The first game's gone. By boot and muff. Let's cut it out. They've got enough.

The tail-enders made the leaders look like a had bet yesterday, 7 to 2. Helena's win was due to a combination of boots and bases on balls.

The home talent made more errors in yesterday's game than in all the scraps of the Salt Lake series, almost twice as many.

Bryan was reached for six hits, which is the exact total secured by Helena off the joint deliveries of Cochrane and Coyne.

The details are not fit to print. Here is the score:

INFORMATION?

(By PUT.) When your nerves are rasped and weary And you're sore, And you swear you'll fight the dreary, Fight no more. You can find true consolation, If you call up "information" With a rabid, crabbed query, For the score.

For although she's told the inning And the score To a thousand voices dinning, Maybe more; She is patient and unflurried Just as if she never hurried, When she tells you who is winning And what for.

All your petty, little troubles Fade away; They are merely empty bubbles, Merely play, Set beside an occupation Such as giving information To ten thousand of your doubles Every day.

AS IT LOOKS

At that, we're still on top. Doesn't that give Klein the strike-out record? Both Cochrane and Coyne got out of some tight places, at that.

Well, come out early today and watch the Highlanders get revenge.

The heavens, we take it, are about to fall. Butte beat Ogden yesterday.

Notwithstanding, Basty Wright is a good umpire. He was off his stride yesterday.

Well, there was, as usual, a silver lining. Both Cochrane and Coyne showed something.

Coyne struck out five, passed three, hit two and allowed four hits in six and a third innings.

President Lucas arrived yesterday on schedule time and this is now the capital of the empire.

There's a double-header today, beginning at 2 o'clock. Blankenship will pitch Zachmoch and Bush.

With the Highlanders fielding in their usual form, there'd have been nothing to it yesterday.

We'll get down a modest wager that Bryan loses the next game he pitches against the Highlanders.

We are confident that the locals will come back today. Didn't you ever have an off day, honestly?

Irby didn't bring along Powers, his kid phenom. Powers will be over to pitch a game Sunday, however.

The fans were rather peevish yesterday. You see, we are not accustomed to that sort of baseball.

The telegraph editor says that Cochrane's curve ball is a regular "outbreak." We're rather leery about putting this one over. Do you get it?

Cochrane has been ill with tonsillitis, which is the reason he's not been working in his regular turn. When he regains his control he'll be the goods.

Bill Lussl was hurt in the eighth. He made a needless slide into the plate as a double play, Oriet to Carman, retired the side, and injured his neck and head.

Salt Lake will not beat Great Falls very many more games. Still, we are glad to see Bittrolff hand it to the Birds in front of the foolish directors who insisted on linking the veteran with a can.

In the third, Warren was walked. Bassej plastered one against the right-field fence. The ball bounced back a long distance and was handled rudely to second. John was waylaid there before Warren crossed the plate.

Cochrane issued five passes, hit two batsmen and allowed two hits while he was in there. He hasn't been pitching regularly of late, which accounts for his lack of control. Just the same, he's a real pitcher.

Friday of this week is set aside as Boosters' day. One dollar will be charged the fans who attend and this price includes a grandstand seat. The money realized will go to the local association. It is a baseball benefit and not for an individual or individuals.

Tennis results in the city tournament: Davis defeats Newton; Campbell defeats Schmidt; McMichael defeats Roberts; McCormick defeats Lewis; McMichael defeats Campbell; Safford defeats Tooley; Mason and White defeat Rider and Bailey. It is expected that the semi-finals will be out of the way Friday night.

We hate to do it, but we must tell you about that first inning. Changnon's error let Menges on. Quigley singled to center field and Menges

CHIVALRY NOT DEAD WHILE WADDELL IS ON EARTH

RUBE, THE MOST ECCENTRIC OF THEM ALL, IS SOME KNIGHT ERRANT.

POLICING A BIG DANCE

Famous Southpaw Ones Showed His Mettle and His Heart on the Same Evening, by Licking a Hard Guy and Helping a Woman.

"Rube Waddell," says Arthur Irwin, "was even a richer card than was usually supposed and nobody unless he were to put it all down in a large, thick book will ever have an actual summary of the things G. Edward said and did during his long career in the fast company. Take, for example, the time Rube vanished from the Athletics and wasn't discovered for three weeks—never till now has it been revealed how Connie Mack got him to return. Connie found the Rube pitching for some little semi-pro club near Camden and asked him why he had done the vanishing specialty. 'Well, Connie,' Rube replied, 'I don't have to wait till the 1st and the 15th of the month for my money with these people—they pay me every afternoon.'"

"If that's all you want, Rube," Connie answered, "I'll pay you after the game, every game." "Honest will you?" queried Rube, and that way it was the balance of the season. After every game Rube pitched Connie handed him $30 and Rube was around every single day demanding the chance to play.

"Rube Waddell, though, had a kindly heart, always open to the cries of the unhappy, and especially gentle toward the ladies. One night in Philadelphia there was a dance—a large dance, full of people and excitement. Mr. Waddell arrived early and was greeted by being presented with a gorgeous badge denoting him as floor marshal. Armed with this, Mr. Waddell was as nice and polite as Lord Chesterfield himself and gave no trouble. The managers soon ceased to worry about Rube—and were given other things to trouble them.

"About midnight a prizefighter named Seiger of some repute as a rough, hardy slugger, came into the hall and at once started making war on medicine. Inside of 10 minutes I had to go in and help the floor committee drag him off some inoffensive fellow who hadn't knowed to be his sovereign. About 10 minutes later, we had to rally in again and rescue some well-dressed gentleman from Seiger's clutches. 'Better cut it out,' said I, 'you are looking for a trimming and you will get it, sure!'

"'Ain't nobody on this floor goin' to hand it to me,' jeered Seiger, and back he went, shouldering through the throng. A minute passed—then I heard loud noises and then the thud of fast falling blows. In I rushed and beheld Mr. Seiger going rapidly toward the floor under the mighty fists of Rube Waddell. Before the Rube's gigantic strength and pile driving blows the prizefighter was helpless. Seiger was receiving a frightful beating, but he had it coming to him and no one interfered. Finally Seiger fell against the wall and the Rube, his eyes blazing with murderous delight, simply hailed blows upon the dazed and bleeding pugilist. Just as he was drawing back his great fists for another wallop, there was a shrill shriek and a woman fainting.

"Instantly, the Rube turned, ran to the spot where the girl had fallen and picked her up. He bore her to an anteroom, poured ice water on her forehead and cared for her like a trained nurse till she revived. As she began to regain her senses, some one stuck his head into the anteroom and said, kiddingly, 'Say, Rube, he ain't quite dead yet.'

"Rube shook his head. 'Chivalry,' said Mr. Waddell, 'comes before pleasure. I ain't goin' to move from here till this lady gets her thinks back. Soon as she's all O. K. I'll go finish him but I won't stir a step till then.'"

"It need hardly be added that the much battered Mr. Seiger was nowhere to be found when Mr. Waddell came, seeking him after his mission of mercy was finished."

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Sailor Tom Sharkey, once a leading heavyweight pugilist, with a record of standing 25 rounds before Jim Jeffries, and giving the then champion one of the hardest battles of his career, announced himself tonight as a "contender for the white heavyweight championship of the world." Sharkey looks to gain the distinction, after a long period of retirement. By taking the measure of Tommy Burns, who was defeated by Jack Johnson, gave the latter the world's title.

Sharkey says he has been led to believe that Burns wants a return match with Johnson and expresses his own willingness to arrange a match with Burns, "under any fair conditions the latter may name." He expressed confidence that if he takes "a course in strict training" he can re-enter the ring and defeat Burns.
