

CURRENCY MEASURE IS DISCUSSED BY BANKERS

F. S. Lusk Back from Minneapolis, Where He Attended Important Meeting.

F. S. Lusk has returned from Minneapolis, where he went at the invitation of the clearing house association of bankers in regard to the democratic currency bill. "There were more than a hundred bankers present, representing Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana," said Mr. Lusk yesterday. "These men were all in an inquiring frame of mind. They seemed to feel that the bill is bound to undergo many changes by amendment and they are disposed to wait until the bill has reached a form more nearly final before they accept or reject its provisions. The net result of the meeting was the appointment of a committee, including two bankers from each of the six states, to bring the matter before the state bankers' organizations for investigation and discussion. Members of the appointed committee are: for Minnesota, N. P. Banfield of Austin and A. G. Wedge of Bemidji; for North Dakota, M. Murphy of Grand Forks and P. C. Remington of Bismark; for South Dakota, George C. Dunton of Webster and J. C. Bassett of Aberdeen. Montana is represented by A. W. Warr of Lewistown and by E. S. Lusk of Missoula; Iowa by C. H. McIndler of Mason City and by E. L. Johnson of Waterloo. Wisconsin has as its members on the committee, George M. Burton of La Crosse and William B. Bank of Superior."

LIGHTHOUSE BUREAU AND FOREST SERVICE

"The federal lighthouse bureau and the forest service are co-operating in forest work," said an official of the forest service yesterday. "Though this sounds strange, it becomes a very simple fact, as the co-operation is confined to the lighthouse districts on the shores of the great lakes in the lumber states of Michigan and Wisconsin. The lighthouse reservations here include a total of nearly 5,500 acres, and range in size from 30 acres at Grand Island, Mich., to 1,040 acres at Grand Marais."

Plan is New. An examination is just being started to determine the best forest methods to pursue on the reservations. On some, from which the timber has been cut, white pine and Norway pine will be planted. On others the timber already growing will be preserved through use. On two of the reservations, the forest experts point out the opportunities are excellent for growing cedar and pine for spar buoys and pilings, to be used in the work of the lighthouse bureau itself.

All parts of the reservations can not be devoted to forests. Some areas will have to be left clear for protection from fire, while others immediately adjacent to the beaches themselves will have to be left bare in order that the lights may not be obscured.

TEAM LEFT IN ALLEY COSTS OWNER A FINE

John Wahlman, a rancher, was reprimanded in police court yesterday and given a sentence of 30 days which was, however, suspended on his pleadings and promises, for allowing his team to stand without attention longer than six hours, the time established by city ordinance. His team was found by a police officer in the alley back of the Western hotel, where they had stood without food or water until they were in distress.

C. Powell was found drunk in front of the first fire station. He was fined $10, but being without money, he was forced to spend the day on the rock pile.

MORNING LECTURE AT CHAUTAUQUA PLEASES

Miss Miller Tells of Origin and Development of Great Movement.

Della Crowder Miller, who delivers a lecture every morning at 10 o'clock at the Chautauqua, is meeting with remarkable success, and her audiences, always large, are greatly in love with this talented lady. Miss Miller has spent eight years in lyceum work both here and abroad and has a fine reputation as a lecturer on literary themes. Sunday afternoon she will follow Ben Chapin with a lecture on "Ben-Hur," conceded by all to be the best number on the whole week's program.

Miss Miller said in part yesterday morning: "Everybody knows something about the mother Chautauqua. The original Chautauqua institute was founded in 1875 by Bishop John H. Vincent on Chautauqua lake, New York, as a summer school for Sunday school teachers. "The mother Chautauqua since 1878 has developed into a great property. It has 37 buildings valued at $3,000,000. Its cottages house 50,000 people every summer. There people come from all over the world to hear these great lectures, literary and dramatic interpreters, vocalists and instrumentalists, and to study in the institute there under some of the best teachers of the world affords."

The Chautauqua means three things. First, a system of home teaching—definite use from the use of spare moments. Second, a summer town among the trees, with all the conveniences of living; the pure charm of nature, advantages for culture, organized sports on water and land, professional men's clubs and women's conferences, great lectures, recitals and musicals. Third, a vacation school with the best environments for study, 13 departments and 2,500 enrolled yearly. Since 1878 33 classes have followed through the course of home reading under the guidance of the Chautauqua institute. Seven hundred people have gained by it their knowledge of history, art and science. This course is the grown-up folks' university, in which the educationally belated make up for deficiencies of early training by this mature entrance into the realm of wider interests and world knowledge. It is an opportunity for all of us to brush up on some subject long since forgotten or not well learned. It is a privilege to enlarge upon the best things in art, history and literature. I wonder if you have ever thought of it—of 10,000 grown-up folks in every part of the world; the housewife in her leisure moments, the missionary in India, the traveler in Africa, the teacher in the islands of the sea, the shepherd in New Mexico, the Tyrol mountaineer, the factory girl in the big mills of New Jersey—all are studying on the same day the same chapter in the same Chautauqua book of history, art or literature. And most naturally the great sense of comradeship exists among the members of these classes, who are silently, patiently, hopefully working to the realization of higher ideals.

"But the greatest power achieved through the New York Chautauqua is the extension of its ideas into our Chautauqua assemblies. Some of these Chautauqua, offsprings or children of the mother Chautauqua, have been running 20 years.

"The lyceum was founded in the days of slavery, upon the demand for a free forum for abolition, and later for the temperance propaganda. The pulpits and newspapers were denied the advocates of these causes then. Wendell Phillips, Ralph Waldo Emerson, John Gough and Susan B. Anthony and Henry Ward Beecher were the founders of the great lyceum movement; that body is one of the strongest factors for progress that influence the American people.

"Lyceum and Chautauqua attractions are divided into two classes: First, the people who are on the platform because of the fame made in some other lines of activity, such as public men and celebrities. Second, lecturers, writers, readers, entertainers and musicians who have won their place on the platform from sheer ability to 'make good' thereon. These are the people who really keep the Chautauqua and lyceums alive. They are the life blood, 'making good' is their daily business. After people have heard a 'big gun' and usually are disappointed, while the treasury is depleted to pay the big fee, the professional lyceum talent puts the people back into good humor by meeting their expectations at a moderate figure.

"The lyceum and Chautauqua movement is just beginning. It has doubled its dimensions in a decade, yet many users admit that we have no more than scratched over the ground, which little more than suggests its possibilities. The cities know little about it. It is grounded in the common people, in the smaller towns in the country, urging them by pleasant paths, always toward a higher vision of their destiny, easing the ascent by innocent broad humor and embellishing it with glimpses of the most gracious arts.

"When a Chautauqua is advertised in a town and some of the high ideal citizens get behind it and push it, soon not only the little town, but the surrounding country and neighboring towns, learn of it, and in some manner every one catches the spirit and all try to arrange to attend all or as much of the time as they can. To many people this is the only vacation they take, but when once they have attended a Chautauqua there is always a desire to go again. So it comes that to very many the Chautauqua week is looked forward to all the year as a time of greatest profit and pleasure while resting from the work which keeps them occupied the other part of the year."

MONTANA'S LEADER OF SUFFRAGISTS IN LIMELIGHT

Miss Jeannette Rankin Arrives in Dakota on Trip to Washington, D. C.

Miss Jeannette Rankin of this city, one of the numerous leaders in the votes-for-women movement now on their way to Washington, D. C., to participate in a great constitutional amendment demonstration, is making good progress in her trip and her work is being given considerable prominence by Washington papers. The Evening Star has the following story concerning Miss Rankin and the suffrage movement that is aiming to secure a senate amendment granting equal suffrage in the near future:

Miss Jeannette Rankin, president of the Montana State Suffrage association, who is on her way from Butte, Mont., to Washington to take part in the constitutional amendment demonstration to be held here July 31, is making rapid progress, according to reports received at suffragist headquarters here. She is making the trip by automobile.

Miss Rankin has passed Fargo, N. D., and is now passing through the middle west. She is stopping at all towns and villages to make "votes for women" speeches and to get signatures to petitions asking the senate to pass the suffragist amendment immediately.

Other parties from different points which are on their way to Washington also are progressing well, reports given out by the suffragists say. The one headed by Miss Edith Marsden and Miss Mabel Vernon, which is stopping at various New Jersey seaside resorts, is said to be meeting with great success.

Jersey Nominates Favor Suffrage.
Announcement has been made at suffragist headquarters here that all three of the party nominees for the vacancy in the house from the Sixth New Jersey district have come out in the open in favor of "votes for women," and that, therefore, the successor of the late Representative Martin is certain to be a suffragist. The three nominees were chosen at primaries held July 8.

Regarding the positions of the nominees, the following statement was given out at the suffragist headquarters: "Archibald C. Hart, the winning democratic candidate, said: 'I am in favor of woman suffrage because I believe that women will have a sweetening and clarifying effect on public life. When one compares some of the women excluded from the franchise with the "crows" of election day, who sit on the fence by the polls waiting for material inducement to vote, one can hardly understand the principle of selection by which such men are accepted as voters, while able women of the community are left out. I will certainly vote, if elected to congress, for an amendment to the United States constitution enfranchising women.'

Daughter Recently Paraded.
"Major Steven Wood McClave, the republican nominee, believes in woman suffrage, and sees no reason for the present disenfranchisement of women. One of his daughters walked recently in a suffrage procession with some of her fellow-members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. Major McClave showed with pride the banner his daughter carried, bearing the inscription, 'Let the women who can't learn.' He promised, if elected, to work for woman suffrage and to vote for the proposed constitutional amendment."

"Herbert M. Bailey, the progressive candidate, when asked about woman suffrage, said: 'I am for it and, if elected, will certainly support the woman suffrage amendment to the United States constitution.'"

NEW PICTURE HOUSE FOR THE SOUTH SIDE

It was announced yesterday that Missoula is to have another moving picture theater. The man behind it is Joseph Apple of Phillipsburg, who has been conducting a theater in that place. He has come to Missoula to enter into negotiations for the remodeling of the building recently vacated as a garage near the high school on South Higgins avenue. The plans call for a moderately equipped theater and Mr. Apple believes that the location will be a paying one, especially as his expenses in that section of the city will be comparatively light.

The Theaters

Empress.
Today's feature at the Empress, "The Banshee," in a two-reel play, by the Kay-Bee people, is a wonderfully costumed and staged Irish play, with a weird plot, dealing with the simple-hearted Irish peasantry with its superstitions of "The Banshee"—a visionary, witchlike creature, whose very name brought terror to the good people. The Mutual Weekly is especially full of timely happenings this week.

Miss Hallgren and Mr. Perry will repeat the song, "Good-Bye My Summer Girl," which was so well liked last night. Mr. Medcalf will accompany this song on the pipe organ.
