

PANKHURST FAMILY QUARREL PROMISES TO END TRIBAL SUFFRAGE DOMINATION

There Are Other Interesting Details Which Bid Fair to Cause Serious Trouble in the British Militant Ranks and All England Watches Intently.

(By Associated Press Cable.)
London, March 7.—Dissensions within the Pankhurst family threaten to end its leadership of the militant suffragette army, according to assertions by some of the younger members of the organization—known formally as the Women's Social and Political Union. It is said that the dissensions are rife in the inner circles of the union and that the outcome may result in crippling the elaborate campaign which the war cabinet of the militant organization had planned for this year, at the same time ending the sway which the Pankhursts have exercised over the society since the Pothick-Lawrences were forced out of its ranks last year.

It has become an open secret that Christabel Pankhurst is anxious to end her long exile in France, for she knows that her mother is not well enough to take up the arduous duties of commander-in-chief, and it is even doubtful if Mrs. Pankhurst is able to return from Switzerland for several months. Christabel knows that she can return to England as a free woman only on condition that she discards the extreme principles of militancy of which she has been chief exponent. She is said to believe now that such militancy has run its course and that the future appeal must be made on moral grounds.

Sylvia Pankhurst, a later recruit to the militant field, is not yet ready to abandon it as a lost cause, and she is particularly anxious to test her East End "peoples army" in a parliamentary demonstration, or in raids like those she made last autumn on the prime minister's house in Downing street. Hence the friction with her sister and what promises to be a break in the autonomy of the society. Sylvia does not believe that the government will give the vote until the country is on the verge of revolution and she believes that she can start the revolt in the East End. Other leaders share her belief that a revolution could be started in the congested East End, but they are not at all sure that once started it could be controlled in favor of votes for women. They prefer their own elaborate schemes for making the lives of public men uncomfortable, and, while not objecting to violence, prefer to keep its use within their own hands. The failure of the Pankhursts to give the forward command for this new plan of campaign has made several members of the war cabinet restless and the overthrow of the Pankhurst triumvirate may be imminent.

In spite of the peaceful attitude of the Women's Social and Political Union the destruction of property continues, and the fear is now expressed that the organization has lost control of its more desperate members. Among the latest sufferers from the activities of firebrand type of militant, is Mrs. Archibald Mackbirdy, who has been making severe attacks on Christabel Pankhurst in her paper "Mackbirdy's Weekly." No sooner was her intention of attacking the militant movement made known than her house was burned down with the loss of some of her most precious possessions. Since the burning Mrs. Mackbirdy has received many threatening and abusive letters, many of which she has published in her paper. Mrs. Mackbirdy is an enthusiastic suffragette and has often expressed her sympathy for the heroic and suffering of the militants.

The latest development of suffragette militancy is the art of "suffragette" militants who are assigned to political meetings and to get in a word for suffrage are being coached in the new art, the chief feature of which is ability to twine arms and legs around a chair or pillar in such a way that it would take a small army of ushers or policemen to pry the disturbers loose. The system worked well on its recent trial at a meeting addressed by John Burns in Streatham until the head of the local government board ordered the stewards to remove the chairs as well as their occupants from the hall.

consequences by establishing a number of high schools for instruction in household economy. The first of these will be opened at the beginning of the next school year in September. The curriculum will be especially directed towards training women in domestic science to enable them to occupy administrative positions as superintendents or heads of public institutions, such as hospitals, sanatoriums, asylums, orphanages, schools, hotels and boarding houses. The course of instruction will extend over three years and will include all kinds of special classes, as well as evening classes for young women engaged in earning their living in business during the day. It is claimed that there will not be a single subject in the plan of instruction which will not be of service to future wives and mothers.

The women's employment question has also been engaging the attention of the ministry of education and the Vienna educational authorities. Efforts are being made to keep the children leaving school from entering upon "blind alley" occupations as so many are doing at the present time. An employment council has been organized in Vienna which will keep the public school teachers informed regarding the conditions of labor in various branches, and it will be the duty of the teachers to advise the pupils, and also the parents, of the facts, and to urge that they be taken into account in selecting the future occupation of the child. It is hoped that this will not only benefit the individual children but will also tend to improve the whole national economic situation.

To the Housewife.
Madam, if your husband is like most men he expects you to look after the health of yourself and children. Coughs and colds are the most common of the minor ailments and are most likely to lead to serious diseases. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when it has a cold. If you will inquire into the merits of the various remedies that are recommended for coughs and colds, you will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy stands high in the estimation of people who use it. It is prompt and effectual, pleasant and safe to take, which are qualities especially to be desired when a medicine is intended for children. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

WOMEN ARE BARRED FROM SCHOOLS IN VIENNA

AUSTRIA IS ALARMED BY THE IN-RUSH OF FEMALES IN ALL PROFESSIONS.

(By Associated Press Cable.)
Vienna, March 7.—Women have been shut out, temporarily at least, from many new places in the teaching staffs of the Vienna public schools. The cry of unjust discrimination has been raised and the whole question of women's employment in Austria is under review.

The exclusion of women candidates for teachers in the public schools is taken by the Vienna city council on the ground that "so few vacancies exist that no further applications for employment of women teachers will be received until further notice." Nothing is said, however, about men teachers.

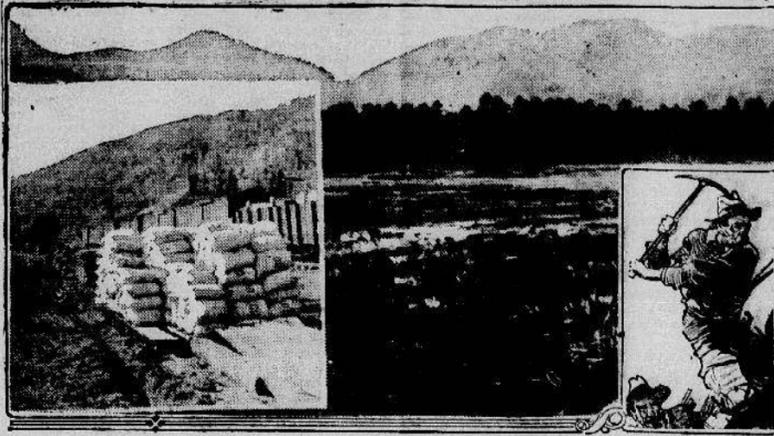

At present women teachers are paid on a far lower scale than their male colleagues, although they perform the same work and have been required to go through exactly the same course of preparation and to take the same examination as the men. For some time past they have been voicing their complaints at this treatment, alleging that nearly all the best positions in the schools are reserved for men. The Christian socialist majority in the city council, however, argues that as women are not heads of families with children dependent upon them for support they have no claim to be paid as high salaries as men. The women deny that this has anything to do with the case, and say that even if it had they, too, are often called upon to support aged parents or younger brothers or sisters.

"Radium Storehouse of the World"

Paradox valley and La Sal mountains; insert shows bags of carnotite ore ready for shipment.

Denver, March 7.—Experts of the bureau of mines declare that the newly discovered radium fields in Colorado are the richest known. Paradox valley, where the great finds have been made, is called "the radium storehouse of the world." These are the fields which Uncle Sam is seriously thinking of withholding from public entry.

Although the Paradox valley fields are called very rich, the highest estimate of the total quantity of radium in them places it at only 500 grains. The highest estimate of the experts of the bureau of mines has placed upon it is only about 180 grains, and this includes material of too low a grade to be marketable.

Most of the American radium is extracted from an ore called carnotite, which contains uranium oxide. As a result of the great demand European buyers are now eager to get ore that contains as low as one per cent uranium oxide. The first radium was produced from pitchblende, the principal mines of which are at Joachimsthal, Austria. There are pitchblende mines also in Gilpin county, Colorado, and these were recently bought by Alfred L. du Pont of Delaware. But the carnotite is by far the most important, and this ore is found in insignificant quantities outside the United States.

The Denver office of the United States bureau of mines has received so many inquiries about these ores that it has drawn up a bulletin which is sent in reply to all inquiries. This bulletin is as follows:

"Radium is found with uranium minerals only. Whenever uranium exists, radium is also found in the mineral, and where there is no uranium, radium has never been found. Uranium and therefore radium are found in this country in carnotites and its associated minerals, and in pitchblende.

"Carnotite is a lemon-yellow mineral, usually found in pockets of sandstone deposits. The mineral may be in the form of light yellow specks disseminated through the sandstone, or as yellow incrustations in the cracks of the sandstone, or may be more or less massive, associated with blue, black or brown vanadium ores.

"Pitchblende is a hard, blue-black ore that looks something like magnetite, but is heavier. It is found in pockets and veins in igneous rocks. This mineral is not nearly as widely distributed as carnotite. Occasionally it is found associated with an orange mineral called granitite.

"The best way to test these ores is to wrap in the dark, a photographic plate in two thicknesses of black paper. On the paper lay a key and then, just above the key, suspend two or three ounces of the ore, and place the whole in a light-tight box. Pressure of the ore on the key and plate should be avoided. After three or four days develop the plate in the ordinary way, and if the ore is appreciably radioactive, an image of the key will be found on the plate.

"The United States bureau of mines, No. 512 Foster building, Denver, Colo., will be glad to receive any samples of ores giving promise of containing radium and associated rare minerals, as indicated by the test above described. Though it cannot undertake to make chemical analyses or assays of such minerals for private parties, it will indicate the advisability of further examination."

So far as known at present only one American concern has actually put American produced radium on the market. Several have mined the ores and shipped them to Europe for reduction, but very recently the Standard Chemical company has entered the market with radium produced in its works at Canonsburg, Pa.

It costs a Colorado miner about $70 a ton to get his ore from the Paradox valley to the principal market, which is at Hanau, Germany. A 1 per cent ore will sell there for about $25 a ton. This represents only about one-sixth of the value of the radium contained in the ore, so the miner scarcely gets his due share of the profits.

GERMANY HAS PLAN FOR BIG ARMY

MORE RECRUITS AND LONGER SERVICE ARE PART OF NEW SCHEME OF WAR LORDS.

(By Associated Press Cable.)
Peking, March 7.—Fifty thousand more recruits must be called to the colors every year and the term of service increased from two years to 30 months if the German army is to be kept at full strength and efficiency, according to General von Bernhardi, cavalry tactician, who supports the campaign for increased appropriations for the army. He argues that even the increase of 155,000 men voted in July will not exhaust the supply of possible recruits. Estimates of the number of able-bodied men who will escape conscription vary from 20,000 to 70,000. These men, if not trained will not be available for service in the next great European war, which von Bernhardi is convinced is impending, and one or two hundred thousand possible soldiers of the younger generation would be left at home while an equal number of older men with families would be mobilized in their places. He proposes to remedy this by a law automatically regulating the peace strength of the army at a fixed percentage of the population, calculated on the full percentage of able-bodied men 20 years old. Other demands to the Reichstag he says include increase of the transport and of the aerial fleet, bicycle detachments to accompany the cavalry, more anti-air balloon cannon and a further development of the aerial division of the army. More than half of the 600 licensed pilots are available for military service. They are trained for reliability rather than for spectacular stunts and have been flying steadily throughout the winter in all kinds of weather, always entrusted with some military task. German aviators now hold both distance and duration records for the world.

COALS TO NEWCASTLE.
(By Associated Press Cable.)
Berlin, March 7.—Heavy orders for German coal have just been placed by one of the London gas companies. This curiosity in foreign trade matched by the fact that Berlin gas companies use English coal, which is often imported into Germany and shipped up the Rhine as far as Mannheim, passing on its way within a few miles of the great Essen coal region, the most important coal district in the continent.

AIRSHIP EXPLORATION IS LATEST PROPOSAL

MINISTER EGAN PLANS TO TELL SOUTHERN FARMERS SOMETHING THAT WILL HELP.

(By Associated Press Cable.)
Copenhagen, March 7.—Maurice Francis Egan, minister from the United States to Denmark announced that he will visit America during April and May to lecture in the southern states on Danish agriculture. Beginning in Virginia and going as far as Louisiana, he will speak before several legislative committees with the idea of interesting them in agricultural improvement.

His special scheme will be the necessity of rotation of crops in the cotton states and the consideration of how the farmer can be held to realize his best plans through the assistance of the states. Mr. Egan will cooperate as far as possible with the agriculture department and explain the principles of co-operation and their practicable effect as applied in Denmark.

In an interview Mr. Egan said: "While a money trust has great danger, a land trust is immensely more to be feared. It would be a great pity if the southern farmers were taught to look to the federal government for aid instead of depending on their own resources and the local pride of their states."

SHE LOST HER HAIR AND GOT IT BACK WITH HERPICIDE

Don't become discouraged simply because your hair falls and is thin, weak and wispy, until you have tried Herpicide. "I first began to use Newbro's Herpicide three years ago, after a spell of fever, which caused me to become almost bald. Herpicide soon restored the quantity and natural color of my hair. I feel lost without a bottle of Herpicide in the house." Thus Mrs. Anna C. Logan, 821 Second Ave., Louisville, Ky., tells in her own words how she lost her hair and how she got it back. Mrs. Logan's experience has been duplicated a thousand times and can be repeated thousands more.
Newbro's Herpicide keeps the hair and scalp in a perfectly healthy condition. When the hair papilla has not been destroyed by the ravages of the
