

ULSTER ARMY WILL NOT FIGHT AND WAS NEVER INTENDED TO

Ulster volunteers in field maneuvers. Sir Edward Carson and map of Ireland showing relative size of Ulster.

London, March 24.—"The Ulster Orange plot has been revealed," John E. Redmond, the leader of the Irish nationalist party, said in a statement today to the Associated Press.

"The plan was to put up the appearance of a fight and then by society influences induce the officers of the British army. By this means they intended to intimidate the government and to defeat the will of the British people.

"The issue now raised is a wider one even than home rule for Ireland. It is whether a democratic government is to be browbeaten and dictated to by the drawing rooms of London and by that section of officers of the British army who are aristocrats and violent Tory partisans.

PARLIAMENT BOILS WITH INDIGNATION OVER ARMY CRISIS

London, March 24.—Westminster continues to be a seething cauldron over what the liberals now denounce as the "mutiny of the army aristocrats" against the democratic government.

"The fact has been established from all obtainable evidence that General Hubert Gough and the other officers of the Third cavalry brigade demanded and obtained written assurances, which had been drafted by a lawyer, that they would not be ordered to fight Sir Edward Carson's Ulster volunteers, and these assurances were obtained largely through the personal intervention of the king.

Before they left London they sent messages to their brother officers in Ireland that they had found support "from the highest quarters." On their arrival today at Curragh camp they were welcomed by a guard of honor with cheers and related the outcome of their summons to the war office.

The throne, which has traditionally kept out of party controversies, both because of aloofness and as a point of honor with public men and newspapers, is involved in the discussion as it has never been before during King George's reign or that of his most diplomatic father.

IN ALASKA.

Washington, March 24.—Determined to begin the fight for the repeal of the free-tolls clause of the Panama canal act in the house on Thursday, administration forces tonight kept the house in session well into the evening.

DEMONSTRATION.

The house of commons witnessed a telling demonstration this afternoon of how the land lies. It showed where not only the Irish home rulers and laborites, who made Premier Asquith's majority and held the balance of power in the house, stand, but that many liberals are opposed to what, from their present information, they consider a surrender of the army officers.

Tokyo, March 24.—The resignation of the Japanese cabinet today has given rise to considerable discussion in political circles in Japan. The radicals consider the disappearance of Admiral Count Gombel Yamamoto's cabinet as a blow to the system of clan government, and they are fighting the influence of the old conservative bureaucratic groups repeated by the Satsuma and Choshu factions in behalf of what they term a truer constitutional regime.

NOT THE KING.

London, March 24.—The unionist morning papers fully admit that it was the king's influence which secured the reinstatement of General Gough and the other officers. They express great indignation at the attack of the laborites on the throne and the army, and take pains to explain that the labor men are under a misapprehension in supposing that the officers were so ready to fire on strikers.
