F. W. Zeiss Testifies That McManigal Told Him of Certain Explosion, but at Grand-Jury Probe the Witness Had Denied That the Informer Had Told Him of the "Job."

"Short-Selling" Means to "Sell Something You Haven't Got, to Create Lower Prices"—It Is a Matter Which Every Individual Must Settle With His Conscience.

Indianapolis, Dec. 13.—Jail on charges of perjury for Frederick W. Zeiss, Chicago, a union ironworker, the testimony of Thomas Taggart, democratic national committeeman, about an explosion and speeches and reports in which the ironworkers' international union was accused of approving of the defiance of the law in its strike, were developments today at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial.

Washington, Dec. 13.—"Manipulation" and short sales on the New York stock market as a means of gambling and the methods of stock exchange brokers, formed the basis of today's hearing before the money trust committee of the house.

Zeiss, the second witness for the defense to be heard in the federal grand jury on charges of perjury, was a roommate of Orrie E. McManigal when McManigal blew up a building in Detroit in June, 1907.

Mr. Untermyer, in his examination of the stock exchange representatives, tried in vain to get a description of methods of manipulation employed to advance or to depress the price of stocks.

Last winter, the district attorney said, Zeiss asserted McManigal never had confessed to him about explosions, which was in accord with that which McManigal had confessed.

They agreed that these matters could not be regulated by the exchange as a body.

Today Zeiss testified McManigal not only had confided in him but also had offered to "split up" with him if he (Zeiss) would help him do the dynamiting.

Matter of Conscience. "Short-selling is a matter which every individual must settle with his own conscience," said Mr. Sturgis.

In response to questions by Senator Kern, counsel for the defense, Zeiss testified that McManigal had told him about the Detroit affair, had invited him to go to Bloomville, Ohio, to procure more dynamite and had said Herbert S. Hockin would pay both of them for future "jobs."

Samuel F. Streit, of the arbitration and clearing house committee of the stock exchange, told the committee that the exchange maintains a securities clearing house where the transactions on the floor are cleared between brokers.

"Didn't I ask you before the grand jury last winter whether you knew about the use of dynamite?" asked District Attorney Miller.

Mr. Untermyer suggested that this clearing house might insist on having brokers deliver the numbers of certificates of stock in which they traded to the clearing house and thus prevent dealings in stock which is not owned.

"Do you say that a few days after the explosion McManigal told you he had done it?"

Mr. Untermyer said he never had managed a pool for manipulating a line of stock. He said that the idea of forming a pool was an old one no longer employed.

Zeiss hesitated.

George A. Field, vice president of the New York Banknote company.

"What do you think I took you before the grand jury for—to look at?"

John E. Conant said he never had managed a pool for manipulating a line of stock. He said that the idea of forming a pool was an old one no longer employed.

"No, sir, I do not remember saying it."

Vienna, Dec. 13.—Now that the lay. That Europe's summons will be obeyed by Servia seems now probable. Turkey will retain Constantinople and a little strip of territory surrounding the capital city.

Montenegro, the first to open the campaign, will also receive important acquisitions of territory, but without Serbia, to which Nicholas attached such importance.

Salonica is the apple of discord for Greece and Bulgaria and its possession probably will be finally settled by the great powers.

Four Concerns With Combined Capital of $14,000,000 Consolidate With Authorized Capital of $100,000,000—Big Combine Owns 96 Per Cent of Developed Power in the State.

Salem, Ore., Dec. 13.—Four men, three of them confessed manslaughter and the fourth protesting his innocence to the last, died today on the scaffold here. One of the three attributed his fate to liquor; a second asserted he had killed in self-defense and the third declared he was insane.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 13.—Articles of consolidation were filed with the secretary of state today by the Butte Electric & Power company, the Montana Power company, Madison River Power company, Billings & Eastern Montana Power company and the Missouri Electric & Power company.

The men who were hanged were Frank Garrison, who declared he was innocent of the crime of which he was accused; Noble Paulder, who asserted that the shooting he did followed a drunken orgie; Mike Morgan, who claimed he slew in self-defense, and H. B. Roberts, who asserted he had been rendered insane while a penitentiary convict by being compelled to work over an armory wheel.

Helena, Dec. 13.—The Montana Power company, incorporated at Trenton, N. J., today, has absorbed power companies in Montana, owning 96 per cent of the total developed water power in the state, and serving more than half the population of the state.

The men had been reprieved for periods running down from 14 months to four months, that the voters of the state might say whether capital punishment should be perpetuated as the penalty for murder or whether life imprisonment should be substituted. And the voters decided that capital punishment should continue.

Without Sensation. The hangings were almost without sensation. The men walked to the scaffold with firm step and they died in the usual manner. The only sensational was when Garrison, one of the first two hanged, rushed to the rail that separates the scaffold from the rest of the death chamber and shouted his innocence, declaring himself to be the victim of a conspiracy.

Booze did it," he declared. "And folks, let me tell you, hanging doesn't cure; you have to get to the root. Hanging doesn't cure the crime."

The principal plans are on the Missouri river at Great Falls and Helena, on the Madison river near the Yellowstone park, and on the Yellowstone river near Billings. Installations are now under way that will more than double their present output of 134,000 horsepower.

The charge to which Pattison pleaded guilty was the larceny of $638 from John Major, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Emerette H. Knox. It was alleged that the money was given him to meet debts against the estate and that he kept the money, issuing valueless checks to the creditors.

Besides supplying Helena, Great Falls, Butte, Lewistown, Anaconda, Havre, Billings, Bozeman, Livingston and other cities with electricity, the company furnishes power for the mines and smelters, for the reclamation of arid lands through pumping plants, and for the railroads.

Pattison was allowed to go to the reformatory without a guard and left immediately for Monroe.

It is reported it now has negotiations pending for the furnishing of power to the Puget Sound railroad for the electrification of its lines through Montana.

The Whitman county commissioners will meet Monday to take steps to remove him from the office of prosecuting attorney and to select his successor.

Will Make Extensions. Great Falls, Dec. 13.—The consolidation of the Montana water companies followed the financial difficulties of the Missouri River company at Helena, which went into the hands of a receiver a year ago, being taken over under a long lease by the Butte Electric Power company, which guaranteed certain indebtedness of the Missouri company. The consolidation, it is said, will mean the immediate discharge of that indebtedness and saving of operating expenses.

A Spendthrift. Spokane, Dec. 13.—Paul Pattison, prosecuting attorney of Whitman county, sentenced today at Colfax to an indeterminate sentence in the state reformatory for grand larceny, doctored when he reached Spokane on his way to Monroe that he had appropriated about $8,900 of the funds of his clients. He said he had concealed this from his clients by a "cover up" system and that his defalcations would not have been discovered for two or three years longer had he not made the mistake of giving valueless checks to creditors of the Knox estate.

It is said the new company will make many extensions of its lines with special attention to the distribution of power for irrigation projects.

Regarding Roumania. The important question has arisen whether Roumania should join the ambassadorial conference, which will begin simultaneously with the peace conference to discuss pending questions. It is said that Germany, Austria and Italy all favor Roumania's participation. A difference of opinion exists as to whether this conference should discuss the question of a Servian port on the Adriatic.

The jury was out more than two hours. Shaefer admitted giving to Riley the gun with which Murphy was shot, but the state failed to prove that Shaefer had knowledge of Riley's intention to kill the man. Riley already has been sentenced to 30 years at the state prison, having pleaded guilty to the charge last week. This is the last of three murder cases for trial during this term and closes the criminal docket.
