

Emblem of Happiness

The "Lucky Bluebird" is making the hit of 1913. The pretty and appropriate sentiment appeals to all, but even without the sentiment the delicate beauty of enameling and design will long appeal to the discriminating buyer.

We just received a new line of very fine bluebirds, enamelled on sterling silver. It will be a pleasure to the wearer to have one.

See our window display, better still, come in and let us show them to you.

The Best of Everything in the Market

The Managans and Gallaghers, the Casseys and the rest—these were the men who made the track that brought the OF THIS railroads west; the Go-railways and Rileys, the O'Phigans and McEneaney's—there'd be no roads at all out here, except for such as these; they puped the cars, they tamped the ties, they grandly swung the picks—this would yet be a wilderness but for those stalwart Meks; but now they're gone and in their stead we have fair Italy's sons; while Balkan allies work the brakes on the handcar's daily runs, for we had to have policemen and fill the courthouse, too, so the Irish quit the railway for something soft to do; the railroads blame the commerce laws because their traffic's slack; they will never have the good old times, till they get the Irish back.

"I'm going to get out an injunction and stop that handcar race on the Fourth," said John Bonner yesterday. "There's reason enough. There is not an Irish crew entered in the event. Think of a handcar race without an Irishman at the brakes! The Italians and the Bulgarians are all right in their places, but they have no license to run in a handcar race. When I was railroading, there wasn't a handcar on the road that would run if there wasn't an Irish crew aboard. That race will never go unless there is a change in the entries." And John led the Man About Town over to Nate Kellum for confirmation. "Aw, go on," said Kellum, when he had heard Bonner's tale of woe. "You Irish ought to be much obliged that there was somebody to take your places or you would be there yet." And Nate continued sitting around, squirting the oil against his peasant roaster with just the same deftness that he used to display when he carried a big tallow pot to keep his engine going on the fast express.

Although Mrs. Thompson is president of the state federation of woman's clubs, Tyler B. Thompson will not be known as "Mrs. Thompson's husband." Not yet.

There are other honors for the Thompson family, and these have, fortunately for his dignity, fallen to Tyler. He is the third member of the Missoula Park commission. As the associate of Bill Reid and Jack Kennedy, he will look after the park system of this city, just for the glory there is in it. "I was not going to say anything about it," said Mr. Thompson yesterday morning to the Man About Town, "but I simply must do something to hold up my end in the Thompson family, and I see that the other park commissioners have broken into print. I do not seek publicity, myself, but here are two good reasons why I must announce the fact that I have received a handsomely engraved commission, for which I paid five dollars and which gives me place on the park commission. It is an honor which I prize highly, and I am glad I got my certificate just at this time. I'll need it, even if there isn't very much right now, in the job. As a matter of fact, most of the political honors which have come to me have been of this class. I have either been appointed delegate to some convention where I have had to pay my own expenses, or else I have been named for a job where I have had to dig up the price of my commission. If there are any duties connected with my new office, I shall be glad to perform them to the best of my ability. But, duties or no duties, this commission comes right in the nick of time. You can see that from where you sit."

Cards bearing the familiar signature of A. Buchanan have been received, announcing the last big roundup, which is to be the big feature of the celebration of the Fourth at Miles City. The old cowtown will get out of its ancient clothes and will prance around as it used to, when all around it was the greatest expanse of cattle range in the whole wide world. Buchanan is managing the big show, and those who know "Buck's" ability in this line, know that the advance notices will be made good by the performance. Milestown always delivers the goods, and she has chosen a fine foreman for this roundup. "Buck" will make it go, and there will be no catpaws of mavericks unbranded when he gets through cutting out. It will be a memorable occasion, for wheat and corn are growing on the old Milestown range now, and there will not be room enough in another year for the exercise of the talents of the puncher.

Adam Thiblen is in from Sunrise peak at the head of Windfall gulch. He came in over the old Sunrise trail. He says he had business in town to look after, but it is a fact to be noted that he arrived here just in time for the circus. And his business was not so pressing but that he had time to see the big show. "We have had a fine run of water for sluicing this season," said Adam yesterday to the Man About Town. "It was just as I told you in the spring—there was a lot of snow but there was no rush of water. It came just right; there was a strong flow and it held up a long time. The snow lasted so long on the trail that we have only just now got the horses over to the camp from Fish creek. We are about through washing, but the cleanup will take some time yet. It has been the best season I have ever seen in Windfall." Adam will remain in town until he gets his business finished. Then he will go back for the cleanup.

LOCAL INSTITUTION CANVAS IS ROLLED IN BIG WILL PORTLAND MINING MAN, FORMERLY OF COEUR D'ALENES, RE-MEMBERS ST. PATRICK'S.

The St. Patrick's hospital at Missoula has been made one of the beneficiaries of the estate of the late Richard Wilson of Portland, who died May 28. He was for a long time a resident of the Coeur d'Alenes and held extensive interests there and in Spokane. According to the will, which was filed in Portland Tuesday, five per cent of the proceeds from the sale of Mr. Wilson's mining stocks shall be given to the local institution.

Mr. Wilson's will bequeaths property to the value of $500,000. Relatives in Canada, various Roman Catholic institutions and employees are substantially remembered. The bulk of the estate, however, goes to Esther B. Wilson, the widow. She and Rev. Charles Mackin, formerly of Ashland, Oregon, but now of Portland, are named as executors of the will.

The will directs that holdings of mining stock in various companies, the size or value of which are not made known, be sold and the proceeds be distributed as follows:

Five per cent each to St. Vincent's hospital, Portland; Precious Blood Convent, Montavilla; Sacred Heart hospital, Spokane; Providence hospital, Wallace, Idaho, and St. Patrick's hospital, Missoula, Mont.; 25 per cent to St. Mary's Orphanage for Girls, Oreg.; 10 per cent to Archbishop Christie to be used in construction of a proposed new Roman Catholic cathedral in Portland or in the general work of the diocese if the building is not erected, and 20 per cent each to Rev. Mr. Mackin and Lucilla O'Grady, who resides at the Wilson family home. The residue of the estate goes to the Society of Jesus.

CHANGE IN COMPLAINT AGAINST CONTRACTOR
J. E. Wilson, a well-known cement contractor, and his foreman, Mr. Hogue, will be forced to answer to a complaint charging them with assault in the second degree instead of the third degree for a beating which they administered to M. Daniels at his home on Longstaff street last Tuesday. This was the information given out at the county attorney's office yesterday, the decision to change the complaint having been made after County Attorney Heyron and Deputy County Attorney Marlowe paid a visit to Mr. Daniels yesterday afternoon. His condition is said to be rather serious. The trouble occurred over the laying of a cement walk by Wilson, the city contractor, in front of the Daniels property.

CANVAS IS ROLLED AS BY MAGIC
PACKING OF SELLS-FLOTO TENTS IS INTERESTING PART OF THE EXHIBITION.

Those who waited for the after-the-show performance of Sells-Fлото last night were given an interesting sight. The work of a highly organized circus in taking down and packing up the big "top" is always worth seeing, but in this department Sells-Fлото is ahead of all other circuses. Most shows still stick to the old-fashioned method of rolling the sections of canvas and stowing them in a wagon. The system used by the circus last night, however, was altogether different. It looked so easy that the wonder is that it has not been used before. The apparatus used is simply a big spindle, just like an enormous fishing reel; upon which the canvas was rolled.

The audience at the concert had not been out of the tent 15 minutes when each section of canvas was on the ground and gangs of "canvasbacks" were folding them into neat piles. When the big tent was all laid out in tidy squares, the canvas reel, which is mounted on wheels and drawn by six horses, rolled up to the first pile. Three guy ropes were hooked to the spindle, the gasoline engine started, and the hundreds of square feet of tent wound on the big spool. The whole operation was complete in less than 10 minutes, and has been done in the record time of four minutes and a half. The machine also serves as a wringer in wet weather, which is not the least of its good qualities.

The device is the invention of Mr. Curtis, who directs the canvas work for the circus. He has had it patented and expects to find a market for it with all the big shows of the country.

SETTINGS VACATED.
In the cases of A. M. Stevens against the Northern Pacific Railway company and James E. Smith against the same company, the settings were vacated in the district court yesterday. It is understood that a settlement may be reached out of court. Both actions against the railroad are for alleged damage to property from the smoke of the local yards.

UNIVERSITY DELEGATES PLEASSED WITH MEETING
Gordon Watkins and Payne Templeton, two University of Montana students who have been attending the annual convention of the college man's branch of the Y. M. C. A. at Columbia Beach, Oregon, have returned to Missoula, sunburned and very pleased with the entertainment given them. The Montana delegates occupied a rather peculiar position there among the other boys. They represented the school farthest by a considerable distance from the convention place, and they were also the smallest representation. When they were announced on their entrance in the camp as the Montana delegation they were given a hearty cheer of welcome. Both boys were conspicuous in athletic sports. Templeton won second place in the tennis singles, being beaten for the championship by one of the best college players in the northwest. He also ran for second place in the five-mile marathon. Watkins finished second in the 50-yard dash, which was run in five and four-fifths seconds on a sandy track.

For enthusiasm in the association work and for a pleasant outing, the convention was one of the most successful ever held. Ambitious plans for work in the college associations were made for the coming year and their support was pledged by men from nearly every college in the northwest.

DIVORCE ASKED.
Sarah Freeman, having her complaint upon the alleged cruelty of her husband and his failure to provide, instituted divorce proceedings in the district court yesterday. She asks the custody of the four minor children—Lawrence, aged 16; Jennie, aged 14; Sadie, aged 12, and Gilbert, aged 7.

A NEW BRIDGE.
The county commissioners and county surveyor will leave this morning for Saltese to look over roads and bridges for a day. One piece of inspection will be of a crossing near Saltese which was washed out by the high water and which is to be replaced at once.
