enter into a proposition that proposition is not necessarily unworthy. We have to be guided by our resources, and they are, as you know, limited. We have not yet secured the guarantee which we started this week to get. We have obtained pledges for a good portion of the ten thousand, but the last two thousand is hard to get. We must have more money if we are to do the work which the city expects of us."

"I wouldn't need to be told that the Big Blackfoot mills have started," said a man who was watching the Bonner cars pull out yesterday afternoon. "The business on the electric line shows that there is something doing up at the other end of the line. For a couple of days I have been watching these cars as they pass my store and I have been surprised to see what an amount of business they are doing. It has been astonishing, all winter, to see how many people travel back and forth between Missoula and Bonner, when the mills were idle. The line has been doing a steady business and this will increase this spring. I wish we had the line finished up the Bitter Root; that would be another busy bit of road. Then there's the line through Orchard Homes and the one to Frenchtown and the one to the reservation country. When they are finished there will be things doing. People here do not realize what a trolley line means to a city. I wish we had a dozen of them, running in all directions. We would be some busy city then?"

On the Bonner and Fort Missoula lines there will be double service today unless the weather should be stormy this afternoon. Last Sunday the service was doubled on the Bonner line and was well patronized all day. The company has found that there is also likely to be heavy Sunday afternoon business on the post line, as well; it was very heavy last Sunday and the double service is without doubt necessary. The trolley is finding its place here as a means of pleasure riding. It is as comfortable as an automobile and a heap less bother, and the expense is slight. "The poor man's automobile," is what they call the trolley in the east, and there is nothing of contempt in the phrase; rather it is a term of appreciation. While the route in this vicinity is, at present, somewhat limited as to direction and distance, it is all right as far as it goes, and it goes far enough to afford enjoyment to a great many people. Hence, the double service on the two rural lines this afternoon. It will enable twice as many people to have a good time as would otherwise be able to get out into the country. If you haven't tried it, take a ride this afternoon. You'll like it.

PLAYGROUND PLANS PERFECTED

MISSOULA ASSOCIATION FORMED AND OFFICERS WILL BE CHOSEN NEXT WEEK.

There was an interesting session of the Missoula playground committee last night. This committee, selected at the recent meeting which followed the notably fine lecture on the subject of playground regulation, has been considering for several weeks the question of a permanent organization in Missoula and definite steps were taken toward this end at the session last night.

A constitution was adopted and a general meeting will be held next week in the hall of the public library building, the exact date to be announced later. At this meeting there will be a series of short addresses made by well-known people of the city who are interested in the work and permanent officers will be chosen.

All who are interested in the playground movement are urged to be present at the meeting next week. Those who are willing to become active members of the association are requested to send their names to Mrs. C. A. Dunlavy as soon as possible.

The constitution which was adopted last night makes the official name of the organization "The Missoula Playground Association."

The object of the association is set forth definitely as being "to promote the playground interests of the town and a closer sympathy and co-operation between the home, the school and the playground."

Membership in the association is open to any person "contributing not less than $1 to the funds of the association." The payment of not less than $10 gives standing as a contributing member and the person who contributes not less than $100 becomes a life member.

The officers of the association, who are to be elected at the general meeting next week, are a president, two vice presidents, a secretary and a treasurer, together with a governing committee consisting of the officers and 18 other persons to be chosen from the membership.

From this governing committee or from the membership, selected by the governing committee, working committees are to be named. These committees are: Executive, co-operation, school board, park and athletic.

The members of the committee which has the preliminary arrangements in charge is: Professor W. D. Harkins, chairman; Mayor Logan, Superintendent Williams, President Cuthbert Pratt, Professor W. F. Book, John M. Evans, Mrs. C. A. Dunlavy and Mrs. Tylar B. Thompson.

Blood Tells

Good blood tells, they say, and bad blood certainly does.

Poor or disorderly blood tells its own story in lowered vitality, loss of energy, in skin eruptions, in rheumatic pains and in a pallid or sallow appearance of the complexion.

This is the season of the year when the blood is most apt to be disordered. Take our Cream of Tartar and Sulphur Tablets.

They purify and enrich the blood. They cure boils, pimples and other skin troubles. They expel rheumatic poison from the system. They build up strength and energy.

HOMER M'CLAIN HIT BY UNKNOWN

TREACHEROUS BLOW IS STRUCK AND RENDERS LOLO BOY UNCONSCIOUS.

Homer McClain, a resident of Lolo, was assaulted in front of the Pioneer bar last evening and received injuries that rendered him unconscious for about 15 minutes. According to the story of his companions, the three were walking down Higgins avenue and passed in front of the Pioneer bar. Without any provocation, a man stepped from the group in front of the saloon and swung on McClain, knocking him to the sidewalk. He sustained an ugly gash in the head where he struck the walk. This story is told by Loth A. K. Thayer, an employee of the forestry service, and E. A. McClain, the injured man's cousin. After McClain was hit he remained unconscious for some time and was still dazed when a doctor arrived at the Missoula hotel, where he was taken by his companions. His assailant's name could not be ascertained last night.

THE HALL IS CLOSED.

Editor Missoulian: For the sake of peace I have closed my billiard hall, and I want to take this occasion to thank the majority of the aldermen, who saw fit that I receive fair treatment. This expression
