

BITTER ROOT FRUIT IS BEST

STEINHARDT OF NEW YORK SAYS WE HAVE THE FINEST CHERRIES IN THE WORLD.

RED APPLES ARE PERFECT

Visitor Speaks Enthusiastically of the Quality of Our Fruit and the Possibilities of Our Orchards and Offers Valuable Suggestions as to Methods of Marketing and Packing.

"I have seen perfect apples today. The Bitter Root red apples are better than those of Rogue river or Yakima. Bitter Root cherries are the best in the world."

"Yes," he continued, "you may quote me and you may make it as strong as you like. You can't make it too strong. Today I have seen perfect apples."

With Professor M. L. Dean of the state board of horticulture, F. J. White and Secretary Breitenstein of the Missoula Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Steinhardt left yesterday morning for Hamilton.

An Expert.

Mr. Steinhardt's firm is probably the largest apple-buying concern in the world; for years, Mr. Steinhardt has bought heavily of the apples of the Hood river, Rogue river and Yakima valleys and for three seasons an effort has been made to induce him to go through the Bitter Root orchards.

To New York.

"I have bought a good many apples today. This shipment will be the first carload of Bitter Root apples that ever came into New York."

CONVICT KILLS IN FOLSOM PRISON

OPPENHEIMER, SENTENCED TO HANG, ADDS "ANOTHER SCALP TO HIS BELT."

RESULT OF BAD BLOOD

Hate-Crazed Man Slays Prison Enemy With Iron Bar Wrenched From Bucket—Most Unruly Inmate Ever in Folsom—Under Sentence of Death for Attempted Murder of Guard.

Folsom, Cal., Sept. 19.—Jake Oppenheimer, murderer, robber and condemned to die, added another murderer to his list this afternoon when he killed Francisco Quijada, also condemned to die, with a piece of iron bar, in the corridor of the prison.

The killing was the result of bad blood that existed between the two men for several months. Both figured in a recent attempted jailbreak and both were sentenced to hang, under a new law which makes it a capital offense for a life-terminer to attempt a jailbreak.

Oppenheimer is one of the most noted criminals of the west. He has killed two men and figured in several attempted jail deliveries. He has been the most unruly prisoner in the history of Folsom.

"I just wanted to add another scalp to my belt," is his only explanation for the deed.

After the attack in the corridor Quijada staggered to his cell and expired. The iron bar with which Oppenheimer made his murderous attack was wrenched from a prison bucket.

Only a few days ago Quijada informed Warden Kelly that he would cheerfully meet his fate on the gallows if Oppenheimer were hanged first. "If they hang him first I will willingly put the noose around my own neck," he said.

Oppenheimer, passive and unemotional, appeared tonight at the coroner's inquest to explain that he and Quijada arranged this morning to fight to the death in the afternoon. His piece of iron he said he picked up in the yard four months ago and he used to today because he was "determined to take no chances."

Made Enemies in Prison.

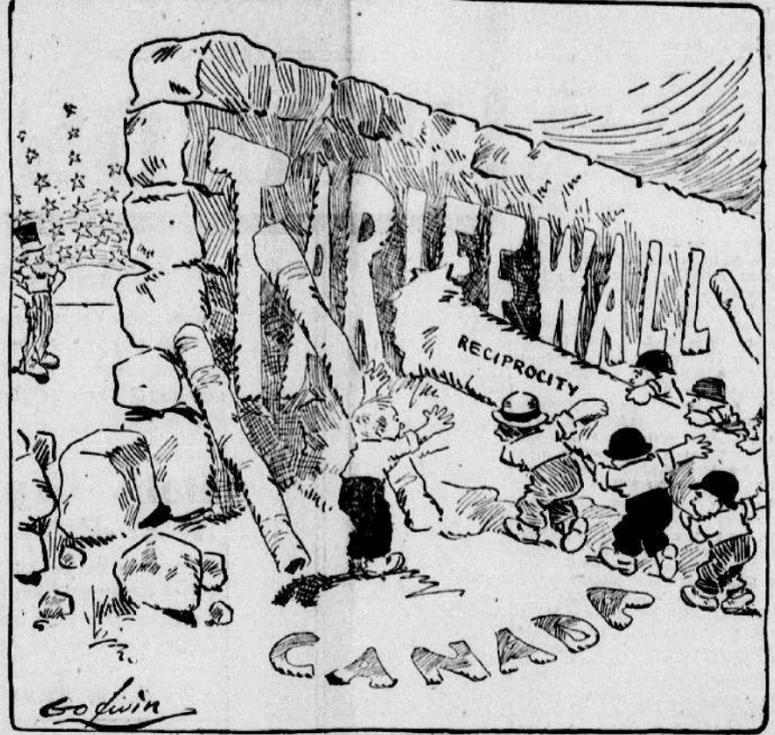

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—By a curious coincidence, Oppenheimer is made the subject of an article in a series written by an ex-convict and now appearing in a San Francisco paper. According to this article, he had "kindly instincts."

Oppenheimer started life as a San Francisco messenger boy. His first fight was over a favor shown to another messenger boy by a girl who had charge of the messengers. For this he was locked up and when, after being released, he sought the girl, who ridiculed him. Some time after he, with an accomplice, robbed a drug store in Oakland and Oppenheimer was sentenced to Folsom for 50 years.

In prison he made enemies right and left and became the subject of a death plot. He heard about it and killed his opponent, a convict named Smith, before the latter could act. For this he was sentenced to life imprisonment at San Quentin prison, being transferred there from Folsom. The guard at San Quentin watched him too closely to please Oppenheimer and after due warning, he secured a knife and nearly murdered him. He was then sentenced to solitary imprisonment for life, and was confined above the jute storehouse, which he tried to fire by dropping lighted shavings through a crack. His cell

WILL THE WALL GO DOWN?

ORTIE E. McMANIGAL BREAKS WITH HIS WIFE

DOESN'T LIKE IT BECAUSE SHE SOLD McNAMARA BUTTONS ON LABOR DAY.

Los Angeles, Sept. 19.—With the trial of John J. and James B. McNamara, accused of murder by dynamiting, two weeks away, Ortie E. McManigal, chief witness for the state, announced today that he had broken with his wife, Mrs. Emma McManigal. Mrs. McManigal is claimed by the defense as a strong witness.

"What got me," said McManigal in his cell, "was her selling McNamara defense buttons at a picnic in Chicago on Labor day. I read about it in the papers. If she wants to have anything more to do with me, she will have to come to me first."

No Emotion.

With no emotion, McManigal went on, saying Mrs. McManigal would be 32 years old the day the trial of the McNamaras begins; that his son, Walter, would be 6 on October 8, and his daughter, Evelyn, 8 on October 13. It struck him, he said, that many of the principal events of his life occurred in October.

McManigal has the freedom of a spacious cell, in one corner of which he has an exerciser with which he has managed to keep his weight down to 188 pounds. He has decorated the walls with pictures of Lincoln and his son, "Tad." Colonel Roll surrendering to Washington; Joseph Jefferson, a number of prominent actresses and a picture of a cowboy holding a revolver at arm's length over the motto: "Live so you can look every man in the eye and tell him to go to hell."

He passes much of his time with a set of mechanical drawing instruments, depicting nitro-glycerine cans.

PETER S. GROSSCUP WILL LEAVE BENCH

FEDERAL JUDGE IN ILLINOIS SAYS HE DESIRES MORE PERSONAL FREEDOM.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—United States Circuit Judge Peter S. Grosscup, today announced that he would retire from the bench the first week in October.

Judge Grosscup has served 19 years as a member of the federal judiciary in the northern district of Illinois. He attracted notice when the United States court of appeals, of which he was a member, reversed the action of Judge K. M. Landis, who had fined the Standard Oil company $29,000,000. He will send his resignation to President Taft shortly after the meeting of the United States court of appeals, on October 13. A desire to enjoy more freely his freedom as a citizen and liberty to resume practice of law are given as reasons for his decision.

Judge Grosscup, in announcing his intention of retiring said: "The reason for the resignation coming at this particular time is that if I go into the heavy October session I will have become again a part of the court in cases taken under advisement that might prevent resignation for a year. The advisement calendar now is unusually clear of pending matters. Then, too, under the new act of congress, by work after January 1, would be exclusively appellate, and that, unlike planting a garden and then watching it grow, is too much like merely weeding the garden.

The Reason.

"The reason for my resignation at all is that I wish more freedom, not only as an individual, but as a citizen. The world politically is trying to catch up with the world's radically changed economic conditions. The 'formative' period is approaching. Next year's presidential election, I believe, will be the last, on old lines. The settlement for the future will come not through the courts of law, but through the court of public opinion. I wish no office—except never again to hold office—but I wish greater freedom than the bench gives, to do my part in this court of public opinion."

Judge Grosscup issued the injunction against Eugene V. Debs and other officers of the American Railway union during the railway strike of 1894 in Chicago, restraining the labor men from committing acts of violence and later called on the president to send federal troops to Chicago to preserve order.

AGED MOTHER DENIES HER SON CANADA ENDS HER FIERCE FIGHT

NILES MICH. WOMAN SAYS RE-TURNED CONVICT IS NOT HER OFF-SPRING.

WANTS BIG INSURANCE

Man Thought to Be Dead for Thirteen Years is Found in New York Penitentiary—One Company Paid Value of Policy But Another Refused—Cousin Identifies Wanderer.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 19.—George Alfred Kimmel, believed by relatives to have been dead for 13 years, arrived at his old home here from the penitentiary at Auburn, N. Y., late today, and was identified by dozens of former friends and associates. Among those who identified Kimmel was his cousin, Mrs. Harry I. Fox, who opened her home to the wanderer and held a reception for his strange return.

In spite of his identification, however, and his acceptance by other relatives, his mother, Mrs. Stella Kimmel, refused to see him tonight. Seven years after his disappearance in 1898 his mother instituted suit in the St. Louis courts to secure the insurance which she held on his life. A jury returned a verdict in her favor and declared Kimmel to be legally dead. Upon this verdict one company paid Mrs. Kimmel on a $5,000 policy. Another company which carried a $20,000 policy on Kimmel, however, fought the claim and carried the matter to higher courts. Meanwhile this company directed a country-wide search for Kimmel and finally announced to the court that Kimmel was alive.

Up until late tonight the crowds thronged the station expecting to see the prisoner, who says he lived here 13 years ago. Meantime, secluded in her little home, Mrs. Kimmel, who is 70 years old, bitterly denounced the expected visitor.

Whether the man from the penitentiary, if he is the woman's son, will insist on the fact and so deprive his mother of the $25,000 insurance, or whether on facing the woman, he will declare he is not her son, was the dramatic situation which the residents hoped to see brought to a climax. The real Kimmel is said to have left here 13 years ago. Evidence came later suggesting that he had died, and the insurance money was asked for. One life insurance company is then said to have expended thousands of dollars in running down a theory that Kimmel did not die. He was traced by Arkansas City, Kan., where, so far as his family professes to know, he was last seen.

The man answering the description of Kimmel was found in a dazed condition in St. Louis. He recovered in a hospital and later left for New York, where under the name of Andrew J. White he was arrested on a larceny charge. After more wandering he was found in an asylum in New York and afterward traced to Auburn penitentiary. This is the man who the insurance company says is the real Kimmel.

NO DECISION.

Los Angeles, Sept. 19.—Interstate Commissioner Lane today held a hearing on the Arizona rate cases, but said he would not promise a decision because in so doing he was not sure but the commission might be transcending upon the rights of Arizona, which is soon to become a state. The cases heard were those affecting shipments from California points, and one affecting shipments from Arizona to California, principally livestock.

TICKET AGENTS MEET.

St. Paul, Sept. 19.—The annual convention of the general passenger and ticket agents' association began a two days' session here today. Several important matters will be discussed, among them the charging of an extra fare for passengers using "palace" cars and a pro-rata basis of divisions.

RURAL CARRIERS GATHER.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—Rural mail carriers to the number of about 150, and representing a membership of 42,000, opened a four days' meeting in Milwaukee today. The subject of good roads is perhaps the most important to come before the meeting.

RECIPROcity CAMPAIGN CLOSES WITH SPEECHES BY PRINCIPAL LEADERS.

ELECTIONS ARE TODAY

Premier Laurier and Henri Bourassa Make Pleas for and Against the Agreement in Montreal—Setting is Even on the Government Being Sustained—Farmers Are Appealed to.

Montreal, Sept. 19.—The popularly termed "reciprocity" campaign, which has been the most bitterly contested in the history of Canada, was brought to a close tonight, when enormous outdoor meetings in French districts of this city were addressed by two leading and strikingly contrasted figures in the contest—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Henri Bourassa. Both the premier, who naturally has been reciprocity's most prominent exponent, and the national leader, whose unique opposition and propaganda probably have done more than anything else to increase the number of question marks set against names of constituencies by political forecasters, were greeted with enthusiasm typical of the politically susceptible French element of Montreal.

That reciprocity is the supreme issue and that Thursday's balloting affords an unprecedented opportunity for accelerating the Dominion's development, was the reiteration of Sir Wilfrid. That reciprocity is undesirable was insisted on by Mr. Bourassa. The folly of the government legislation for the nucleus of the Canadian navy and the necessity of perpetuating various rights and advantages enjoyed by the French-speaking population of the Dominion, were also important factors in the campaign, he asserted.

Laurier is Vigorous.

Although obviously worn by his five weeks of travel and speech-making, the premier made his appeal for reciprocity with notable vigor. He assailed those who he said have sought to insult the intelligence of the Canadian voter by persisting in the attempt to substitute the dead body of annexation for the live issue of reciprocity.

"I admire the great American republic," said the premier. "I was born in Canada. It is my native land and I do not want it merged into the American republic. Under reciprocity we shall be even better friends and furnish in the American continent an example of great peoples living on either side of an invisible line in peace and amity."

"Touching upon the opposition of reciprocity, noted in industrial centers, Sir Wilfrid declared that the manufacturer was to say the least, short-sighted. If the manufacturers persisted in refusing to accede to the request of the farmers for the American market and should make their refusal effective, he said, it would not be at all surprising if the farmers should refuse to bear the burden of the protective tariff which was fostering Canadian industries. The farmers might go even a step further and ask more drastic tariff changes, said the premier. However, he did not intend to make any threats.

Both Parties Nervous.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 19.—With the elections but a day distant, both the political parties in Canada have become perceptibly nervous. The party press and the political speeches are showing the strain and are less logical and more reckless than a week ago. Today a number of manufacturers suspended operations and ordered out their workmen to hear an anti-reciprocity address delivered in their factory yards. In Ottawa this was done by the T. D. Eddy company, of which the head is W. H. Rowley, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' association. The proprietors of a large packing plant stated to their workmen that if reciprocity carried they would have to close down. No-

BIG REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAK FACES GOVERNMENT IN SPAIN

Madrid, Sept. 19.—Spain is face to face with a crisis equal in gravity to that following the riots in Barcelona in 1909. The agitation and the power of the agitators on the masses have increased in proportion to the rigor of the repressive measures undertaken by the government.

What, at its origin, was purely a labor movement, now has developed into a revolutionary conflict, a commune having actually been proclaimed at two towns near Valencia and the authorities driven out. The affiliated trade unions have decided to call a general strike tomorrow in all Spain, and the government today decided upon the drastic step of "suspending the constitutional guarantees" throughout the country. All meetings have been forbidden. The military authorities, it is stated, officially, will not assume control except in extreme cases.

Class Ad History
CXV.—LOCATED IN ONE DAY.
It is the somewhat unusual tasks which really test the efficiency of The Missoulian class ad. There is a good deal of the class ad's work which is along regular lines; we get so that we expect it to come quickly and satisfactorily when we set it working in these directions. But we find, if we try it, that the class ad will bring returns in cases that are out of the ordinary. Here's an illustration:
WANTED—A COUNTRY GIRL TO assist in housework and care of baby in professor's family. Apply mornings at 404 Connell avenue.
One insertion of this little ad was all that was necessary to locate the girl who was wanted. She saw the ad and applied for the place; she was accepted and the class ad's task was done. Twenty cents was the expense. The class ad costs but one cent a word. If you're out of work, The Missoulian will make no charge for printing your application for a job.

BURLY TRIES TO ROB HOTEL IN KALISPELL
Kalispell, Sept. 19.—(Special)—With only his muscles as weapons, a burly man in woodsman's attire entered the Norden hotel about 3 o'clock this morning and attempted to hold up Martin Knutson, night clerk, and two Italians, who were lounging in the lobby, and after a scuffle with Knutson, in which the latter was painfully bruised, he darted out of the building, when T. J. Hillman, a lodger, was aroused by the turmoil and, seizing an iron poker, attacked the would-be robber. Night Officer Jerry Belles was hurriedly summoned and arrived just in time to seize the man as he again entered and demanded hands up of the crowd, which had assembled. When locked up, the man feigned ignorance of the occurrence and gave his name as Ed Link. He was formally charged with assault.
