Should not be less than 14 karat, because if a mounting is less than the standard grade the prongs will not last, but break off. Insist on a 14 karat mount. All our mountings are guaranteed 14 karat, and are all hand made, not cast like a piece of iron. Bring your stones to us and we will set them in a mounting you will be proud of. The hobbleskirt was had enough, but now we have the sheath; it's drawn so snugly it reveals just what is underneath; the hobbles held the ankles close, but the sheath is all-way tight; with mincing steps its wearer walks, she cannot stride off right; opinions on the sheath range wide—it's viewed from many slants; but from the point of modesty, I think it's worse than pants; considered economically, the sheath's all to the good—it takes of cloth about a half of what a real skirt would; hygienically regarded, the sheath's no good at all—its wearer gets no exercise; for she would trip and fall; it develops wondrous bravery; for they are brave who dare—and they dare much, with portly shapes, who seek the sheath to wear; but there's great ingenuity required to wear this dress—how some of them squeeze into it, is a puzzle I can't guess; and marvelous is the fortitude demanded by this skirt—a 40 shape in a 30 sheath—that certainly must hurt; the street car step, the sidewalk curb, a ditch that's two feet wide—all these the sheath-gown wearer can't compass with her stride; yet, of the sheath-skirt problems, these few are not the worst—some day, with seams long over-strained, a sheath will surely burst.

She was dressed in the latest fashion and her Junoesque figure showed to good advantage under the purple-colored gown. Surmounting the whole was a large picture hat decorated with a long and waving plume. Taken as a whole her get-up might be characterized as chic, fetching, right-up-to-the-minute and snappy. She ambled along the street in the most approved hobbles style. But, alas, old man Nemesis was just a lap behind and coming fast. He arrived just as Heeson & Armstrong's corner was reached. It was there that the denouement occurred. Did she forget that her form was encased in a tube-like garment? Maybe. Anyhow, it appeared as if the accident might be attributable to forgetfulness. When the corner was reached her right leg swung out for the pavement below. However, the hobbles got in its work right here. The skirt tightened on the left support and pulled it out from under. She was assisted to her feet by two interested bystanders and after some brushing the parade resumed its march.

Among the assets added to the University of Montana by the session of summer school which closes today, by no means the least is the satisfaction of the young women who have made their home in Craig hall during the six weeks' term. All the 25 young ladies are leaving for their homes in far corners of the state carrying high praise for the comfortable and homelike habitation afforded them. Miss Isabel Austin, who is dean of women at the University of Washington in Seattle, with last year just 993 young women in her charge, and these young women living in two dormitories and 12 sorority houses, said yesterday to a Missoulian reporter: "Your Craig hall here in Missoula is the cleanest and best conducted women's dormitory I have seen in my extended travels through states both east and west. The meals here are the best in the way of balanced menu and good cooking that I have found served anywhere for the same amount of money. Miss Brewer has endeared herself to all the summer-school girls who have had her for their house mother and she deserves every bit of their affection."

It was about 10 o'clock when a noise was heard on the office steps. The noise grew louder and soon took shape in the form of R. Bezancon and T. Cummings, who had just returned from a fishing trip up the Battlement. The expedition started from the Cummings ranch and lasted for only a few hours, but the day must have been ideal for fishing as the net proceeds of the trip were sure fire. With the two anglers came about 200 trout and there were some beauties among them. One hole was responsible for about 20 of the speckled boys, and according to the two fishermen, that kind of luck was present all day. The fish made a nice appearance when the artists opened the baskets and packages that were piled around on them. They had fish in every pocket and their pockets were large.

This week the Puget Sound has commenced running a sort of passenger service on the Blackfoot road as far as Potosi. A switch engine and caboose compose the equipment of the daily passenger train. The accommodation leaves Bonner at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and returns at 4:30, in time to catch the car for Missoula. While the service isn't much it helps the residents of the Blackfoot a great deal and is appreciated by the ones who had to make the trip to Bonner by vehicle or on foot.

B. & A. STORE READY FOR SALE RUSH

PREPARATIONS ARE COMPLETE FOR THIS MORNING'S OPENING AT BIG ESTABLISHMENT.

At the close of sale preparations last evening at the B. & A. store everyone concerned heaved a happy sigh of relief. The endeavors of all connected with the store to launch the sale successfully have been strenuous and all is now in readiness for this morning's opening. Ray Beardsley, who prepares advertising material for the big store, has been busy making a big attractive cloth sign which will extend along the top of the display windows. This is merely an event of many in connection with the work that has been done relative to the sale. In The Missoulian today there appears a full page advertisement which proclaims the various reductions which have been made in nearly every line of wearing apparel, foot and head gear contained in the store. Many of these reductions have been made regardless of the cost of the articles involved and many savings will be found possible during the progress of this selling event. Messrs. Armstrong and Wingert, who are in charge of the store, were more than pleased with the outlook of a successful sale period last evening. They expressed themselves as being more than confident that the sale would prove to be one of the most important in the history of the B. & A. store. "Conditions are just right for a sale of this kind," they said, "and we are more than satisfied that the results from the advertising we have been doing and the preparations we have made will be exceptionally large. Our merchandise is of all the latest patterns and goods and there is really no other occasion for this sale than that it is one of our yearly policies. As we have stated, the goods placed on sale are entirely up to our standard of quality, the prices have been greatly reduced and we are sure that everyone will take advantage of the opportunity for economy offered by the sale."

City Attorney Woody's failure to return has temporarily tied up city affairs. The matters pending before the council are all of a nature requiring legal advice before they are acted on. Mayor Rhoades was yesterday attempting to locate the city attorney on the long-distance telephone, and although he had no success, he stated that another council meeting would be attempted in the morning. Three council meetings have been called and postponed on account of Mr. Woody's absence and the county attorney was pressed into service yesterday to try a case involving the violation of the rooming-house ordinance. It is expected that Mr. Woody will get here in time for this morning's meeting.

USES OF LODGEPOLE AND LARCH

WEISS OF MADISON FOREST LABORATORY CONFERS WITH SILCOX REGARDING PLANS.

Howard Weiss, acting director of the Madison laboratory of the forest service, arrived in the city yesterday for a conference with District Forester Silcox concerning the work of the service under the head of products. This conference was to have been held in Portland several weeks ago, but there was a change in plans and Mr. Weiss came to Missoula instead. There were two principal subjects discussed by these gentlemen yesterday. One was a plan for the investigation of larch wood, which grows in large amounts in this field district. The utilization of this wood, the best method of treating it with preservatives and other things in connection with encouraging its more general use are included in the larch problem to be worked out. The other matter was in reference to lodgepole pine in this district, of which there is 4,000,000 acres now growing. Its uses are chiefly for telephone poles and pulp. After the conference yesterday it was thought that perhaps one man may be detailed in this district to make a study of the uses for these two species of timber and to conduct the experiments which are to be outlined.

GRAZING MAN HOME FROM NORTH MONTANA

C. H. Adams, assistant district forester in charge of grazing, has returned from Great Falls and a trip through the Jefferson national forest inspecting grazing conditions. Mr. Adams stated that the ranges everywhere were showing splendidly. "The season in that part of the state is a little late," said Mr. Adams, "but the range now is in mighty good shape. The sheepmen and cowmen are all feeling satisfied. Stock wintered well, there has been a good percentage of increase and now the wool clip has been sold at a big figure and beef is very high. "Haying will be two weeks late on account of the backward season. The crop is exceptionally heavy and of fine quality."

SUPERINTENDENT LIKES LOCAL INDIAN SCHOOLS

Charles S. Pierce, superintendent of United States Indian schools for the fifth district, arrived in Missoula yesterday after a careful inspection of Flathead reservation schools. He held a long conference with Mrs. Pearl T. Marshall, county superintendent of schools, concerning educational work among the Indians within her territory, and expressed himself as highly pleased with the remarkable efficiency shown in the schools there. He leaves this morning but is expected back within three months. Mr. Pierce's headquarters is at Washington, D. C.

STEAMER IS SHIPPED.

Captain Roberts of the Dixon-Sloane Transportation company was in Missoula yesterday in connection with some legal business concerning the establishment of a steaming service between Dixon and Buffalo landing, a point six miles below Polson on the Flathead river. The boat that the company will operate has been shipped from Portland and will be unloaded at Dixon. It is a stern-wheel steamer, 89 feet long and 20 feet deep, double decked.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Laurin Lodge, No. 11, Knights of Pythias, installed officers Wednesday evening as follows: Christ Anderson, chancellor; commander, F. E. Ward, vice; J. A. Cavender, master of finance; W. D. Kendrick, master of ceremonies; J. W. Reely, master of work; A. B. Maxwell, master-at-arms; W. E. Silwell, inner guard; William Reely, outer guard.

SUMMER TERM END COMES TODAY

ATTENDANCE AT UNIVERSITY HAS EXCEEDED EXPECTATIONS BY FIFTY.

The University of Montana will conclude its first summer school session today. The six weeks' term ends July 20, and already the students are preparing to wind up their work and return to their homes for a month's vacation. Never has the University of Montana undertaken anything which has been marked from the very outset with such brilliant success as attended the summer school. When plans were made for the summer schedule it was not expected that there would be more than 50 students; today a few more than 100 are taking daily class work. The interest which has been taken in the work of the school and the response which people have made to the opportunity given them to attend a summer school shows well enough that the state was ready for it.

The school has done notable work during the past month and a half. The faculty, under Director George F. Reynolds, was made up of some of the most capable people in the country, and the work it has done has been of the highest order. Many of the regular university faculty remained at their posts during the summer, but several taught in other schools, exchanging places with teachers from different parts of the country. Professor W. G. Bateman of Stanford was in charge of the department of chemistry. Professor Harkins having gone to the University of Chicago; Herbert C. Childs of Columbia university took the place of Dr. W. F. Book, who taught in Columbia summer school during the last session. Sheldon G. Ball of the Portland public schools was instructor in intermediate education, Miss Nettie Sawyer of the Seattle public schools taught primary methods and Miss Ruth Carpenter of Chicago was instructor in playground work.

It was in the department of education that the most notable work was done. The courses in the other departments amounted practically to a repetition of the regular fall and winter work. In the work in education, however, the courses were broadened in order that the school teachers of the state might take work which would be of direct benefit to them. Courses in education, in intermediate education, in primary education, in public school music and in supervised play were offered. Nearly a fourth of the summer school students were public school teachers, and every one of these took the courses in education. The work was done well and its influence will undoubtedly be widely felt in the public schools during the coming year.

"What Makes Good Meat?"

We are often asked. Answer too long for this space. You may be surprised to know how much (healthy cattle and scientific slaughtering as a basis) depends on the retail butcher. It's the way we have of storing, handling, cutting and serving that makes this meat market stand out as one worth patronizing.
