

SOCIETY

The beauty and fragrance of summer flowers have been greatly in evidence at all the social functions in Missoula this week. Roses from many gardens, peonies, wild syringa from the mountain sides, clover and daisies from the fields, have been carried indoors to adorn rooms in honor of expected guests. Each hostess has expressed her own personality in original and artistic disposal of the masses of bloom. It is a pretty custom, one to be cherished and developed because it is so sweet a compliment to the guest and so pleasant a means of expression for the hostess.

Another notable feature of the summer social life is the presence of more than 100 students in the summer school of the university. Many of these young people are teachers from other cities in the state. They bring in a fresh viewpoint; they are enthusiastic in their enjoyment of Missoula and they are delightful to know.

With the June complement of weddings and picnics, functions in compliment to numerous guests of distinction, and the hospitality due the summer-school students, there is no lack of social diversion.

A Bridge Luncheon.

Mrs. Edgar Polleys and Miss Josephine Polleys gave a bridge luncheon Friday afternoon, in compliment to Mrs. Henri De Galler, who is here from Los Angeles. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and following that delightful function there was a lively game of bridge played by the young ladies who were accommodated at six tables. Masses of mountain syringa and pink peonies added their touch of color and fragrance to the pretty scene.

Cards have been received by friends in Missoula announcing the marriage of Miss Harriette Pearl Geiger and Charles Earnest Randels in Salt Lake City, Saturday, June 22. Mr. and Mrs. Randels will be at home to their friends after September 1, in Mohrland, Utah. Miss Geiger has taught for several years in the rural schools of Missoula county and she has many friends in Missoula and vicinity.

To Meet Mrs. Runette.

Mrs. Edward Mitchell asked a large company of friends to her home at Fort Missoula Friday afternoon to meet Mrs. Wilson Runette the sister of Captain Mitchell, who is a guest in their home. More than 100 ladies called between the hours of 3:30 and 6:30 o'clock. They were received by the hostess as the guest of honor, assisted by Mesdames Leonard, Von dem Busche, Ruffner, Wood, Thompson and Miss Ona Sloane. The Misses Jeanne Sloane, Giella Schlossberg and Juliette Deschamps served the guests in the dining room. A profusion of summer flowers in yellow and white, snapdragons, brown-eyed Susans and syringas, made a beautiful color harmony through the rooms, which was followed in refreshments and guest favors.

A Strawberry Social.

The Women's auxiliary to the Orchard Homes Country Life club held a successful strawberry and ice cream social, Thursday evening, in the clubhouse. The entertainment was varied in character and every one of the large number of guests from town and country found pleasure in his liking. There were summer dainties to eat, ice cream, cake and strawberries; there were reports from the ladies who went as delegates to the State Federation of Women's Clubs in convention at Butte last week. Miss Spurgin, Miss Cottery and Miss Cora St. Germain gave live and interesting accounts of what they heard and saw in Butte. There were also musical numbers rendered by Mrs. Parker, Mrs. McGregor and Miss Lenore Hemrick, and later in the evening F. J. Erfert furnished music for those who cared to dance. The club colors of green and white found place in decorations of wild flowers.

A Rose Tea.

Mrs. G. F. Peterson and Mrs. A. L. Duncan, were at home to their friends yesterday afternoon, in Mrs. Peterson's lovely home which was made a veritable bower of roses for the occasion. Invitations to the number of 200 had been issued and nearly that number of ladies called. Standing with the two hostesses, was Mrs. Mollie Wallace of Seattle, who was welcomed by very many friends. Arriving guests were greeted and shown through the rooms by Mesdames E. H. Freeze, J. B. Henley, D. J. Donohue, J. J. Lucy, W. H. Buford and Miss Josephine Hathaway. The Misses Ethel Hughes and Bess Wilde served punch in the reception room, from a table banked with roses and mountain syringa. In the dining room, Mrs. Agnes Lombard and Mrs. W. R. Parsons poured coffee, while the Misses Grace Buford, Dorothy Wilkinson, Ruth McHaffie, Dorothy and Gladys Peterson served the daintily appointed trays. A profusion of great fragrant pink roses found place upon the handsome lace covering of the table, each tray had one of the roses for a guest favor and each plate bore a pink rose of ice cream, frozen in fac simile of the natural rose. So much of summer fragrance and beauty added to the dainty summer colors of the gowns worn by the ladies present made the tea a delight to look at as well as a charming social function. One of the happy impromptu features, was the singing of several numbers by Miss Ethel Hughes and Miss Olive Wheeler, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Lombard.
