

CLARK CARRIED DYNAMITE AROUND

IRONWORKER OFFICIAL WHO PLEADED GUILTY, TELLS OF FURTHER OUTRAGES.

RYAN GETS THE BLAME

President of the Union Influenced the Witness to Blow Up "Jobs" in Dayton and Cincinnati—He Packed Explosive Around in Market Basket—Hockin's Supplied the Stuff.

Indianapolis, Nov. 15.—Carrying dynamite about in a market basket was the way Edward P. Clark, an ironworker, testifying at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today, said he arranged to blow up non-union jobs.

Clark, an official of a local union in Cincinnati, pleaded guilty at the beginning of the trial of the 45 men accused of complicity with the McNamara brothers in the illegal transportation of explosives.

In detailing his confession on the stand, he told of his personally blowing up work on a railroad bridge across the Miami river at Dayton, on May 3, 1908, and of leaving behind an umbrella that bore his initials.

Clark said officials of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers induced him to do dynamiting. Once, he said, when inspecting work in Cincinnati, President Frank M. Ryan pointed to a railroad bridge across the Ohio river and said:

"There would be a good place to put a shot."

Before that, the witness said, Herbert S. Hockin, secretary of the union, arranged to supply him with dynamite.

"I had had some correspondence with J. J. McNamara at Indianapolis about conditions in Cincinnati, when, in May, 1908, Hockin appeared, and told me he was going to spend some money there," said Clark.

Clark said he introduced me to Edward Campbell, who was to supply dynamite. Hockin said I was to receive $100 for the Dayton job. I returned to the place that night with a market basket. Campbell gave me 50 half-pound sticks of dynamite. Hockin wanted me to take William Bernhardt, a local official, to the Dayton, but I said I would do the job alone.

"Having kept the dynamite in my house that night, I took it the next day to Dayton, where I placed it on a bridge over the Miami river. It was raining hard, so I left my umbrella over the bomb to protect it, lighted the fuse and departed.

A Youthful Horsewoman

LITTLE MAUD PREECE AND HER FAVORITE SADDLE PONY.

New York, Nov. 15.—There will be many noted riders at the national horse show, which opens at Madison Square garden tomorrow, but it is safe to say that none will attract more attention than the English lassie, Maud Preece, aged 8 years.

Although not yet in her teens, little Maud is a fearless horsewoman as well as an expert rider. Despite her frail physique, she can control a strong, heavy-headed horse as well as the expert army officers who will take part in the international jumping contests.

Another little English girl who will take part in the show is Mona Dunn, aged 10. She has a number of prize winning hunters and saddle horses entered, some of which she will ride.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Margaret L. Kirby, wife of the president of the defunct Kirby Savings bank, related today in the federal court an involved story of banking and gambling which reached a point of dramatic intensity when two suspected swindlers were brought before Mrs. Kirby for identification.

The expected denouement failed when Mrs. Kirby could not identify the two men whom she charged with swindling her husband of $60,000 through a wire-tapping scheme.

Throughout the day a crowd jammed Judge Landis' court to hear the woman's confession, every sentence of which further implicated her husband in the failure of his private savings bank.

In simple narrative style, she told of wild night rides in taxicabs when she carried from $10,000 to $20,000 in a small black handbag, hurrying to Kirby that he might have more funds with which to plunge on the fake wire-tapping scheme.

Mrs. Kirby said today that she was almost penniless, having turned over her jewelry to her mother to obtain money with which to employ counsel.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 15.—"Good health marriage certificates" were endorsed by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs just before the adjournment of its annual convention here today.

New York, Nov. 15.—Today was Vincent Astor's 21st birthday and he took legal title this morning to the fortune left by his father, Colonel John Jacob Astor.

The total amount of the estate is estimated at $80,000,000, of which Vincent Astor receives approximately $67,000,000.

PEACE TERMS DEMAND MUCH

TCHATALJA AND OTHER TERRITORY MUST BE GIVEN UP TO THE INVADERS.

ARMISTICE IS NOT YET

King Ferdinand's Forces Insist That the Sultan Evacuate Adrianople, Scutari, Monastir and Janina—Payment of War Indemnity Also Mentioned—No Reply is Received.

London, Nov. 16.—Bulgaria's terms of peace to Turkey, as reported at Vienna and sent from that city by the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, consist of seven stipulations.

Included in the first stipulation is the surrender of the Tchatalja army and its withdrawal, guarded by Bulgarians.

The second provides for the evacuation by the Turks of Adrianople, Scutari, Monastir and Janina.

The third calls for payment of a war indemnity.

The fourth demands the surrender of conquered territory.

The fifth calls for the internationalization of Constantinople.

The sixth provides for opening the Dardanelles and making Saloniki a free port.

Since Bulgaria already has expressed a willingness to leave the status of Constantinople and of the Dardanelles to the powers, says the correspondent, the fifth and sixth clauses of the terms as reported here appear improbable.

London, Nov. 15.—As the censors permit no news to come from the front at the scene of the fighting in the Balkans is more perplexing than ever tonight.

Various reports have drifted in, however, among them that Adrianople has fallen, that the Bulgarians had captured Hadzimek, the headquarters of the Turkish chief in command; that Nazim Pasha, the Turkish generalissimo, has capitulated and that Bulgarians, either by sea or land, have reached the vicinity of Kilos, on the Black sea coast, a short distance from Constantinople.

These reports are without confirmation. A vague dispatch published at Sofia says six forts along the Tchatalja line have been captured after what are described as heavy sacrifices on the part of Bulgarians.

All the reports previously published through the Vienna Reichspost, or emanating from other sources, go to show that the Bulgarians are having no easy task. Nothing is known as to whether the battle continues. The British government has received no news from the seat of war for several days.

What perhaps is of graver import than the progress of the hostilities in southeastern Europe is the revolution of the tremendous ravages cholera is making, not only among the destitute refugees, who daily are arriving by thousands at Constantinople, but among the Turkish troops on the Tchatalja lines.

It is supposed this danger might suffice to make the Bulgarians commanders pause and induce the Bulgarian government to arrange an armistice and negotiate peace.

Butte, Nov. 15.—(Special.)—Because he feared death from a gang of gamblers he had informed upon, E. N. Papp shot and killed George Prokos, banker of a poker game, tonight in the Greek club room, corner Park and Main streets.

Prokos lived but 15 minutes, dying in the emergency hospital. Papp appeared at the police station yesterday afternoon, volunteering to lead the police to the gambling place. Prokos was arrested with the crowd and found this morning in police court. Papp says Prokos then threatened to kill him.

Tonight at 6:30 Papp started to the Greek club, as he claims, to return a revolver to Prokos which he had borrowed several days ago. He charged that as he started to give over the gun, Prokos reached in his inside pocket to get a knife. Papp fired once, the bullet entering the victim's stomach.

Will M'Combs Get Job?

WILLIAM F. M'COMBS AND GOVERNOR WILSON (TAKEN SINCE ELECTION).

New York, Nov. 15.—That William F. McCombs, New York lawyer, chairman of the democratic national committee and personal friend of Woodrow Wilson, can have a job in the cabinet after March 4 next it he wants it is the opinion of many politicians.

There can be no doubt but that Wilson has the profoundest confidence in McCombs' ability. He selected the young lawyer to handle his campaign for the nomination, and having won at Baltimore he secured for McCombs the important job of secretary of the democratic national committee.

Wilson is fairly pleased with the work McCombs has done. His confidence in him has been more than justified. If he would "control" McCombs with the important task of handling a campaign can it be doubted that he would not hesitate to trust him with a position in the cabinet?

Men who are closest to Governor Wilson do not pretend to be able to forecast a cabinet for the next administration. The governor has not discussed the matter with his most intimate friends. He has listened to suggestions, but has not given the least intimation as to who will be invited to assume the posts.

BUTTE GREEK KILLS SOCIALISTS READY TO GIVE BATTLE TO GOMPERS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 15.—A fight against the administration of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is to be taken up next week by socialist delegates to the convention here.

The delegates to the radical wing number 31, according to J. M. Barnes of Philadelphia, national campaign manager of the socialist party, who will lead the fight. This group consists of more than one-fourth of the delegates, but socialist say many will come under the banner when the fight opens.

The first skirmish is expected when the committee on resolutions reports the resolution of Delegates Duncan of the United Mine Workers providing for the election of officers for the federation by a referendum vote.

The Atlantic convention of the federation adopted a resolution favoring this method of election, provided it was found, upon investigation by officers of the executive council indicated that 52 national and international unions affiliated with the federation had declared against the proposal and 23 unions had favored it.

Socialists say that officers of the federation, including President Gompers, are opposed to election by referendum and that if the plan is adopted the defeat of President Gompers and his associates on the executive council is certain.

An unconfirmed rumor has it that Duncan McDonald of the United Mine Workers is to be the opponent of Samuel Gompers.

The mining trades department held a brief session today to organize Charles H. Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners, president of the department, presided.

GOVERNOR WILSON DECLARES HE'LL CALL A SPECIAL SESSION

I know it to be in the interest of business that all uncertainty as to what the particular items of tariff revision are to be should be removed as soon as possible.

Beyond this brief announcement the governor said he had nothing further to say.

The governor had not intended to express himself about an extra session so soon after his election. Although he favored the idea of an extra session, he had promised to spend more time in ascertaining public opinion.

With the time to be consumed in discussion, the governor felt that if an extra session were not called, the benefits of the tariff revision virtually would be postponed two years.

Immediately upon his election, the governor made up his mind to wait until after he returned from his vacation before making known his attitude, but upon his return he said that opinion in favor of a special session was nearly unanimous, he felt no hesitancy about making public his conclusion.

"DAGO FRANK" HAS ALIBI STORY

FOURTH GUNMAN SAYS HE WAS ON WAY TO SEE HIS GIRL WHEN MURDER WAS DONE.

HE SAID HE LEFT "GYPSY" "LEFTY" AND "WHITEY" AT "BRIDGE" WEBBER'S POKER ROOMS AND WENT TO WOMAN'S HOME AND LEARNED SHE HAD BEEN ARRESTED—THEN BAILED HER OUT.

New York, Nov. 15.—The case for the defense of the four gunmen accused of killing the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, was completed today. Nearly a dozen witnesses testified in support of the gunman's contention that the two informers, Harry Vailon and "Bridge" Webber, and an unidentified stranger had fired the fatal shots at the defendants, "Gyp," "Lefty," "Louie" and "Whitey" Lewis, were on the scene only as innocent spectators and that the fourth, "Dago Frank," was not there at all.

"Dago Frank" told the story that purported to be his alibi.

He left "Gyp," "Lefty" and "Whitey" at "Bridge" Webber's poker room just after the mysterious stranger had invited them all to go to the Hotel Metropolitan, where Rosenthal was slain, to see Jack Rose, he said. He went to the home of his girl, Jean Gordon, he swore. When he got there he found she had been arrested and he went to the police station to bail her out. It was not until then that he heard of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, he declared.

Giovanni Stanshik, eye witness for the state, was called in rebuttal before court adjourned and while he was on the stand, Rose, Webber, Vailon and Schaberg were brought into the courtroom and lined up against the rail in front of which the gunmen were sitting. Stanshik swore that he had not seen them at the Metropolitan.

"Dago Frank," hollow cheeked, rawboned, with curly jet black hair, took the stand at 10:30 o'clock. His testimony was an almost word for word repetition of the story told by his three fellow gunmen yesterday, up to the point where the witness said he left "Whitey," "Gyp" and "Louie" and "Louie" at "Bridge" Webber's poker room the night of the murder. He testified as to the visit of "Jack" Rose to his apartment to see "Whitey," "Lefty" and himself.

"There was nothing said by Rose or anybody that night about the shooting, buting or removing of Herman Rosenthal," asked the gunman's attorney, C. G. P. Wable.

"There was not," declared Frank, shaking his head vigorously.

He said the only thing Rose discussed was the "framing up" of "Jack" Zelig, the gang leader, and the shooting of "Lefty" and "Louie" in Chinatown. He wanted to explain his innocence in both affairs, said Frank.

From Missouri.

"I said, 'Well, Jack, the boys are from Missouri. You better show them.'"

The witness then said that Rose asked him to come with him, while they looked for the other gunman. They boarded the automobile in which Rose, Vailon and Schaberg had arrived and on the way downtown Rose, Frank said, told him that he could not sleep nights because of his worry of being suspected of the framing up of Zelig.

"He told me he was known as a stool pigeon for Becker and never testified against gambling houses."

Arrived at the poker room the witness said Rose told Webber of his disappointment at not finding "the boys" at "Dago Frank's" and in about 25 minutes "Bridge" went downstairs and came back with "Gyp," "Louie" and "Whitey."

"To the boys," the witness said, "Rose repeated the tale of his innocence in the framing up. Soon the mysterious stranger entered and after having gone out and returned, said Rose wanted them to go to the Metropolitan to meet White and Stehert (Becker's men), who would prove that Rose was guiltless of the framing up."

The witness denied ever being in the Metropolitan or that he knew anything about the shooting until the next day. Likewise he denied participation in the alleged attempt to kill
