The Illinois Tenderfoot paused in front of the Missoulian office yesterday morning to read the bulletin of the weather service, containing a warning of the approach of a cold wave. "Cold wave tonight. Temperature will fall 20 degrees in 24 hours—Cox." That was the way the bulletin read. And the Tenderfoot immediately brightened up. "So Cox sends 'em out here, too, does he?" he remarked. "We used to get those Chicago bulletins at home and Cox signed 'em all there. Cox got to be a joke with us and when we received his warning of a cold wave, we used to get out our thin underclothes and linen dusters. I don't know how he calls the turn out here. Maybe it's far enough away from Chicago to afford him a chance to guess it right. I'll wait and see. If Cox hits it right, I'll send word back home right away that this is a greater country even than I had thought."

Frank Licht is now in Bisbee, Arizona. He left El Paso after he had annexed all the information he could get from the "Texas" and the Mexicans and followed the straw-hat belt toward the setting sun. He evidently intends to stay down there at least until his straw hat wears out, for he has written for more money. In his letter he indulges in some interesting comment upon the conditions in the south. He also incloses one of the slips which Rodgers dropped from his airship by way of greeting as he flew over El Paso. After giving some business directions, Licht proceeds with some observations which indicate that he is regaining his normal condition of health. "I suppose it is quite cold there now, in spots," he says. "I see that we will have to go out to Hayes Spur for our Sunday beer after next month. Everything is closed up tight here, too, on Sunday, but can get plenty in Mexico across the river. I have inclosed a clipping telling of the terrible blizzard last Sunday. (Very frosty). But we had a national steering committee that was fine. They turn a Texas lougher in loose chase him, rope him and tie him so he is helpless. The best time made during the four days was 21 seconds. Flat, and I'm here to tell you that that compuncher was going some. I wouldn't agree to do it in 21 months. You can send me that draft. Traveling with a family comes high. They ask only 30 cents a dozen here for fresh eggs. Everything else is in proportion. I haven't seen anything yet that comes up to the Bitter Root. (Missoulian please copy). Regards to all." There is no doubt that Licht is getting better.

A night letter from Breitenstein to the Men About Town was delivered yesterday morning by a Western Union messenger boy. Breitenstein has seen New York on election night and will be able to describe one of the greatest sights which this entire country affords. There's nothing else in the country like the New York crowd when the returns are coming in except the New York crowd which sees the new year come in. Breitenstein's message says the crowd was great all day and that the day and night crowds all came to see the Montana exhibit. "It was a great thing all the time," says the Missoulian man, "and all of them came to see us. There are many inquiries and we are showing the McIntosh to all who come. We have a choice position in the hall; the music is right above us and we get the benefit of that. The smelt of the crowd, too, is attracting the people in it. We have all the visitors we can take care of."

Another message from New York yesterday furnished good reading. It said: "Steinhart received three cars of M'INTOSH McIntosh Reds from the Bitter Root yesterday. All of these apples sold quickly. One carload goes to Hamburg, Germany, the first car to go to a foreign port. This man Steinhart is proving a loyal booster for the McIntosh Red. As long as the Bitter Root sends him the real article in proper shape, there is no question as to his willingness or his ability to dispose of the apples at the best advantage. When Breitenstein induced him to stop in Missoula and to see the Bitter Root, he did the best stroke of business that has been done for the valley in many a year. The thing to do now is to be sure that all the apples which go out of the valley are properly sorted and properly packed. The Bitter Root can't command the world's markets if she will do that."

There were several sorts of weather yesterday for the builders at the federal building, but they didn't stop. They are gaining every day in the race with Jack Frost with the chances now in favor of beating out the freeze. The work of yesterday brought the walls almost up to the top. The roof plates and the firewall will be the last of the outside masonry and the rest will probably be accomplished without any serious trouble. It is interesting to watch the race, and there are many people who pause to see the way the stone blocks are put into place. The builders have the consistent support of the grandstand and if they do not win it will not be for lack of rooting.

FLOWERS' BEAUTY REVEALED IN BOOK

MISSOULIAN DICTIONARY EVEN TELLS WHAT BLOSSOMS MEAN TO SWEETHEARTS.

"The flowers that bloom in the spring."
To appreciate them to the full one need not be a botanist to the extent of the meaning of that word, but "amateur" knowledge enhances one's pleasure, and it may be easily gained. The Missoulian's wonderful dictionary is the key that unlocks the door to acquaint you with spring blossoms. You will find many explanations of the meaning of the names of the flowers between the limp leather covers, and in the back of the book is the full and complete guide to the language of flowers.
With that as your guide you can learn the "whys" and "wherefores" of the significance of floral nomenclature, just what certain combinations of flowers are meant to express and the appropriate flowers for certain occasions.
This to the country are always enjoyable, but with the added pleasure of an acquaintance with flowers and their blossoms the country will seem more beautiful.
There is, of course, some what might term the foolish side of the language of flowers' interpretation, but a "little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men," and if you are in the habit of sending flowers as gifts you may avoid embarrassment by knowing the rules of this flower language.
In selecting flowers for "her" you will be able to express the proper sentiment and not inadvertently say what you had no intention of saying. If she does not understand the language, well and good, you have an attractive combination of colors anyhow. If she does, you have an effective means of communication.
Six consecutive dictionary coupons clipped from The Missoulian gets the marvelous book when accompanied by the small expense bonus.
The new supply of dictionaries which has been expected for a fortnight, arrived yesterday and The Missoulian office is now able to supply the demand as long as they last. Those whose names have been listed during the time that there was no supply, may obtain the books by calling at The Missoulian office.

DISSENSION CAUSED BY AVENUE

WILL HIGGINS AVENUE BE CROOKED ONE WAY OR THE OTHER?

It doesn't seem quite fair to blame the council with the snowstorm yesterday morning, but it's getting used to taking the responsibility for a lot of things, so it might as well have a snowstorm laid at its door, also. Anyhow, no one can controvert the fact that the snow started at just the same time as did the council meeting. The man with the weather-strip, which was recently ordered by the council, appeared on the scene at the same time with the weather and the windows will probably be hermetically sealed today.
Higgins avenue is causing a lot of bother at the present time. Of course, the avenue itself can hardly be blamed because the originators of Missoula's main thoroughfare laid it out crooked, but it is causing some dissension, that much is sure. Engineers Swearingin and Buck cannot agree on how they want the curb line fixed. To the man uneducated in lines, curves, tangents and angles, the greater part of the engineers' discussion is a little technical, but once in a while a Christian word would make its appearance and enable the listener to follow the trend of the discourse. Messrs. Swearingin and Buck commenced the dissertation immediately after the council had disposed of its routine business. With admirable disregard for the gnawing pains of hunger they kept at it, until the council screamed for assistance.
At 2 o'clock they went after it again, assisted by Messrs. Inch and Bickenbach of the street car company. The horns of the dilemma are constructed somewhat as follows: The first plan makes Higgins avenue a straight line from Main street to the Northern Pacific depot. From Main street to the bridge there will be an angle. The second plan introduces the great engineering feature commonly called the reverse curve. This would make Higgins avenue run straight from the Northern Pacific depot to Cedar street, where there would be an angle. At Main street there would be another turn to equalize the bend at Cedar street. The first plan would necessitate moving the gas main, as it would bring the curbs out over their present location. Engineer Buck is the champion for this modus operandi and Engineer Swearingin has the money on the other color. The street railway officials interpolated enough objections to make the matter a trifle more complicated and round and round went the wheel. The afternoon session lasted better than two hours and when the meeting dissolved, the matter was in the same condition as when the first hat was tossed into the ring. The street car people held out for a 56-foot roadway, instead of a 43-foot thoroughfare and thereby added another angle to the discussion. It is probable that the council will settle the matter to suit itself.
The greater part of the meeting which was not consumed in engineering matters was devoted to considering the reports of the various officers. Fire Chief Fox, as building inspector, reported that $6,875 worth of construction had been authorized. Judge Small gave official notice that he had enriched the city coffers by $1,074 through the medium of fines. To offset the credit, he imposed for jail sentence aggregating 147 days. Commissioner T. A. Price reported the expenditure of $947.43 on street and park work. General street work was responsible for $748.65 of this total.
City Clerk Murphy and City Treasurer Hatheway have no reports to make until the end of the month. They will switch their official bulletins on the condition of the city's finances until the end of the month, as there is little to do at that time. The heavy sewer business also interfered with the preparation of the reports and will include two months' business.

ST. PAUL IS TO GET OUR EXHIBIT

THE WESTERN MONTANA EXHIBIT AT THE NEW YORK LAND SHOW WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO THE BIG ST. PAUL LAND SHOW WHICH IS TO BE HELD NEXT MONTH.

The western Montana exhibit at the New York land show will be transferred to the big St. Paul land show which is to be held next month. This was decided at a noonday meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday, upon receipt of a letter from P. S. Lusk who is now in New York, combined with the indorsement of Secretary Breitenstein. There was no dissenting voice at the meeting yesterday and the proposition received cordial approval.
In his letter, which brought the matter before the chamber of commerce, Mr. Lusk spoke pleasantly of the work which has been done by Breitenstein and his associates. He said, in part: "Our Montana exhibit is installed in excellent shape and is attracting plenty of attention. Breitenstein, Dean and White worked like beavers and were about the only people ready for the opening yesterday. Mrs. Van Cleve is a great worker, also, and deserves much credit for her efforts to exploit Montana, more than she will get, I judge. I have not been able to do much myself, but I was not needed anyway, as the people we sent fill the bill just about the best ever. Mr. Breitenstein has talked to me about the St. Paul land show and it seems to me it would be rounding out our publicity work and promotion efforts in great shape if we were to ship our exhibits there from here. We have enough of everything but fruit, the cost would be almost nominal under the recent offers of the show people and the men are willing to do that extra work as long as they are in it, believing the results will justify the effort."

President Kellogg read this letter, which contained, further, some details regarding cost and arrangement, and the matter received immediate indorsement. The St. Paul show will be specially noteworthy and is a part of the promotion plan of the Northwest Land League. The secretary of the league has sent the following outline of plan and purpose to The Missoulian: "The Northwestern Land League was organized for the purpose of securing a united effort to attract the attention of settlers and capital to the opportunities offered by the states south of the international boundary and west of the lakes, as an offset to the tremendous effort that has been made in the past. It is being made now, and will be made in the future by the railways to the south and the southwest, and by the Canadian government and the railways to the north. In the past these states have only gotten a dribble from these two systematic efforts, but in the future they will try to get their share of the westward tide of immigration.
Upon the organization of the League of States, it was determined to have a land show at the Twin Cities as a principal means of attracting attention directly to this intermediate and rich territory. In assisting the effort, the Twin Cities people generously contributed at a cost of $1,000, 500 feet of floor space to Montana, and now it is up to Montana to see that its resources and its varied products are displayed in this space, and, although this does not take much, of necessity it will take some money. The other states will have handsome displays artistically arranged, and this respect.
The total cost of this advertising will be about a bagatelle of its real value to every interest and every part of this state—and you will appreciate the fact that Montana is a advertiser of its resources, is far ahead of the other states, and that as a result, while our resources are so much greater, we have stood comparatively still, while other communities have been keeping step in the race of progress.
If Montana is to grow and develop and become anything like the great and rich state its resources more than warrant, it has got to wake up, for itself, and tell the world about itself. If it is to grow as it should, it must in the future tell the world a thousand times more persistently and extensively of itself than it has in the past, and, if it is to do this, the live wires of every community must take an active and unflinching interest in everything legitimate that will promote the general interest.
One of the necessities of showing at the Twin Cities is the payment of involved expenses, and the committee in discussing ways and means in company with Governor Norris, decided that the first and best means, in consideration of the fact that every county will be represented in the state's display, would be to ask each county to make an appropriation from its public funds of the small sum of $150, and every county making this appropriation will just produce the funds necessary to allow this state to keep up its end with North and South Dakota, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, which states I am informed did and have already secured their funds. It certainly cannot be any hardship on any county to make this small contribution, and it is an expense, the payment of which very properly, should come from the people.
To secure this money at once is as important as the money itself, as the work to be done by Montana and its portion of the league expenses, must be done and paid now, and the commission is anxious to have your county commissioners impressed with the importance of taking immediate and favorable action in the premises.
With a full understanding of the necessities of the situation, it needs to be sure that there is no county in the state that will decline to make the appropriation, as by shirking it, it would throw its share of the burden upon other counties, and perhaps involve the failure of the whole proposition, so far as Montana is concerned.

DAMAGES FOR INSULTS.
Butte, Nov. 8.—(Special)—Marie Glazer filed a suit against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company today, asking for $2,000 damages for alleged insults she was subjected to and for being ejected from a train of that company by the conductor. The plaintiff sets forth that without any cause whatever she was abused and insulted by the conductor just after the train left Paradise, Mont., and called a liar, the conductor declaring that when the train reached Thompson Falls he would eject her. On arriving at Thompson Falls, according to the complaint, the conductor forcibly ejected her from the train.

AS TO HILL COUNTY.
Helena, Nov. 8.—(Special)—In an opinion handed down by the supreme court today it is held that the commissioners of Chouteau county must consider a counter petition relating to the creation of Hill county, in which the petitioners request the elimination of a certain area. The commissioners refused to consider it because the time in which it should have been filed had expired. The court says it must hear it, and if the facts are sufficient exclude the territory from the proposed new county.

DR. E. M. RUNDQUIST THINKS THE GERMS ARE IN THE CREEK WATER.

Dr. E. M. Rundquist said yesterday that three or four cases of typhoid fever had been reported to him from the Rattlesnake district. While he has not yet had opportunity to make a thorough investigation he is positive that the cases are confined to the people that are using the water directly from the creek and are not getting their supply from the city mains. The city health officer stated that he was convinced in regard to the origin of the typhoid as the fly season is past and the water supply is the only other probable source of infection. Dr. Rundquist will make a thorough investigation of the different cases today so as to make certain of the disease's source.
"Boil every bit of water you use," said Dr. Rundquist, "if you are taking it directly from the creek. I want to make that point emphatic. Put it so that no one can misunderstand it. It is almost a certainty that the typhoid is only in the families that use water not from the city mains."
