

NOTHING IS MORE BEAUTIFUL ANYWHERE IN THE WIDE WORLD THAN VIEW AT THE BUNGALOW

Take a Stroll to The Missoulian Home Prize in Residence Addition and You Will See Why the Contest Is So Lively.

The Extension Bonus Offer Adds Zest to the Contest This Week and the Candidates Enter the Second Half of the Campaign With Inspiration for Renewed Effort.

Yesterday was a perfect day as to weather conditions. The contestants in the Home race were all afield.

Out in Residence addition, the sun beamed warmly and all about the Missoulian bungalow was peaceful and beautiful.

On all sides, the wild flowers were in bloom, the birds were singing and the rattle and stir of the builders of the bungalow furnished a delightful accompaniment to the music of springtime.

Looking in any direction from the bungalow, the view was beautiful. In the south, the snowy cap of Lolo peak touched the blue of the sky and the rugged sides of the Bitter Root mountains sloped down to the green fields at their base. To the north the snow-capped peaks of the Mission range formed the background for the picture in which the city was the principal feature. Westward the Bitter Roots and the Mission peaks merged in the far horizon, and at the east the sheltering wall of Mount Sentinel rose protectively. In every direction save cityward, stretched the green expanse of fertile fields.

The picture emphasized the beauty of the location of The Missoulian Home bungalow and made apparent to all who viewed it the excellence of the offer which is made in The Home contest. The roof of the bungalow is completed; the carpenters will start today on the siding. Inside, the plumbers are engaged in their rough work, getting the pipes connected for kitchen and bathroom. The work is progressing finely and The Missoulian bungalow will soon be ready for the young woman whose home it is to be.

"It is a wonderfully fine offer," was the comment of a woman who looked over the bungalow yesterday morning. "It is no wonder the young women are eager and that their friends are ear-

Extensions

Any one who gave you a three or six months' subscription during the first part of the contest can now extend this to a year or more and give you the advantage of the extra votes. If you secured three months when such a subscription was worth 4,000 votes and the subscriber now pays for the rest of the year, or nine months, it will count you 21,000 votes. An extension from six months to one year will count you 15,000 votes. An extension from one year to two years will count you the difference between the original rate for one year and the rate for two years, or 35,000 votes.

I am getting interested in the contest, myself. It certainly is worth the effort of the contest.

I should be remembered, always, that the bungalow is not the only prize in the Home contest. There are two prizes: one is a Kurtzman, furnished by the Hoyt-Dickinson company, and the other is a Kobbler & Campbell, which comes from the Orvis company.

There are also four complete tours of Yellowstone park, from Missoula to Missoula, The Missoulian paying every item of expense involved in the complete trip to and through the Wonderland and back home. This, in itself, is a prize worth striving for.

Closing the list of prizes, there are two handsome diamond rings; these are the prettiest rings that could be obtained; they will make any girl happy.

For the subscriber, there is the Hudson "33" touring car. It is the ideal road car of the year. Tomorrow The Missoulian is promised the delivery of the machine which is to go to some subscriber. The company's demonstration car, heretofore, has been illustrating this phase of the Home contest. Now the very machine can be seen. And it is a dandy.

For particulars regarding The Missoulian Home contest which are not understood, those who wish information should seek the contest man and ask him.

He is on the job all the time and he likes to answer questions. If there is anything about the Hudson "33" offer that is not clear, stop and ask the contest man.

Yesterday's vote was good for Monday morning. There were some good advances along the line, but there was little, if any, change in the relative standing of the contestants; they are moving along together in solid front. The race is yet to be decided. Nobody can pick the winner yet.

Attention is called to the Extension Bonus offer for this week. This is the time and this is the opportunity to call around and see some of the short-term subscribers who were visited during the first part of the contest.

The Extension Bonus offer makes it worth while for the candidates to make another call upon these people and it is worth while for these people to extend their original subscriptions.

Read carefully the Extension Bonus offer and lay out the week's work so as to take advantage of it.

Under this offer a year's addition to a year's subscription previously obtained is worth 35,000 votes instead of 25,000 as in the original schedule.

Shorter extensions are worth a proportional premium. This offer will add zest to the return visits which you make to the folks you saw earlier in the contest.

Read the offer and go to work.
