LOVE NOT RETURNED CAUSES SUICIDE

UNREQUITED AFFECTION IS REASON FOR WILLIAMS' SELF-DESTRUCTION.

THE LETTER.

"Dear Friend Albert:—I received your letter and should have answered sooner, but have been very busy. Well, you want so bad to know if I love you. To be honest with you, I do not. I told you so last winter. I told you I didn't want to get married and I don't. If you wish to write to me once in a while as a friend I will answer your letters that way, or anything I can do to be a friend to you. I will do my best to help you. Now I hope if you care for me as you say you do, you will be considerate and not bother me any more on this subject. Will be glad to hear from you if you care to hear from me as a friend, so goodnight.

Your Friend Maud."
Garrison, Nov. 12.

Dr. Remington said that he would judge the poison used to have been strychnine, although it was impossible to state this fact with absolute certainty. "All the symptoms pointed to strychnine poisoning," said Dr. Remington. "There was nothing that could be done for him."

Coroner Marsh then took charge of the body and in the pockets he found letters from Miss Salisbury and one sealed envelope addressed to The Daily Missoulian. He thought at once that the letter to The Missoulian contained a key to the whole matter and brought it to this office. He was right, as the letter set forth his intentions and gave the address of Williams' relatives in Vermont. The letters follows, an exact copy:

The Other Letter.

"Dear Sir:—I am going to finish my life tonight for my girl and I have quit that is she has quit me on no cause at all. My name is Albert Williams and I love her more than God can tell you I would die for her I have stood it just as long as I can I was trying to save money enough to buy us a home. I gave over $50.00 away today my folks are well of my girl lives in Garrison Montana Box 11. her name is Maud Salisbury, Garrison Montana Box 11, well good-bye partner, he may get this, my God I am a homes man and she knows it to. She will find out some time that she has made a great wrong to me. I sent her today and I want you to see that she get it you will want you dear Friends, well I can't wait no longer I am going to take good-bye, tell Maud dear I love her till the last and she is the one that has done all this. I have no hard feeling at all but it will learn her a good lesson don't you think so, well by my folks address is Mr. Will Williams, Bristol, Vermont R. R. D. No. 2, tell mother, they will pay all expenses there is say Missoulian I will put the recent in the letter so you can see that she gets it all o. k. my folks will pay all expenses so talk good care of my poor old bones. I have a few letters in my coat pocket that will give you her name and she knows my people I want to send here a paper and let her know how I feel, my folks will pay all o. k."

Missoula, Nov. 20, 1912.

That is the letter received by The Missoulian and it shows the condition of Williams' mind the night before he made good his intention. It was stamped, but had not been mailed. The receipt for the letter was not enclosed.

A. A. Shaffer, manager of the Western Employment Agency, knew Williams well and corroborated all the facts of the letter. "Williams stayed here last night," said he. "He sat in the office and wrote a letter before going to bed. I had no idea of what he was going to do. He brought the letter, all right, because I wrapped it up for him and he said he intended to take it over to the postoffice and register it. He stayed here all night and left about an hour before he killed himself."

Mr. Shaffer had not heard of the suicide until interviewed by a Missoulian reporter. He said that Williams had worked around Lolo, but for the past month had been employed by the Interstate Lumber company as barn boss at its headquarters camp up the Blackfoot. He had been in town for a day or so. He left the em-

While we mourn the cost of living, comes the season of Thanksgiving; in the stores we see great heaps of things to eat; as we gaze from here to yonder, very sadly do we ponder, how we're going to pay for our turkey and nuts and meat; for a turkey that is plump will make anybody lumpy, when he tries to get the price with which to buy; if you think I am deceiving, very soon you'll be believing, if you hike down to the market and just try and the oysters for the stuffing will convince you I'm not kidding, when you ask the man the price of just a quart and in buying nuts and candy, you are sure a real jim-dandy, if you're sport enough to pay without a snort; so your planned Thanksgiving dinner will make your bank account far thinner than did any meal you ever sought before; when these prices make you quiver, you would better buy some liver, and forget the happy turkey days of yore; liver will prevent your starving, and it saves the job of carving, for a proper sort of liver hasn't complicated joints; and you'll find the liver filling so much so that you'll be willing to forget how much the loss of turkey disappoints.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD

T. J. Farrell and Ed Hamel, both employees of the First National bank, got away with a real, first-class, up-to-the-minute joke and many were the ones that fell for their game. Saturday they announced that on Sunday they would take a little hunting excursion in the vicinity of Frenchtown. Sunday night they returned with the news that they had been successful on their expedition and had killed a fawn. On Monday they started to pass the venison around and it went like hot cakes. All the employees in the bank got some of the White House club and the same Old fraternity got a lot and, what's more, they ate it. On Tuesday the remarks began to come in and they were varied in character. Some of the more polite said that the meat was fine. Opinions differed at the White House. "Butch" Briebach and "Huckle" Fisherty said that if that was fawn meat they would like to eat a buck, because it was the toughest thing they ever chewed. Steve Richards, the old, seasoned hunter, however, said it was good. The fraternity boys said it was sure excellent meat. What they really ate was Angora goat. The plot for which they fell was hatched months ago and the goat who is reposing in the anatomy of the pair's friends, has been staked out near Frenchtown for the past two months. A good way to start a fight is to approach one of the victims and act as if the goat's smell was still in the air.

REAL JOKE

The signs are unmistakable. It will not be long before John Trowheia and his most able assistants begin lining up the end men and start the rehearsals which are preliminary to the Elks' minstrels. For five months J. Trowheia gathers material patiently, knowing that the time will come when he is to be rewarded for his efforts. When the time comes for getting up a line of gigs John is called on and he is invariably there with the goods. He produces a retouched line of old stuff and a complete assortment of brand-new laughs from which the varnish has not been worn. The Elks' minstrels are just as regular as the seasons of the year. About this time the Elks begin and is followed by the real thing within a month or so. It is now being hinted that the principal feature of the show this year will be President Hugh Campbell and Pat Callahan, who are billed to appear in spangles. This alone would be worth the price of admission and it is rumored that the Elks this year will make strenuous efforts to eclipse anything ever produced. "Trowheia is handling with jokes and Tom Williams has his colored gentlemen's laugh dried up and working finely.

SURELY COMING

For the past few months the police department has rejoiced in the possession of a black-and-white cat, which, on account of her arrival during the baseball season was dubbed Highlander. A short time ago there was an addition to the family and Highlander, Jr., became a fixture in the office. Yesterday there arrived another cat, who seems to be a cross between an Angora and a regular alley cat. He is being frowned upon by Commissioner Houston and unless he does something quickly so as to get into the good graces of the office boss, he may not have the happy home which he now thinks he has. With the two Highlanders and the unnamed stranger in the office there is hardly room for Bill Houston and the officers to move around without evoking a caterwauling of some dimensions. "I don't mind one cat so much and I can tolerate two," said Bill Houston, "but this latest arrival is going to meet with hard luck unless he clears out presently."

MOOSE OF MISSOULA ENTERTAIN DIRECTOR

There was an attendance of 250. State Director John R. Jackson was the guest of honor and one of those who responded to toasts during the banquet that was served. Others who spoke were: Daniel L. O'Hern, postmaster, John M. Evans and J. L. Wallace. At cards six prizes were awarded. The committee in charge was: George Mann, Mr. Woody, Mr. O'Hern, P. J. McDonald, A. J. Held and W. A. Logan.

Contractor Nash, who has the contract for the wood-block pavement on Cedar street, received a telegram from the Kettle River company which stated that the blocks necessary to the completion of the work on Cedar street had been shipped yesterday morning. Mr. Nash believes the blocks ought to arrive in Missoula within five days and that he should be able to finish the pavement about Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. "As soon as the blocks arrive here," said Mr. Nash, "I will get my men down from the valley and we will complete the paving in a day at least. Only 27 feet remains to be laid and if the weather is at all favorable we can finish it easily."

John R. Jackson, state director of the Moose lodge, spent the day in Missoula yesterday and leaves this morning for his headquarters in Butte. Mr. Jackson got his first glimpse of Missoula yesterday and was much impressed with the town. He was in charge of Neil C. Duffy, the local organizer, who showed him all the places of interest and made the day most enjoyable for him. In the evening Mr. Jackson attended the Moose meeting held in the Knights of Pythias hall. A banquet was served at the conclusion of the regular meeting and a good musical program was given. It was a very enjoyable affair.

JOCKO BRIDGE READY CONTRACTOR REPORTS

Bridge Contractor O. E. Peppard reported yesterday the completion of the Missoula county bridge over the Jocko river at Ravalli. This bridge, 150 feet in length, fills one of the gaps in the through road between Missoula and Spokane, and its completion will be a cause of rejoicing for automobile drivers who are making the through trip between the two cities. Mr. Peppard reported also good progress on the long bridge of 450 feet over the Missoula river near Paradise, which will connect the two ends of the convict-built road in Sanders county. He expects to have the bridge completed by January 1.
