that are reliable—that is the kind we keep. We have no use for any other class and are certain our customers have not. Our watches are guaranteed "to go"—not only correctly, but permanently. Perfect workmanship and nice adjustment are the first requisites we see to as regards the inside of our pocket timekeepers. As to the outside, that is purely a matter of taste and expense. If you want a silver case, it should be a good silver case; if a gold one, details of quality, decoration and size and shape should be correctly seen to. There is a certain fashion in watches, as well as in other things. This establishment displays those of the best and latest kind.

By the almanac it's summer and by other signs as well; you know it by the languor and by the summer smell; you know it by the clothes that come with weather hot regarding clothes and labor you esteem the Hottentot; the Hottentot's not troubled over what he has to wear; if his raiment is lacking, he really doesn't care; the grasping trust don't hold him up for his supply of fruit; he merely picks a plantain leaf when he needs a summer suit; he doesn't have to treat his girl to soda and ice cream; to show his love he clouts her—his life's a happy dream; just one eternal picnic in the Hottentot's gay life; against oppressive capital he has no endless strife; he has no ally to keep clean, he gets his grapefruit free; he doesn't have to mow the lawn, he pays no sprinkling fee; if the umpire doesn't suit him, he can sweat him with a club; when he wants a bath he's not compelled to wait to get the bath; he'll do not bother him; he doesn't sweat the fly; the Hottentot has comforts that money cannot buy; and, though his country's mighty money and material and hot—I envy much the comforts of the lowly Hottentot.

In the current number of the American Motorist there appears an article by Secretary William G. Ferguson of the Missoula Chamber of Commerce. The article is entitled: "Montana's Offering to the Tourist." It is well written and it presents attractively many of the opportunities which Montana, and especially western Montana, offers to the summer seeker after health, happiness and halcyon days. Mr. Ferguson writes with a degree of earnestness that comes from familiarity with his subject and with the conviction that his region can deliver the goods. He pays deserved tribute to the men who are carrying on the good-roads campaign in this state and shows how much they have accomplished to make accessible the scenic charms and summer comforts of this region. Mr. Ferguson is one of the enthusiasts of the state in the matter of capitalizing the scenic and climatic of Montana. He has done some effective work along this line and this latest article from his pen is a master stroke of publicity.

Coroner Charles H. Marsh was one of the visitors at the Katspelt meeting of the grand commandery of Montana Knights Templars. Mr. Marsh had three ladies in his party and it is needless to say that the ladies had a good time. Mr. Marsh is a man who does many things well, but one of the best things he does is to entertain the ladies. Mrs. Marsh was one of the party and the other ladies were her friends. There was an evening entertainment at the Katspelt opera house while they were in the city and the Marsh party decided to attend. Now, the entrance to the Katspelt opera house is marked by a blaze of arc lights. It is an ample entrance when you know where it is, but it is around on one side of the building and Mr. Marsh didn't know that. He located the building all right, but he couldn't find the way to get in. He conducted his party up and down the street several times in front of the building, but he couldn't see the door. "The hour for the beginning of the entertainment was at hand and Charles 'wanted in.' He spied a fire escape on the front of the building. That was enough for him. He led the ladies of his party up that fire escape and into the opera house through a window. Which merely demonstrates that C. Marsh always gets there. It may be in some way or another, but he certainly arrives.

Early yesterday morning the east-bound procession started. There were motorcycles on every road leading out of Missoula and they were there at daylight. There were automobiles, there were buggies, there were saddle horses—all outward bound and most of them bearing the essentials for a day's angling. If there are any trout left in the streams this morning it is not because they didn't have a chance to change their location. It was a remarkable day for fishing, even in this country where fishing is a sport so generally indulged in. There was also a large exodus for Frenchtown yesterday morning, the attraction being the celebration of St. John's day. There were a good many Missoula golfers on the Bitter Root links. There was no form of sport which did not have some representatives in the field yesterday. And it was a dandy day for all of them.

LETTER OF INTEREST UNCLE CHARLIE WRITES

C. A. HARNOIS SENDS WORD TO HIS MISSOULA FRIENDS FROM SAN DIEGO.

From sunny California came a letter yesterday from C. A. Harnois. Uncle Charlie and wife have settled in San Diego and he says they are pleasantly situated and enjoying good health, although he is suffering from a sprained ankle sustained in a fall from a ladder and this is keeping him confined rather closely at present. Mr. Harnois writes, in part:

"It was certainly a hard task for me to leave Missoula and I looked back as long as I could at the place I had called home for so long and where I left behind many happy days and cherished friends. We had a very pleasant trip from the snow-capped mountains of Montana all the way to this strange and wonderful country.

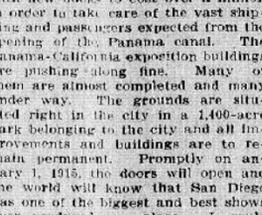

"I could not begin to tell you of half the pleasures we have experienced. California is a great state. Of its wonderful resources and climate you already know, but not content with that, these are pushing everything ahead as fast as money can do it. From one end of the state to the other they are building concrete roads, which costs the state an enormous amount of money, and on every hand improvements of every kind are of the very best. We like San Diego fine. It is beautifully situated on the finest bay on the coast, and slanting gradually back, makes the site magnificent. It is a splendid city of 40,000 population; its buildings are grand and substantial, and everywhere they are erecting more and more of them. Its citizens are a fine class and genuine boosters, who put their shoulders to the wheel and push. The great harbor at the city's door is being improved with new docks to cost over a million in order to take care of the vast shipping and passenger traffic expected from the opening of the Panama canal. The Panama-California exposition buildings are pushing along fine. Many of them are almost completed and many under way. The grounds are situated right in the city in a 1,400-acre park belonging to the city and all improvements and buildings are to remain permanent. Promptly on January 1, 1915, the doors will open and the world will know that San Diego has one of the biggest and best shows ever produced anywhere. I could keep on telling you the greatness of this country and the backbone behind it. One of the most important of all is the wonderful spineless cactus that is to take the place of the sagebrush in the sand hills on the desert, which will revolutionize the cattle growing industry.

"We stopped over in Bakersfield and saw Mr. Fred Smith and family, and had a pleasant visit. We are pleasantly situated here, very close in. Our nearest neighbors are three fine churches and a splendid six-story Y. M. C. A. building. I have not seen Governor Johnson yet, but take pride in the staunch, firm man that he is, in showing Wilson and Bryan that he was the governor of California, and did not wish to be dictated to by them, lobbying around for the Japanese. Mrs. Harnois is well and sends her regards to all her friends.

"Uncle Charlie ends his letter with the following 'P. S.':

"I would give a dollar for a drink of old Rattlesnake water!"

Los Angeles, June 22.—The body of a well-dressed white woman about 35 years old, who evidently had been beaten to death with a beer bottle, was found in the road tonight near Casa Verdugo, about seven miles from Los Angeles. Persons living near where the body was found told officers that they had heard cries for help in the afternoon. A beer bottle with blood stains on it was found near the body. # MISSOULA EAGLES TO POWER CITY TONIGHT

STATE SECRETARY LOGAN AND BIG DELEGATION OFF FOR CONVENTION AT GREAT FALLS.

So far this season the Garden city has been extremely well represented at every state convention of lodge or organization that has been held in Montana. Missoula folks are noted for their hospitality and the interest that has been expressed in the doings of the orders to which they belong this season proves that they are all anxious and willing each to do his full share in the work that is undertaken and carried into a climax at the annual state conventions.

This week in Great Falls the Eagles of Montana are to meet in annual session. Reports come every day to the effect that the Power city is going to spread itself to make this the greatest convention the Eagles have ever enjoyed in this section of the country. Missoula acric No. 22, however, did not wait to get this news before promising its support to the state committee. Several weeks ago the local lodge nominated 48 candidates as delegates. Later these were voted upon and 24 delegates selected. Sixteen of these have promised to go and have made all preparations. The places of the others who could not be certain about being able to arrange their plans for the trip, will be taken by alternates, so that Missoula's official delegation will be complete. In addition to the official delegates there will be a big crowd of members and their ladies to go from Missoula. There will be four active days of the convention, June 23 to 25, inclusive. State Secretary Will A. Logan left last night for Great Falls to get the business end of the lodge in shape for convention week. Others who have pledged themselves to go as members of the official delegation are as follows: E. C. Mulroney, George Pringle, Dan J. Heyron, J. M. Rhoades, J. W. Reedy, Lynde Cullen, R. J. Cyr, James E. Smith, F. C. Hall, C. H. Twyford, A. M. Maher, Lawrence Stinger, W. J. Robinson, A. K. Fox and J. C. Osborne. The main delegation expects to leave Missoula on tonight's train.

ENGINEERING STUDENTS HERE FROM CLEVELAND

Twenty engineering students from the Case School of Applied Science of Cleveland, Ohio, in charge of Professor J. Burns Read, Charles H. Fulton and Frank P. Van Horn, arrived in Missoula late Saturday night and visited here yesterday on their way to Wallace. The students are making a trip over the country and making a study of several mining problems. Their first stop in Montana was at Butte, where they were extended every opportunity to inspect and study the mines and mining conditions. In Missoula they stopped to see the city and rest a day and all were much pleased with their visit. Wallace will be the next stop, where the mining district offers another fruitful field of study.

Professor Read is not a stranger in Missoula. He has been here several times within the past few years. Yesterday he spent a pleasant day visiting with his brother-in-law, Attorney C. N. Madson.
