BOSTON'S SMOKE MARVEL HEADS PERCENTAGE COLUMN, BUT JOHNSON'S CLOSE

VARSITY TO TANGLE MAGNATES PREDICT WITH MISSOULA TONIGHT

MONTANA ELEVEN WILL PRACTICE AGAINST HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN TODAY.

WASHINGTON STATE NEXT

Varsity Goes to Pullman Saturday for Hardest Game of the Season—Full Lineup Will Be in Shape for Strenuous Battle.

Although the regular backfield trio, Smead, Owsley and Deschamps, did not report for practice yesterday, Coach Phibson sent the remainder of the varsity squad through a good, hard workout yesterday afternoon.

The scrimmage tonight will probably be the only one this week. The team has had enough rough work in the games of the past month, and the coach is not taking any chances with his players.

Washington State has a strong team, and will outweigh Montana Saturday. They will have an additional advantage in playing on their home field and in meeting a team just off the train after a hard day's ride.

The varsity squad will leave Missoula Friday night on Northern Pacific No. 5. A special sleeper will be switched in at the depot at 10 o'clock so that the men can go right to bed without waiting for the arrival of No. 5 at midnight.

MONTANA WOOL IS HIGH.

Boston, Nov. 12.—The domestic wool market is showing less activity, but values hold firm in nearly all lines.

BANDITS DYNAMITE BANK.

Bartlesville, Okla., Nov. 12.—Five bandits dynamited the Bank of Ochelata at Ochelata, Okla., today, secured $2,500 and escaped.

French scientists have devised an X-ray method of determining the relative values of various kinds of coal.

SLIDING SCALE WILL PASS

NEW SALARY LIMIT PROPOSITION BROACHED BEFORE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

LIMIT FOR EACH LEAGUE

President Sexton Would Have Post-Season Games Played to Pay Expenses of the Association—Exchange of Players Announced.

Milwaukee, Nov. 12.—A sliding scale salary limit probably will be adopted by the National Association of Minor Leagues, it was said here tonight by magnates who had discussed the matter at the brief opening session of the association at the meeting today.

Serious opposition to a sale limit that they thought would tend to impair the quality of baseball they show their patrons' developed among representatives of the American association and the International league.

A suggestion of President H. H. Sexton to raise funds for conducting the affairs of the association through the playing of a number of post-season games under the auspices of the national association also will be discussed.

Ashburn, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The report of Secretary John H. Farrell for the last year, to be presented at the annual meeting of the National Association of Baseball Leagues in Milwaukee shows that the association comprises 47 leagues, embracing 322 towns and cities in the United States and Canada.

Total amount received through this office for drafted players, including money refunded on National association drafts disclosed.

National league, $43,400; American league, $59,700; National association, $79,950; total draft money, $173,050.

The national board of arbitration refused to allow the claim of Wichita against Toledo, Ohio, of $5,000 for pitcher Ellis and outfielder Middleton, who were sold to Toledo.

NOTES OF MINING.

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars is to be spent in the development of the property of the Aurora Copper Mining company in the Cheval district of Washington, owned by capitalists of Spokane and Seattle.

Orders have been issued for a 200-ton concentrator and a short tramway. The plant and its accessories will cost $400,000.

Strength of from two to five times that of a wooden wheel of the same weight is claimed for a new all-steel automobile wheel.

How the Pitchers Finished Season

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Although Joe Wood, the hero of the world's series, tops the list of pitchers in the 1912 American league averages issued tonight, Walter Johnson of the Washington club probably is the leading pitcher of the season.

WHO WANTS TO BE WHAT FOY DIDN'T? ASKS TUBAL

This morning Dr. Tubalkane lectures on the points of the camel, who was made famous by Eddie Foy, who, indeed, it is started.

AS IT LOOKS

Our idea of nothing to do is to be out of a job.

Once more do the Salt Lake Tribune and Walter Brutz take a chance on getting in bad: Let's hope that Utah's football team has profited by the experience gained in that Montana fizzle of last Saturday.

A casual reference to last Sunday's Missoulian will show that Coach Bennett's boys didn't come across for him.

Billings Journal: Billings high school is still waiting to hear from the management of the Missoula high school football team regarding the acceptance of a game to be played here on Thanksgiving day.

The McCloskey-Louisville yarn is traveling merrily.

Hugh Fullerton juggles times and things admirably in this: Hannibal was just crossing the Alps. He stopped at the top of the Jungfrau.

Here's a boost for the varsity, from the Inco Mountain. As was expected, the University of Montana defeated the Montana Aggies without much trouble Saturday, the final score being 20 to 3. The varsity has profited much from its games in Utah, and will be hard to defeat for the rest of the season, as they are in shape and have learned a lot of football from experience.

Ty Cobb has joined the Elks. Yes, that's what we thought when we read it. What of it?

Say, if that citizen-clothed-man-on-the-side-line trick was really used, it's our comment that ringing in a cold deck or using a brace box are gentlemanly measures in comparison. We don't believe it.

Oh, yes, we forgot to add that Tyrus is a Mason, also and in addition.

And now it's too late to send anybody to that minor-league meeting.

Joe Wood and Walter Johnson are fairly clever twirlers, we admit.

We hope nobody takes exception to that.

S. O. S. T. Sontag—They're looking for that fat coat of yours, but they haven't dug it up yet.

We saw "Officer 666" last night and we can't resist the temptation to say that it was a bully show. As it looked to us, it was all right.

We dispatched our regards to J. O. Read at Hamilton yesterday and we hope he got 'em. We reiterate that the Highlanders will train at Hamilton.

We sent 'em by a capable messenger, too.

Spokesman-Review: Now that it's all over it is rather pitiful about Emil Hauser. Here's one of the greatest football players America ever produced, with an education little better than the average high school, unable to represent any college because of having played out his time limit.

The hired hands had an awful time at lunch last night: "I see by the papers that the oldest universities retain their faculties." "Oh, that's nothing; the U. S. still retains its caucus." "Yes, and that isn't all."

The Badgers' Leader

Captain Joseph Hoefel.
One of the most reliable men on the Wisconsin team is Captain Joseph Hoefel. He is now a senior and has played at left end since his freshman year. Hoefel is a deadly tackler and fast in getting down the field. Last year he was placed on every All-Western team that was chosen.

FAST TWELVE ROUNDS.
Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Johnny Griffith of Akron and Louis De Pontulu, the Canadian lightweight, fought a fast 12-round bout to a draw here tonight.

SLOSSON NOT ABLE TO TELL SECRET OF THE CUE

EXPERT DECIDES HE CANNOT EXPLAIN WHAT MAKES BILLIARD ABILITY.

GAME IS COMPLICATED

All Kinds of Elements Enter Into Sport and Man Who is Proficient Knows That None is More Important Than the Others.

New York, Nov. 12.—Charley Peterson of St. Louis, has written to George P. Slosson, asking the latter what he considered the most important thing in billiards—the primal factor. Slosson has been deliberating on the question, and has finally concluded he is not qualified to definitely answer it.

"I have," said he, "studied the thing carefully. Its character is particular, while its application is general. It comprehends the whole range of the essentials of the art of billiards. Peterson is one of the best fancy shot players in the country, perhaps the best, and he ought to appreciate the full import of his question."

"A man possessing only a superficial knowledge of the game might presume to answer it promptly. The man who knows the game thoroughly, and in a fair measure understands the multiplicity of its elements, will not venture such a reply as is desired."

"In my opinion, the individual who can grasp the philosophy of the motions of the balls, apply the strokes that will impart those motions, has good eyesight and acquires knowledge by observation, is one who will have a chance to become a skillful player."

The game is one of problems, simple or complex, and their solution depends upon physical and mental equipment. Throughout it is a matter of conception and execution.

Too much consideration is usually given to the proposition 'How to hold a cue.' The real issue with respect to the use of a cue is how to deliver a stroke to produce a certain effect. And no two men have strokes alike.

"Handless" Sutton has demonstrated that any circumscribed scheme of controlling a cue is visionary—a barren idealism. He rests a cue on a bridge, and, with the butt between the stumps of his forearms, delivers every variety of open table stroke and accomplishes nearly every possible result. Holding his cue perpendicularly and resting it on his shoulders, he executed astonishing masse shots. "Jake" Schaefer was a connoisseur at a billiard table. He reached and squirmed over it in a manner that no other player has ever been able to do, and he never used a bridge.

"He and I were quite similar in height and weight, yet I could not reach as he could and had to use a bridge. Our attitudes and our deliveries were radically different. So were our methods. Nevertheless, in the many years we played against each other there was no material difference in our records."

"When a billiard player goes to a new table in a match or tournament he is perplexed and uneasy. He does not know what conditions he has to meet. The resiliency of the ivory, the texture and tension of the bedcloth and the action of the cushion will have to be learned by practical experiments before he can become confident or even comfortable."

"The late Dr. A. L. Ramsey used to dwell on the difference between the human structure and a mechanical device designed and adjusted to do a certain thing. He maintained that every known mechanical principle was exemplified in the normal human frame and its muscular operations, and that while a co-ordination between mind and muscle would make the human machine work perfectly most of the time it could not be depended upon for absolute or continued exactness."

"Experience has convinced me that Dr. Ramsey's view of the unreliability of the human machine is correct. Every billiard player has realized that at times, when he has endeavored to be exact, confusing failures have resulted."

"There is neither a primal nor a final factor in billiards. Every man must have his own way of playing and depend upon practice and nature's endowments for success."
