Ask Dunigan

Several years ago a farmer in Wisconsin, who was getting along pretty well, thought he would like to buy a good farm adjoining his—both he and his wife concluded they wanted the place for one of the sons who, in a few years, would need a home of his own. Through diligent economy they saved $1,500, but instead of depositing the money in a bank it was placed in "a hole in the wall" of the home formed by rafters. After a time it was decided to close the land deal and Mr. Farmer in buoyant spirits and a light step mounted the stairs leading to the dusty unused attic, and placing his hand in his "bank" was horrified to find that mice had made chaff of his money. With great difficulty he gathered up the remnants, and then it occurred to him to go to a real bank. In some instances there were sufficient particles found to identify bills, and with proper affidavit the treasury department redeemed them, but where no description could be obtained the department could not redeem, as there is no fund to redeem currency which cannot be described. Ask Dunigan where he keeps his money now.

The best of everything in the market

With the dust of the battle settled and the noise of the conflict still, there's just one thing for each to do—and that is to get in and drill. Drill for a bigger Missoula, drill for a better town; drill for a decent city, a city with fair renown; drill for livelier business, drill for all that is best; drill to make Missoula the best town in the west; drill for the local merchant, drill for Missoula trade; drill for the home consumption of all that's Missoula-made; drill for the pull-together, drill for the town that's home; drill for the best little city that's under Heaven's dome; drill for the start of paving, drill for a city bright; drill for a city of gardens; drill for all that's right; drill for the men elected; drill to help them win; drill for a good, clean city—now is the time to begin. There's a chance for each to do something, a chance for each who will; there's just one thing for each to do and that is to get in and drill.

One of Commissioner Price's first acts yesterday morning was to make the people, who are forced to traverse the bridge, CLEANED, happy, by putting a force of men at work removing the dirt which had accumulated to a considerable depth. The men made a good job of it and the appearance of the bridge was much better after they had finished polishing it up. During the windy days of the dust from the bridge caused much annoyance and Commissioner Price's action meets with universal approval.

The grief that comes with official positions began early yesterday morning in cloud the bright skies for the recently elected city officers. There are always many people who are willing to serve the city and they were out in force yesterday. Many were the self-sacrificing citizens, who dragged the commissioners and mayor out of their holes and told them what they could do and how well they could do it. There are already several applicants for the various positions of city treasurer, clerk and police judge. If the present rate is maintained for a few days the officers will have a large list from which to make their selections.

Down the avenue yesterday morning came a procession which spelled election bet while still in the distance. Enthroned on a wheelbarrow, which had been carefully covered with paper, sat the victor and walking in the shafts behind was the man whose judgment had been at fault. Hung around the neck of the man in the barrow was a card reading, "I won." The motive power was similarly decorated with a card bearing the inscription, "I lost." The man, who was getting the ride, was cheering for Rhoades, while the one behind seemed to be his rival to say. The joyride continued to the Higgins avenue bridge and back to the Northern Pacific. The procession attracted no little attention and the man being pushed seemed to enjoy the affair greatly.

Back to Missoula has come Allen J. Olson from his swing around the circuit. Mr. Olson arrived in Missoula in time to cast his ballot and is perfectly satisfied with the results of the election. Mrs. Olson accompanied her husband on his long journey. From Missoula, Mr. and Mrs. Olson left for the coast and visited at nearly all of the important cities. Mr. Olson stopped in Pendleton, Ore., to inspect the work which his firm is doing there and in Olympia, where he bid on a large contract. From the coast, the couple swung around to Salt Lake, Denver and Kansas City were visited on the way east. Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Scranton, Philadelphia, New York city, Washington, Mt. Vernon and Pittsburgh were visited in the east. They returned to Missoula after stopping at several points in Minnesota. At New Ulm, Minn., Mr. Olson visited for a time with his relatives. "We saw everything worth seeing," said Mr. Olson. "I don't think we missed anything anywhere along the route." The Carnegie steel works at Pittsburgh were the most wonderful sights we saw. One cannot comprehend the magnitude of this plant, unless one goes through carefully. Business conditions seem to me to be improving all the time. The financial market seems to be strong and, while many firms have gone out of business, it is easy enough for the larger ones to obtain money. Missoula averages up well with other towns I visited. Of course, there were some where business conditions were better, but there were also many where business was not so good as it is in Missoula. We certainly enjoyed every minute of the trip and are glad to be back in the home town."

A POOR BLOCK
The accident-insurance man was blue yesterday morning. He had laid out a certain side of a certain block for his half-day's work and he had run up against a condition that was decidedly not a theory. "I started at one end," he said, "and I saw that the men working there sold and handled machinery. I referred to my book and found that the company regarded such work as hazardous. These men could not be insured against breaking a leg or arm or against the festive banana peel. Hopefully, I walked on. The next shop was an electrician's. I didn't even hesitate there. Next was a harness shop; a look at the book told me that the company didn't insure men who work at that trade. I was pretty sure that the people in the next-door restaurant could take out policies if I could talk them into it. The next door the book put a damper on that, because of the gasoline used, I suppose, or on account of the danger from irate customers. Also, the tailor in the block was immune. couldn't be insured, I know, and there was another school in the block, not to mention a wholesale-liquor house. The machinery stricture kept me out of the hardware store of the block. Finally, I came to a place where I could work a dry goods store. I entered gaily, but I sold no policies; they were all insured, or they were too busy to talk to me. It was a tough morning."

LOCAL SOCIETY

At the Hawthorne School.
The women's auxiliary of the Orchard Homes Country Life club will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Hawthorne school. All ladies residing in Orchard Homes are cordially invited to be present to hear the interesting program that will be presented.

A Section Meeting.
Members of Mrs. Chaffin's section of the Lead-A-Hand society will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. B. Maxwell, 509 Brooks street. A good attendance is urged, since business of importance is to be transacted.

A Choir Social.
Mrs. J. Wilson Moore and Ray Baily had a pleasant social hour for the choir of the Presbyterian's church at Mrs. Moore's home Monday evening after rehearsal. There were 19 members of the choir, and Dr. and Mrs. Maclean, Mrs. A. C. Church, W. H. Bunney and J. H. McJunkin to enjoy the good time, which consisted mainly of a splendid supper and music. In the center of the supper table, Mrs. Moore had a large bandbox frosted to simulate a cake, with narrow red ribbons trailing over the sides, each one when pulled by a guest producing something funny in the way of an April fool gift. Some of the candy offered to the guests also had a flavor of April 1, but most of the refreshments were honestly delicious.

For Two Birthdays.
Members of a Kensington club whose mysterious name is "Ela Ata Phi," assembled at the home of Mrs. Roy Liston on North Third street, Monday afternoon to celebrate the birthdays of Mrs. Liston and Mrs. George Wasson. Both ladies were presented with pieces of beautiful hand-painted china in remembrance of the anniversary. An interesting game of whist was played, prizes being won by Mrs. J. L. Osborn and Mrs. Percy Kendall, and then a delicious lunch was enjoyed. Those present were: Mesdames George Pease, C. I. Johnson, George Wasson, Percy Kendall, E. G. Price, J. L. Osborn, Roy Liston, Edward Carlson, Andy Denton, Long, Currie, Hayden and J. H. Mercer of Portland, Ore.

Practical Service Meeting.
The Alpha chapter of the high school Young Women's Christian association had a good meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. B. Henley. The purpose of the meeting was to work for the benefit of those not so fortunate, and excellent headway was made with piecing quilt blocks, making scrapbooks and picture stories. Plans were also made for future work and for the visit of Miss Frances Gage, general secretary for the northwest, next Tuesday afternoon. Those present yesterday were: Mrs. J. G. Ambrose, Mrs. Henley, the Misses Josie Jones, Beth Hershey, Aileen Ambrose, Irene Murray, Elizabeth Kiele, Gertrude Orr, Anna Belle Rehder and Florence Thompson.

Departments to Elect.
The civic and social and domestic science sections of the Missoula Woman's club, which have become consolidated for future work, will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Taylor B. Thompson for the election of officers. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock.

ISIS MAKES DONATION TO HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

The Isis theater has offered to assist the high school students in their work of fitting up a track on which the local team may train for the coming interscholastic meet. On Thursday night the management of the theater will donate a substantial part of the receipts to the cause of helping the high-school track team in its work. The boys are making a struggle for a track on which to get their workout, as the interscholastic rules forbid their using the university track. They appreciate the offer of the Isis managers and are lining things up so as to have a record-breaking attendance at the Isis on Thursday evening.

RICHLY SATISFYING IS RECITAL

R. L. SCHOFIELD, SPOKANE ORGANIST, AND LOCAL MUSICIANS PLEASE GOOD AUDIENCE.

A musical treat, richly satisfying, was the organ recital given at the Methodist church last evening by Robert L. Schofield, organist at the Grace Baptist church in Spokane, assisted by Fier Gustav Fischer, violinist, Sydney R. Inch, baritone, Mrs. S. R. Inch and Hans Fischer, accompanists. An audience of about 200 music lovers sat enthralled by the artistic interpretation rendered of the splendid numbers on the program. Most of the numbers chosen by Mr. Schofield last evening were those requiring delicacy and refinement of expression, or those rich in deep, throbbing tenderness. He played just enough of the loud, brilliant style of composition to show his audience that he was master of that style if he chose to use it. Each of the local musicians who had a part in the program last evening was greeted with well-merited enthusiasm, each being a high favorite in musical circles.

FORTY-ONE WEEKS FOR EXPOSITION

PANAMA-PACIFIC FAIR WILL LAST THE LONGEST OF ANY YET HELD.

San Francisco, April 2.—The Panama-Pacific exposition will open on Saturday, February 26, 1915, and close on Saturday, December 4, 1915, after a season of 41 weeks.

After the board of directors had reached this decision today, President Charles C. Moore said: "I believe that nowhere else in the world, except on the Pacific coast, could a city hold an exposition for this period, and, of course, from an exhibitor's standpoint, the longer the exposition, consistent with the attendance, the better for the exhibitor, whether nation or individual. "A 12 months' duration would be possible with our climate, and personally, I favored it, but it was decided finally that the dates selected would advance the standard of duration over previous exhibitions as much as would be justified at this time. The seven-months' period of the St. Louis exposition has been the longest to date." John Brisben Walker, formerly editor and owner of the Cosmopolitan magazine, was appointed today director of exploitation of the exposition.

GALESBURG GOES WET.

Galesburg, Ill., April 2.—Galesburg voted wet today by a majority of 273 in a local option election. The city had been dry. Women worked at the polls for the dry side. While some served light refreshments to voters others held prayer meetings in various parts of the city.
