HARVESTER TRUST FILES ANSWER SAYS THERE HAS BEEN NO RESTRAINT OF TRADE UNDER THE SHERMAN LAW. St. Paul, Aug. 5.—The answer of the International Harvester company to the bill filed by the United States under the Sherman anti-trust law was filed today in the United States district court at St. Paul. The answer denies specifically all charges of restraint of trade, monopoly and unfair business practices. It alleges that prior to the formation of the company, in 1902, the Harvester business had been conducted in a wasteful manner, detrimental alike to manufacturers, retail dealers and consumers, that only the two largest manufacturers had profitable business, while the business of others was decreasing and had become hazardous and unprofitable. The International Harvester company, it was stated, was not an unlawful combination, but a new company formed with ample capital in order to secure large economies in manufacturing, by producing more cheaply the raw materials, by enlarging facilities and correcting wasteful methods of distribution, by expanding the foreign trade and by better organized experimental and inspection departments. Any monopoly through patents is denied, the original basic patents on binders and mowers having expired prior to 1902. The detailed statements of earnings and profits contained in the answer show that in the first eight years the dividends paid averaged only 5.92 per cent on the fully paid capital stock and the total earnings only 7.15 per cent and that the main expansion in the company's business has been gained in the new lines of implements and the foreign trade, which has increased from about $10,000,000 in 1903 to over $42,000,000 in 1911. It is held that the company has active and increasing competition, the number of competitors in binders being eight with an aggregate capital of more than $100,000,000; in other lines competitors number from 14 in mowers to 151 in gasoline engines. The answer declares that the prices of harvesting machinery have increased about 3 per cent over 1903 while the machines have been improved in quality and the materials and labor entering into their manufacture have increased on the average of 25 per cent. As to binder twine, the answer asserts that since the company was formed, the wholesale price of sisal twine has fallen from 11 to 6 1/2 cents a pound and of manila twine from 13 1/2 cents to 7 1/2 cents a pound; further, that the company has expended more than $1,000,000 in the effort to produce binder twine from American-grown flax, which, if successful, will keep within the United States $20,000,000 now expended annually for imported sisal and manila fibres.

The wages and conditions of its employees, the answer says, have been improved by the Harvester company to an extent impossible under trade conditions existing prior to 1902; wages have been increased fully 27 per cent; profit-sharing systems have been established; sanitary and safety appliances installed; a liberal plan of workmen's compensation put into effect with a benefit department providing sick and death benefits for employees and a generous pension system. It is further declared that the company has given wide publicity to its business and in 1906 invited a full investigation by the department of commerce and labor; that since 1907 the bureau of corporations had been given free access to its books and records and every facility for obtaining complete information as to its business policies and methods; that since 1907 the company has filed with the bureau of corporations its annual reports covering all its business operations and that it welcomes the utmost publicity and public supervision and is ready and desirous of remedying any defects or mismanagement in its business; that relying upon the advice of able legal counsel as to the entire legality of its organization the company has made enormous investments in developing its foreign and domestic trade and that its stock has been purchased by the general public and more than 3,800 employees who have received stock under the company's profit-sharing plans. The answer insists that the United States government, having for 19 years full knowledge of the company's organization and methods and of the beneficial effect upon trade and the public, after thousands of employees and others have made large investments in its stock, should not be permitted in a court of equity to urge that the corporation is illegal and should be destroyed. PROGRESSIVE KEYNOTE BY BEVERIDGE (Continued From Page One) selves shall nominate, as well as elect, all candidates for office, including senators and presidents of the United States." "Mr. Beveridge said American business is uncertain and unsteady compared with the business of other nations. "What then," he asked, "must we do to make American business better? We must do what other nations have done. We must end the abuses of business by striking down these abuses instead of striking down business itself. We must try to make little business big and all business honest instead of striving to make big business little and yet letting it remain dishonest. As the Sherman law now stands no two business men can arrange their mutual affairs and be sure that they are not lawbreakers. Under the decrees of the courts, the oil and tobacco trusts still can raise prices unjustly and already have done so." The speaker declared the progressive party will accomplish reforms vital to American business. "We mean to put new business laws on our statute books," he said, "which will tell American business men what they can do and what they cannot do. The next great business reform we must have to steadily increase American prosperity is to change the method of building our tariffs. The tariff must be taken out of politics and treated as a business instead of a political question. The greatest need of business is certain, but the only thing certain about our tariff is uncertainty. Next to our need to make the Sherman law modern, understandable and just, our greatest fiscal need is a genuine permanent, non-partisan tariff commission. "A tariff high enough to give American producers the American market when they make honest goods and sell them at honest prices, but low enough so when they sell dishonest goods and at dishonest prices foreign competition can correct both evils; a tariff high enough to enable American producers to pay our workmen American wages and so arranged that the workmen will get such wages; a business tariff whose changes will be so made as to reassure business instead of disturbing it—this is the tariff and the methods of its making in which the progressive party believes. "The Payne-Aldrich laws must be revised immediately in addition to these principles. Abolition of child labor in factories, mines and sweatshops, and a plan for old-age pensions were included in the progressive platform by the speaker, who incidentally favored woman suffrage. "Never doubt that we will solve in righteousness and wisdom every vexing problem," said Mr. Beveridge toward the conclusion of his address.
