

OUR PRICES

It may be truly said, "speak for themselves." This store is not of the slashing, sensational kind, that claims to cut prices down till the owner is losing all he made and the customer is getting something for nothing. That is not done in actual merchandise, and never will be. We proceed on a reasonable, natural basis, buy in the best markets, and sell to the best customers we can find. The best goods, thus sold under the best auspices, go promptly and give satisfaction, and this is the kind of trade we are willing to pay for by shading our profits to the "live and let live" basis.

On the Run About Town

From early youth to ripe old age we live most in our dreams; for when we wander amongst the clouds our future brighter seems; the dreams of boys are mostly of the things long gone before; they picture bright the cheerful life of Captain Kidd and here, on all the fabled pirate chief they read through with a vim, and then they lie awake at night and dream they were like him; the youth, he dreams the golden dreams of wealth and honor great; his fancy reams and pictures bright the girl to be his mate; the old man dozes in the sun; his feeble mind calls back the time when he was young and wanted most to drive a huck; we live in dreams, who will assert that dreams to him are naught; yet few there are, who make this life bring what in dreams they sought.

Some time ago the local anglers' club offered a reward of $5 to any fisherman who brought in a greening of respectable size, and proved that it had been caught in the Bitter Root river. Up to the present time there have been no claimants for this reward, and one would think that the greening were not in the stream. However, Frank McHaffie, who ranks among the party of fishing "these parts," says that he has seen the greening, knows where they are to be found, and that they are flourishing. "I know exactly where a whole big bunch is," said Mr. McHaffie. "I ran across them accidentally, and was surprised at the large number that I found. They seem to be doing well, and I believe they will be a regular thing within a short time. They are still small, but the greening does his best growing after he gets a start, and I expect to see them develop amazingly during the coming year. I know that planting them in the Bitter Root has proved successful, and that they are coming along all right. I will be glad when they arrive at the catchable stage. A greening is gamier than the mountain trout. His mouth is more tender, and the greening cannot be caught with a lodge-pole pine and a good jerk. It has to be played, or you don't get the fish."

The change in the weather yesterday made Contractor Nash feel perfectly natural. He recovered from the shock of seeing the sun, and looks up at the gray clouds with a home-like feeling. Nothing has been done on Cedar street, and nothing will be done until the weather makes up its mind to stay clear for a week or so. Inspector Breechbill perfectly agrees with Contractor Nash in his determination not to put down any blocks until the weather behaves itself. "It's very foolish for Mr. Nash to go ahead and try to lay the rest of the pavement a little at a time," said Inspector Breechbill. "This way of working just keeps him hauling on sand, laying a few blocks, and taking up the blocks and hauling off the sand. All this costs money, and doesn't hurry the work much. We should have a week of good weather between now and Christmas. Five days at the outside will complete the paving on Cedar street, and even if it isn't finished this year it will not make such a great difference. The south side of the street has been completed for its entire length, and East Cedar has been finished up in fine shape. All the other improvement work in town has been closed up, and there is no use in Nash's trying to do something the weather won't permit. The street would be in fairly good shape, if nothing more were done to it, but I believe that the rainy weather will pass in a short time, and that the work can be completed then."

C. H. McLeod donated a gold medal for the fly-casting tournaments which the local anglers' club is making arrangements to hold from time to time. The medal was purchased from the Kohn Jewelry company, and it is a beauty. It is in the form of a button. On the face of it is represented a crescent and a rowl. Just about to take the hook is a fish; its eye is a small diamond. "Missoula Anglers' club" is the lettering on the medal. It is a beautifully designed piece of work, and is a prize worth trying for. The medal will be passed around just as some of the local gun club's medals are handled. The winner in one tournament will hold the medal until he is defeated in regular competition. "It certainly was kind of Mr. McLeod to give his prize," said an angler yesterday. "We intend to begin these tournaments, and they will be a regular thing. We will conduct them on the order of the weekly shoots of the gun club. It will be decided in a short time just how often these contests will be held. There is a great deal of enthusiasm among the local anglers, and we believe that the interest in these events will be good."

P. P. Kenny, the corpulent proprietor of the Cafe du Vienna, which is noted primarily for its cuisine of peculiar excellence, was rather wrathful—almost angry—the other evening. There is a gang which has organized for the purpose of causing Pat all the misery it can. One of these highlanders entered the restaurant on Monday night and walked out with Pat's new $40 overcoat. The restaurant was worth going miles to hear. P. P. Kenny exploded several times, and after thus relieving his system, he set forth to find the culprit. He did not have any trouble in locating the overcoat, but it took him some time to recover his usual equanimity of mind. Professor Fischer, violin and piano lessons, 503 S. 4th. MRS. ELVIRA HORNIG DIES AT CARLTON

Mrs. Elvira Hornig, 71 years of age, died yesterday morning at her home a mile north of Carlton. Mrs. Hornig has been a resident of the Bitter Root valley for the last 25 years. She is survived by her son, Louis, with whom she made her home, and by her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Smith, living on the ranch adjoining. The funeral will be held at the Carlton church, Thursday, and Mrs. Hornig will be buried in the Carlton cemetery beside her husband, who died last February.

PRESS AGENTS TALK OF THEIR SHOWS

At the Isis. "My Wife's Bonnet" will be the head-liner on the Isis high-class program for tonight and Thursday. This comedy is an adaptation of the original London version of the popular old farce-comedy, "My Wife's Bonnet," which was first produced on the stage at the Olympic theater, London, in 1864, where it met with a whirlwind of success. We take pleasure in presenting it to the public in picture form, and feel safe in saying that none of the original comedy has been lost in the portrayal. In brief, the story is as follows: Mrs. Topknot and her friends, Mrs. Cutwater and Mrs. Appleby, buy hats absolutely alike. Mrs. Topknot goes to the theater with her cousin, Alfred Jones, whom her husband has never seen. While preparing to watch the performance, she accidentally drops her hat from the box, where she is sitting, to the pit below. In glancing over the railing of the box she is astonished to see that the hat has fallen into the lap of her husband, who she thought was busy at his office. She is afraid, not wishing to be seen by Mr. Topknot, hurriedly leaves the theater. Mr. Topknot recognizes his wife's hat and immediately causes an uproar in the theater, thinking that his spouse is spending the evening with another man. Mrs. Appleby, who chances to be in the theater and sees the hat drop into Mr. Topknot's lap, decides to help her friend. She hurries away from the theater and leaves her hat at Mrs. Topknot's apartments. Alfred Jones also borrows Mrs. Cutwater's hat, so when the indignant Mr. Topknot returns home he finds his wife in possession of two hats absolutely alike. The one he carries makes the third. After many humorous incidents Alfred is introduced to Mr. Topknot, the hat tangle is straightened out and all ends well. Three other dandy photoplays will be shown along with the head-liner.

HENLEY IS ELECTED TO LEGISLATURE

OFFICIAL COUNT CHANGES POSITION OF TWO PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATES.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Count. J. B. Henley 1294, W. R. Glascock 1269, Henley's plurality 25, C. H. Marsh 1673, W. D. Kendrick 1676, Marsh's plurality 37.

Such is the official count of election returns of Missoula county in connection with the only four candidates who were running close in the race in which it was necessary for the official count to determine who is elected. In the case of Henley and Glascock, both progressive candidates for the legislature, their position was reversed by the count which was finished by the commissioners yesterday. Unofficial returns had given Mr. Glascock the most votes, but with all the precincts in Mr. Henley's nose out by 25.

On Anxious Seat. For a time yesterday the race between Marsh and Kendrick for governor became interesting-uncomfortably so for the former. One precinct gave Kendrick 10 votes more than the unofficial returns. But soon another precinct gave Marsh 20 more than he had before shown and the final count gave him the race by 37 votes. While the commissioners finished making the county yesterday it was too late last evening to add up the columns and announce the totals. However, aside from a few changes of minor consequence, the vote throughout was the same as given in The Missoulian's table last Wednesday morning and there were no changes in the results other than indicated above.

DEATH ANGEL CALLS MRS. SCOTT

ESTIMABLE MATRON OF MISSOULA IS RELIEVED OF HER SUFFERING.

Mrs. Verne I. Scott, wife of Dr. J. I. Scott, passed peacefully into death at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning, in her home on University avenue. She has been seriously ill for the last seven months and the end was not unexpected. Mrs. Scott was born at Rockford, Ill., in April, 1879, her maiden name also being Scott. She was educated in Rockford and in Mason City, Iowa, where she was living at the time of her marriage with Dr. Scott in September, 1903. Coming directly to Missoula after their wedding, Dr. and Mrs. Scott established a beautiful home and made a host of friends in this city. They have one child, a son, two and a half years old, Mrs. Katherine Scott has been here with her daughter since the first of her illness, Mrs. T. E. Wagner of Mason City, Iowa, a sister, came several weeks ago; Mrs. Charles L. Marston, another sister, will arrive tonight from Mason City. The other sister, Mrs. G. E. Marston, of Rockford, Ill., will not be able to come to the funeral. The service will be held probably on Friday, at the family home on University avenue, although arrangements are not to be completed until Mrs. Marston arrives. Mrs. Scott was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city and a loyal worker in the activities of the church.

DISTRICT COURT

John W. Holt and Elmer E. Real, both charged with statutory offenses, were arraigned before Judge Webster in the district court yesterday. They pleaded not guilty. Real's trial was set for December 4 and Holt is to be tried on December 6. The court fixed bail in each case at $7,500. Neither of the accused was able to raise this amount.

Robert King, charged with grand larceny, pleaded not guilty yesterday and his trial was set for December 11. He was allowed to go on his own recognizance. Charles E. Barber, also charged with grand larceny, will plead in court this morning.

The cases of the state against Gleason, Urbin and Lewis, each charged with gambling, was called yesterday, but the defendants were ordered to be in court to plead this morning.

Last time around

From the way these shirts are going out it doesn't look as though there'll be much of an assortment for the man who doesn't grab his hat the moment he reads this ad.

This is not a rummage of old stock--every shirt on sale is a new one. Every shirt now selling for $1 is one that formerly sold for $1.50 or more. Every shirt now priced at $1.35 used to sell at $2, $2.50 and even $3 and $3.50. This isn't an everyday opportunity and you can always find use for a few extra shirts--it's a good investment.
