CAUGHT ON THE RUN ABOUT TOWN Phil Alloway was compelled to neglect the restaurant business yesterday in order to explain how it HONORED was that he called the PROPHECY. turn on the weather. Under a clear sky, Friday, with all of the diversion attendant upon feeding hungry hundreds, Phil had told the Man About Town that it would rain as soon as the track meet was over. There had been some ridicule directed against the prophet and some who heard the forecast had inquired how it was that a man in a kitchen could know more about the weather than a man out of doors. Phil endured all the slings and arrows in meek patience; he knew his turn would come; but he didn't expect that it would come quite as soon as it did. The rain was in full swing when the boys came for breakfast yesterday morning and they all apologized for their harsh remarks of the day before. Phil had left the vegetable growing so fast that he had sent the boys out in the rain to hold them down before he left home and he was disposed to be good natured, but he made the scoffers' knowledge that he is the real thing in the weather line before he would give them anything to eat. And they were glad to get off that easily.

But there was nobody who was sorry about the rain. It was just what the doctor ordered. It fell upon the just and the unjust, upon the irrigator and the dry farmer, upon Mountman and Serapper—the rain played no favorites at all. It just rained. The rain was warm and there was a lot of it. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the weather man let his foot slip a bit and there were a few big, squishy snowflakes mixed with the raindrops for a few minutes. But they splashed into the puddles and were lost. There was not enough of the snow to break the good record of the shower and the ground got the best soaking it has had this spring. The sun made a game fight to save the baseball game and won out. The afternoon was bright and warm and the way things grew was a caution. It was the magic of it was worth a million at the very lowest estimate; some of the guesses placed it at five millions. But it was refreshing and comfortable and the way western Montana will blossom now will make the Garden of Eden look like the Sahara desert. Even Hugh Campbell smiled yesterday, and he hadn't smiled for a week.

There was a piper at the Grand theater yesterday and the day before—a piper and a winsome lassie. CLASSY MUSIC. The piper piped the real goods and the way the lassie danced left nothing to be desired. Out through the doorway the drone of the pipes found its way; the theater couldn't hold it all. Up the avenue sauntered Scotty Isbister, absorbed in his own thoughts and giving no heed to the crowd which surged about him. Through the crowd he walked along until he reached the front of the Grand. He heard the pipes. Gone were his dreams and he stood there, enraptured. He heeded not the bumps he got from the hurrying people who passed; he cared not for their caustic comment about folks blocking the way. He stood on the curb and listened. What was the crowd to him as long as the pipes played? And they surely played. The piper must have felt the presence of Scotty, for he lifted the bag through all the music that's dear to the Scottish heart. Then he ended and the song of the pipes died away in the long drone. Scotty turned and saw the Man About Town. "Ay mon," said he, "that's the only dom music was ever played."

There is a musical treat in store for those who love music—and there are a good many of them in Missoula. The Philharmonic society will give another of its concerts at the Harmon's Tuesday night. There have been careful preparations made for this concert, which is the last of the season's series. The rehearsals have been faithfully attended and the drill has been thorough, and the concert should be a finished rendition of the delightful selection which has been chosen for the night's performance. The "Stabat Mater" is difficult but those who have attended the recent rehearsals say that the Philharmonic has conquered it. "The rehearsal which I heard was a complete performance," said one of the favored ones to the Man About Town yesterday. "I hope the society will have a large audience Tuesday night. I am sure the audience will be appreciative, for nobody could listen to that music and not become enthusiastic."

The Missoula band never made a more favorable impression than during the week of the week of the interschool LIKEWISE athletic meet. Its services THE BAND, were so generously given during the week that its friends appreciated its participation. Its music was so well rendered that the city was proud of it. The boys and girls were enthusiastic over the way the band helped and its music was really delightful. The band has made marvelous improvement since last fall. It has some very appreciative audiences, but there were never any hearers who more thoroughly enjoyed the band music than did the young people at the meet when the band played its medley of college airs. "That was the best music I ever heard," said one high school boy to the Man About Town Friday night. "The band that can play

PRESS AGENTS TALK OF THEIR SHOWS At the lais. Another excellent bill of photoplays and music awaits the patrons of this theater. "Easter Babies" is a film secured especially for the children, but it is full of fun and promises laughs for everybody. This is one of the Vitagraph company's best productions, with which everyone is familiar. "Her Master" is a tale of old New England in colonial days, with a romance woven around a country school teacher and one of his pretty pupils. "The Two Mothers" details a story of two counterfeiters and their families. This is a good detective story and full of exciting climaxes and situations. There will be a matinee this afternoon. Each child attending will be presented with a candy gift. The Manon-Medea trio will be assisted at the evening performance by Mr. Paul Schneek, flutist. Messrs LeVasseur and Hoef are singing some very pretty songs. Wednesday evening will begin a new contest and in addition there will be an attractive program with some new features.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RUNS SPECIAL PRESIDENT SAMUELS TAKES LARGE AMOUNT OF GOLD TO WALLACE BANK. H. F. Samuels, president of the National Bank of Wallace, was in the city Friday. When the news arrived here that the State Bank of Commerce at Wallace had failed Mr. Samuels immediately made arrangements for protecting his bank and depositors. As a result the Northern Pacific ran a special train, consisting of an engine and coach, carrying Mr. Samuels and a large amount of gold in order to stop any attempted run on his bank. President Lusk of the First National bank said yesterday afternoon that the action was taken by Mr. Samuels simply as a preventative and that he had received information from Wallace to the effect that everything was quiet and that the failure had caused no excitement there.

VALUE OF LIBRARY IS SHOWN ANNUAL REPORT GIVES DETAILS OF PUBLIC INSTITUTION'S WORK. The annual report of the Missoula public library makes an interesting proof of the practical value of the library to residents of this city. The librarian, Mrs. Stoddard, has not yet compiled figures comparing this library with others, but she states as her belief that Missoula is well in the lead as a city of readers. The figures for the past year are appended.

CONDEMNATION SUIT. In the district court yesterday a suit was instituted by James Conlan against Samuel Maclay and wife, the suit being one to condemn a strip of land through the Maclay property which the plaintiff desires to use in the construction of a canal to conduct water upon his farm. It is asked that a commission be appointed to appraise the land sought.

NOT GUILTY IS PLEA. The four Indians arrested Friday afternoon for being drunk and creating a disturbance at the county bridge were up before Judge H. M. Small yesterday and much to the judge's dismay the entire bunch pleaded not guilty. Rather than have a regular trial, they were told to get back to the reservation. They promised to do this and were dismissed.

ROSSINI'S ORATORIO TUESDAY EVENING PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY WILL PRESENT STABAT MATER WITH CHORUS OF FIFTY. Missoula music lovers have in store a treat which will head the whole list of the season when the Philharmonic society next Tuesday evening presents Rossini's oratorio, "Stabat Mater," at University hall. The society will present this as its second concert and also as the last for this season. Under the direction of Gustav L. Fischer, the members of the society and those who have had the pleasure of attending a rehearsal recently say that the production will be sung in a manner worthy of any musical organization and in a way that will be gratifying to all who avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing the Philharmonic society.

MISSOULA GERMANS ON A TRIP FRITZ KOOPMAN AND JOSEPH REDLE ENJOY THEIR VISIT IN WASHINGTON. Washington, May 13.—Special.—Fritz Koopman and Joseph Redle, two of Missoula's prominent citizens, were visitors in Washington one day last week. They were en route to their old home in Germany and stopped over in Washington to visit the capital of their country and secure a passport for Mr. Koopman so he would not be in any danger of being conscripted into Emperor William's army on his arrival in Deutschland. Fritz secured his passport all right and left Washington for New York feeling perfectly safe in the matter. Fritz left his old home in Schleswig-Holstein 26 years ago, about two days before he should have reported in the German army. He expressed the opinion in Washington that he felt his services with the Rough Riders at Chickamauga ought to answer all the requirements that should be made of one man for military service.

Mr. Redle, while a native-born American, was taken by his parents to Germany when he was two years old and lived there until he was about ready for service in the German army, when he suddenly became imbued with the notion of returning to his native country, and for fear that the German authorities might have overlooked the fact that he was a native-born American, he felt that he would be safer in the old country with a passport in his inside pocket, showing him to be a native-born citizen of the United States. Both expressed themselves as much pleased with their visit to Washington. They expect to return from their visit to Germany sometime about October 1.
