Oh, somewhere in this dreary land there lives a wicked tailor; a heartless, soulless wretch is he, or I'm a blooming sailor. He is the master of his trade whose evil fancies gave the trend to 1914 clothes—the undulated knave. Some day I'll meet him, so I pray, and when I do I'll scold him, his classic, hand-pressed features with a single, hearty wallop. Last year I was a handsome man, stalwart and athletic; this spring I'll stand a feeble wreck, mine is a case pathetic. In baggy clothes whose pads and folds disguised my skinny frame, I seemed to be a husky youth, but fashions aren't the same. This spring I'll walk in misery, a poor decrepit man, a mark for youthful jests and gibes, a hunchback also-ran. For this low wailer of the groove has issued this decree: "Spring clothes will be as close as tight." What will my figure be? My legs are bowed and skinny, my ribs are gaunt and bare. I cannot hide in these new styles; people are sure to stare. And so, if fate is kind enough, some day I'll see that tailor, and if I do the punch the wretch will get will be a nailer.

When President Lincoln was assassinated and a whole nation went into mourning it must have surprised some of the northern sympathizers whose hearts were still bitter toward the foe of a few months before to find that the south wept at the news of the great president's death. Today the admiration accorded Abraham Lincoln by the people against whom he fought is one of the foremost revelations of his true greatness. J. M. Van Hoose, an old Montana pioneer, treasures among his belongings a little bit of pasteboard which explains the love of two rebels for the president and which is typical of the acts which won him the deep respect of all his enemies.

LINCOLN MEMORY

Mr. Van Hoose and his two brothers were southerners. In 1860, before the war had really started, J. M. Van Hoose went to Colorado. His two brothers engaged in the great struggle, and one of them, George W., became a colonel in the confederate army. During the closing months of the war he was taken prisoner and was sent to the government prison on Johnson's island. Anxious to see and comfort his brother, J. H. Van Hoose, the third of the trio, went to Washington and asked leave to visit the prison. "I would like to grant your request," the president told the brother, "but this is war and we can't beat you people with kindness." Van Hoose was ready with his answer. "You'll beat us with kindness sooner than with bullets," he said. President Lincoln smiled, and then wrote upon a little card these words: "Allow the bearer, J. H. Van Hoose, to visit his brother, prisoner at Johnson's island, and give him a few necessary articles not contraband. A. Lincoln." The card is dated February 28, 1865. In after years this pass came to the third brother, who had come to Montana in 1863, and is now treasured by him as the dearest of his belongings. "When my brother came back from his visit to the prison," he says, "he went to Mr. Lincoln and said to him, 'There are two rebels who will always love you, Mr. President.' A few days later Abraham Lincoln was dead."

As cheerful as the announcements made by a campaign manager on the morning of election day are the reports of spring's advance, which come from all points of the compass. There are people of a certain disagreeable class who can't enjoy this sunshine. They must stand on the shady side of the street, dubiously looking heavenward in search of coming storms, and warning all whom they meet that this weather is treacherous, that winter hasn't gone yet. These people are worse than blizzards. They take half the pleasure out of a beautiful day. The spring-like air, the sight of marble-playing boys and baseball-playing men, aren't enough to convince them. Not until June are they sure that winter isn't coming back. Then they begin to look for rain. But yesterday's addition to the store of evidence cannot fail to convince them. On the Sam Chaffin ranch near Corvallis spring plowing has been started. Every Bitter Root is a born judge of weather conditions. When plowing is started in the apple belt you may know that the last snow has fallen. Spring officially has arrived.

Ray Cyr has devastated that beard; it is as if a constellation had vanished from the heavens. The county courthouse might better have spared its tower or Jim Conlon or any of its other charms. But Cyr's beard—that blow is too much. Never will there be another like it. Beards may come and beards may go, but in all future tonsorial history no other such creation will be chronicled. In color a pink as tender as the first faint flush of dawn; in texture silken and waving as a baby's hair; in character half-apologetic, afraid to grow farther, yet bold enough to wander unrestrained out of all order and array—it was such a beard as will never be seen again. It has been remodeled into a tiny goatee, like those which French counts are supposed to wear. It might better have been shaved off altogether. Now it is only a sad reminder of glories gone, alas, forever. —G. P. S.

STUDENTS WILL TAKE QUALIFYING "EXAMS"

Professor James Bonner of the university will give, next week, the tests for draughtsmen arranged recently by the department of engineering and the forest service. The scarcity of draughtsmen has given the service some trouble in the past, and plans were laid whereby university students might qualify for summer jobs with the government. Those who make grades of 70 or more will be eligible for positions. A number of engineering students will take the exams, among them being Burton Stuebel, Peter Roman, Webster Jones, Herbert Knish, William Vealey, Hugh Kent, Ed Craighead, Harold Lansing and S. R. Darrow.

PULLIAM IS BEATEN IN DISTRICT COURT

A district court jury last night returned a verdict awarding R. S. Somerville $85 damages in his suit against Sam Pulliam, constable of Hell Gate township. Pulliam won the case in the justice court, but the plaintiff won on appeal. The suit involved some chickens taken by the constable on a writ of attachment. Somerville alleged that the debtor was not the owner of the chickens, but had turned them over to Somerville. Pulliam was indemnified and the case won't cost him a cent.

RANGERS TO RECEIVE BENEFITS FROM MEETINGS

DISTRICT FORESTER AND OTHER OFFICIALS TO HOLD MEETINGS WITH FIELD MEN.

District Forester F. A. Silcox expects to leave Sunday for a trip through the district to attend a series of ranger meetings, which he planned some time ago to complete the scheme of conferences and meetings of the men of this field district for the year. Not long ago all of the supervisors of the district met for a week in Missoula. Last week there was a meeting of the district foresters, logging engineers and silvicultural men at Salt Lake. At each of these meetings definite results were reached and some fundamental policies were adopted. That the rangers should have as much benefit as is possible from these meetings is Mr. Silcox's idea, and he will personally report to them some of the most important things.

In addition to this the trip will give him a chance to meet all of the rangers and get in closer personal touch with them and their work. There will be 11 meetings altogether. At some points the rangers will gather from two or more different forests. In addition to Mr. Silcox one or more other officials of this district will attend each meeting. The schedule arranged for the series, giving the date (inclusive), place of meeting, forests to be represented and district officials to be present, has been arranged as follows:

- The Schedule. March 9 to 11—Boulder Springs; Helena, Deer Lodge and Jefferson forests; Forester Silcox and Assistant Forester C. H. Adams. March 13 and 14—Dillon; Beaverhead and Madison forests; Silcox and Adams. March 16 and 17—Hunters Hot Springs; Absaroka, Gallatin and Bear-tooth forests; Silcox and Adams. March 19 to 21—Miles City; Custer forest; Silcox and Adams. March 23 to 25—Missoula; Lolo, Bitter Root and Missoula forests; Silcox, R. H. Rutledge, J. P. Preston and R. B. Adams. March 29 to April 1—Orofino; Clearwater, Selway and Nezperce forests; Silcox and Preston. April 2 to 4—Coeur d'Alene; Kootenai, Coeur d'Alene and St. Joe forests; Silcox, Preston and R. B. Adams. April 6 to 8—Sandpoint; Pond Reille and Cabinet forests; Silcox, Preston, Rutledge and Adams. April 9 to 11—Libby; Kootenai forest; Silcox, Rutledge and Adams. April 13 to 15—Kallispell; Blackfoot, Flathead, Kootenai and one ranger from Lewis and Clark forests; Silcox, Rutledge and Adams. April 17 to 18—Chesteau; Lewis and Clark forest; Silcox, C. H. Adams and R. B. Adams.

TWO KINDS OF CLERKS CIVIL SERVICE WANTS

An examination for the position of forest and field clerk will be held in Missoula April 4. The entrance salary is from $1,100 to $1,200 in the forest service and from $65 to $125 in the reclamation service. The test embraces the subjects of stenography, typewriting and bookkeeping. Applications will not be accepted from persons who have not had at least one year's actual experience of clerical work in a business office.

Dancing Classes. The young ladies in charge of the Missoula Dancing school announce classes for children to be held at Knights of Pythias hall this afternoon from 2 o'clock until 4; and for adults in the same hall this evening beginning at 8 o'clock.

Bridge Club. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Patten entertained the H. P. H. club last evening at their home on South Sixth street, east. Guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Haviland and Mr. and Mrs. Abbon Lucy, while the members present were Messrs. and Mesdames R. F. Gaines, Leon West, Stuart McColl, George Newton, John Campbell and Henry Greenwood. The accustomed lively game of bridge was followed by a delicious supper served by the hostess. This was the last time Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood would meet with the club before Mr. Greenwood leaves for his visit in Europe and Mrs. Greenwood and little son go to spend the interval of his absence in Great Falls.

Gentlemen Dine. L. E. Sargent entertained at dinner last evening at his home on South Second street the gentlemen who teach in the city schools. Messrs. J. U. Williams, D. A. Stephenson, C. A. Rupp, C. F. Kelly, F. B. Bates, W. H. Grenow, L. E. Sargent and W. F. Akin were seated with their host for an elaborate 6 o'clock dinner served by Mrs. Sargent, assisted by Mrs. J. U. Williams and Mrs. W. F. Akin. After the choice menu had been thoroughly enjoyed, the guests responded to toasts, each in his most entertaining fashion, and the evening was concluded with music.
