RANCHER OF DARBY ENDS HIS LIFE WITH BULLET

ANDREW LYNE, BETTER KNOWN AS ANDY LYONS, COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER SPREE.

Hamilton, Aug. 21.—Andrew W. Lyne, better known throughout the valley as "Andy Lyons," committed suicide this forenoon at his home three miles north of Darby by shooting himself through the heart with a high-power rifle.

Coroner R. W. Getty and Sheriff See went to the Lyne home this afternoon, a coroner's jury finding that Lyne came to his death by a bullet wound, self-inflicted.

Powerful Gun.

Lyne went to the Lyne home about 10 o'clock this forenoon as his employer for a horse. When he was in the road about 60 rods from the house he heard a bullet sing over his head.

Lyne had been drinking heavily for more than a week. According to his wife he appeared more cheerful this morning but was unable to work.

Lyne was born in Nevada, November 15, 1872. He moved to the valley from Butte, living at Corvallis for a time. He has lived at the present home for ten years.

Lyne was a skilled stationary engineer, having been employed considerably by R. L. Harper. Besides his wife he leaves two sons, aged 6 and 4 years, two sisters, Mrs. Bray Wake and Daisy Kroat of Corvallis, George Schwab is his step-father; Dave Nicholson of Darby his father-in-law. The funeral will probably be held tomorrow.

The rifle when examined by the jury contained five loaded shells and an empty one, which was in the barrel. The bullet was steel jacketed, splitting as it left his body and tearing two holes in the granary wall.

LOCAL MISSIONARY MAKES RECORD

HEAD OF AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION VISITS MISSOULA AND TELLS OF WORK.

Joseph O. Doolittle, general missionary of the American Sunday School Union, who headquarters in Valley City, N. D., has been spending several days in Missoula in the interest of the work which he represents.

While here he is in conference with R. W. Newman, a missionary of the society whose field includes the counties of Deer Lodge, Missoula, Ravalli, Sanders, Granite, Silver Bow and Powell. It is the work of these "modern pioneers" in Montana to organize and maintain Sunday schools in the rural district and from the report that Mr. Doolittle makes of the work the missionaries are meeting with splendid success and are receiving good support.

The society is organized along broad lines. Its motto, "Every child in a Sunday school; a Bible in every home; a Sunday school in every community where there is no church," outlines its whole work.

In speaking of the work of the Union Mr. Doolittle said: "Work for the children pays best. Ninety per cent of our business and professional men spent a part of their early life in rural communities. More than 50 per cent of the membership in our city Sunday schools came from country districts and small villages. Sixty-nine per cent of the men teachers and 45 per cent of the women teachers in our public schools are children of farmers. The society, therefore, that saves the children in the rural districts saves the nation. The need of the hour, to save society, is religious information of children rather than reformation of men."

Progress in Montana. Besides Mr. Newman there are four missionaries working in Montana, each being assigned a certain field through which they travel by team or on horseback to organize schools, hold meetings and supervise the maintenance of the schools. During the past year 42 new Sunday schools have been started in the state and these employ 129 teachers. In the work of the year Mr. Newman of this district has made an enviable record by establishing 13 schools himself. For this showing he is warmly praised by Mr. Doolittle.

DID 'BUFO VULGARIS' CAUSE JUNGBERG TO RESIGN?

HERE IS A STORY ON THE STATE FORESTER THAT IS GIVEN OUT FOR THE TRUTH.

A few days ago The Missoulian's Helena correspondent told of the resignation of State Forester Jungberg, adding that private business was given as the reason for the retirement of this officer. The Helena Independent printed the following story, which relates an experience which may have had something to do with the forester's decision to get back into private life.

A moving mass of millions of live loads, covering an area of 500 square yards, hopping, tumbling and jumping from the environs of a small lake near Clearwater postoffice in Powell county, in the general direction of the Blackfoot river, is the crazy story of a migration of bufo vulgaris, brought to Helena yesterday by State Forester Charles W. Jungberg.

Had the "Willies." Mr. Jungberg declared that it was the most uncanny sight he had ever witnessed in his life, and for a moment he believed that he had been half inclined to believe that he had suddenly been transported back to the days of mythology, when pink elephants and blue alligators were abroad.

in the land, and the gods hurled mountains at each other. Alone in a wild region in the vicinity of Clearwater, where the wind moaned through the pine trees, and the lapping waters of the little lake and the caw of a solitary crow were the only sounds that disturbed the virgin solitude of a lonely region, Mr. Jungberg was running a line on a quarter section in a timber survey.

He was looking straight ahead at a distant point, and was moving in the same direction, paying no particular heed to the ground he was traversing. Ground Moved Off. "All of a sudden," said Mr. Jungberg, "the ground I was standing on began to move off in the direction of the Blackfoot river, and for a moment I was scared stiff. I thought I was Captain Nemo on the mysterious island and that the latter was sinking, and I began to look around for a rock of refuge. I began to think, too, that I was going to need a choir to sing 'Rock of Ages'.

Smelled His Canteen. "The strip of land, which was about 500 yards square, continued moving further and further away, and left me standing on what I thought for a minute was thin air. I pinched myself, to see if I was dreaming; smelled my canteen to see if it was water. I had been drinking all day, stomped on the ground and found that it was really terra firma and then began to investigate.

They Covered the Earth. "The moving ground was covered with a growth of short grass, and beneath which was a mass of millions of toads, which were tumbling over each other, hopping and croaking, toward the banks of the Blackfoot river, a mile or so distant. I walked into the midst of them, and they covered the ground so thickly that I couldn't see the earth.

No Snakes in Pursuit. "I stepped on hundreds of them at every step. They were about three-quarters of an inch long, and perfectly black. "No," there were no snakes in pursuit," added Mr. Jungberg, as he recalled the story of the migration of frogs at Klamath Falls, Ore., which are always followed by myriads of reptiles hunting a meal.

CONGRESS SUPPORTS PRESIDENT WILSON (Continued From Page One) acceptable to all sides; that a suspension of hostilities should be brought about and a constitutional election held, the resulting administration to receive the recognition of the United States. This far Huerta has flatly rejected the American proposals and renewed his demand for recognition, declaring that his financial troubles are due to the failure of the United States to recognize him. Official advice to the state department, however, describe the provisional president's plight financially as desperate and officials here believe he has not sufficient money to pay his troops and cannot get money abroad. These considerations and the incessant warfare of the constitutionalists likewise lead American officials to the conclusion that even though Huerta may continue to scorn the suggestions of the United States, the situation in Mexico soon will disentangle itself and that a policy of non-interference should be maintained for the present at least. It is not known yet whether President Wilson will make any specific recommendations in his message, but it is learned from a high government official that his statement of the case would be the basis of the next important step by the United States. President Wilson has made it plain, however, that he has no thought of armed intervention and that he was as determined as ever to maintain an attitude of peace and friendliness toward Mexico.
