

GET READY FOR THE FINISH IN THE BUNGALOW CONTEST AND HURRY IN YOUR VOTES

THE BUNGALOW IS PLEASANTLY LOCATED

After the Sunday rest will come the final dash in the Home contest. Tomorrow night at 9:30 o'clock the last vote will be cast in this event. There remains one working day of the contest time. It will be necessary for every contestant to work. She will have to work hard. She should get every one of her working force into the field. Her friends and her friends' friends must get into the race. Team work will count. Votes will win the bungalow. Votes—and nothing else. It will take a lot of votes to win the bungalow. It cannot be won by sitting still. There must be steady work and lively work. The announcement of the standing of candidates which is made this morning will stand until the final count is made, Monday night. Between now and Monday night there is time enough to vote a good many coupons. The contestant who votes the greatest number will win? There need be no uneasiness on the part of anybody on this score. There is but one way to win the bungalow. That is to get the biggest vote. WORK, WORK, WORK. That is the secret of victory. The contestant who gets the bungalow is the one who heads the list when the last count is made. And she is the one who works to best advantage between now and Monday night. The strain of these closing days of the contest will be considerable, but the reward is great and there will be abundant chance for rest when the race is run. The contest man has this advice to offer as we enter the closing stretch of the race—

WORK, WORK, WORK.

There are many of the people you have seen during the weeks of the contest who have told you to call again. These are the days for the call-again folks. Only don't take the call-again invitation again. Make this the last call-again of the campaign. If these call-again folks gave you votes early in the campaign, get them to give you some more today. If they gave you merely a promise, get them to make good that promise now. They will have to come through now or it will be too late. YOU MUST HAVE THE VOTES. That is the only way they can help you now. It is easy for them to do it. They get value received for all they do and what benefit you receive costs them nothing. You are doing them a favor when you get them to read The Missoulian. So make your clean-up calls Monday. Don't be afraid that you'll fill the ballot box to overflowing. It is big enough to hold all the votes. The pink coupons are what count. RUSH THEM IN. There is space in the ballot box for a good many millions. There is another ballot box in reserve if this one gets full. GET THE VOTES. The contest man agrees to take care of all you can bring in. He agrees, too, that every one you bring in will be counted. Keep coming with the votes. Get them into the big box. Don't pack them around in your bag. They may get lost. VOTE YOUR COUPONS. Then you'll be sure they will be in the box in time for the count. The voting will close at 9:30 sharp, Monday night. There will be no votes accepted after that hour. When 9:30 comes the Home contest is ended except for the count of votes. There will be no way to get in after that hour. On that account, get your votes in early. Bitter Root contestants should mail their votes as soon as possible. For the votes from Bitter Root points which are not sent in before Monday the contest man has arranged to have a representative on the down train from Hamilton Monday afternoon. He will take all coupons that are delivered to him at the station along the line. This will be the last clean-up. All votes from reservation points must be mailed early enough to reach Missoula before Monday night. No votes will be counted that are not in The Missoulian office at 9:30 o'clock Monday night. As soon as the ballot box closes Monday night, it will be taken to the Grand theater, where it will be turned over to the judges. They will count the vote, in the theater, and the final announcement of the count will be made there. It will be a great night at the Grand. It will be a greater night for the young woman who wins the bungalow. She will have a home, all her own, that will be a source of pride and comfort for her. The bungalow is a dainty, dear little home. Any woman might be proud of it. There is nothing about the bungalow that is not all right. Its location—in Residence addition—is ideal. Its arrangement is convenient and pleasant.

Its construction has been thorough. It is well-built throughout. The Missoulian is proud of this little home building. The girl who wins it will be fortunate. She will not be lucky for there is no element of luck in this contest. The winner will be decided by hard work. So, work, work, work. It is a close race. The voting of today and Monday may change this standing entirely. There were rumors last night of some dark horses in the race who have heavy reserves to vote today; these are said to be contestants who have not been near the top lately. These, however, are rumors. The contest man knows nothing more about them than that. The belief of the contest man is that the work of today and Monday will decide the race. The contest man believes that it is yet to be decided. So its a case of work, and work hard.

ELECTRICITY KILLS CANCER

EUROPEAN PHYSICIANS SUCCESSFULLY EFFECTED CURES BY NEW METHOD.

At least six European physicians of international fame have recently reported that cancer can be killed, which also means cured, by the application of electric currents of high frequency and low tension. The method is technically called diathermy, meaning "with or by means of heat."

As this immediately suggests, the electricity kills the cancer by turning into heat and literally cooking the vitality and the venom out of the cancer cells. This is actually what does happen, and it can be done without injury to the rest of the body because the cancerous sections die at a temperature much below the point where healthy human tissue commences to be injured by heat.

The healthy human cells are not killed until a temperature near the boiling point is reached and the cancer cells are killed about 40 degrees below this point. The new method is simply to localize in the body near the cancer an electric current of high frequency and low tension.

This is done so that the heat reaches a point where the cancer cells die, but the healthy cells remain uninjured. In this manner cancers of the nose and throat and the surface cancers have been completely cured. Such cases are said already to number far up in the hundreds.

The process is said to require the most minute care and the very highest sort of surgical dexterity. As a result only specialists of long and careful training can venture on this sort of treatment. One vital point is that the heat, thus introduced into the body, does not spread itself throughout the body as ordinary heat conducts itself.

In this process the heat from the peculiar electric current is produced in the interior of the tissues which are being treated. It is produced in so intense a manner that the circulation of the blood fails to carry it off to any important extent. It results from this that the great heat remains absorbed by the diseased tissues, and it is enabled to attack and kill the hidden cancer cells without injuring the remainder of the body.

It is a marvelous process. For instance, after a cancer of the throat is treated thus, the section subjected to the current stays hot for many hours, while the body in general has no elevated temperature. When there are bones near the cancer thus treated, these bones remain very hot for a whole day because the bones, being almost solid, naturally cool off much slower than the flesh.

Such is called the destructive method of treating cancer by diathermy, of the electric current of enormous frequency and low tension. The same method may be used to simply raise the temperature 10 or 12 degrees above the remainder of the body. This calls the blood to the infected part and produces a general and very beneficial flushing of the parts about the cancer.

As a result much of the poisonous material thrown off by the cancer is cleaned up by the healthy blood cells. The process is difficult and so far demands most special and expert handling, but it seems to hold out a sure hope that a few years from now many cancers can be cured which today are only attacked by the knife in most cases, and which are usually considered fatal.
