LOOKING UP
"It's always morning somewhere."

A few days ago Dr. Charles W. Eliot, thinker, writer, teacher, for forty years president of Harvard, celebrated his eightieth birthday. Eighty years is a long time to live and it is a great thing to enter one's eighty-first year with the mind still clear and with the body still active. As a matter of fact, the individual who has come to years of maturity of reflection is likely to value health—of mind and body—at Emerson's estimate of "first wealth." So this average person, having attained years which give him a sensible perspective, asks of those who succeed in making it the first wealth at last, "How did you do it?"

In the case of President Eliot, we have the reply, direct and illuminating, in his own words. In a contribution to the current number of a magazine, Dr. Eliot writes frankly of his personal experience. In this autobiographical sketch, which is intensely interesting in its details, there stands out one statement of such force as to command instant attention. It should be read and pondered by every one who would retain clearness and activity of mind and body. Dr. Eliot says:

I am aware of two mental or moral conditions which have contributed to my state of endurance of physical and mental strains. The first is a natural gift, namely, a calm temperament; the second is the result of a combination of this temperament, with a deliberate practice of avoiding all anticipations of disappointment and vain regrets. When necessarily involved in contests or critical undertakings I tried first to do my best in the actual struggle, and then not to concern myself too much about the issue. That was not my responsibility. When blocked or defeated in an enterprise I had much at heart I always turned immediately to another field of work where progress looked at once, hitting my time for a chance to resume the obstructed road. An administrator can thus avoid waste of energy and a chronic state of disappointment and worry. If any one says that these methods require a serene mind or disposition I can only say that it is hard to tell whether the sound nervous system produces, or results from, the serenity. Certainly any one who ardently desires to cultivate a calm temperament and serenity of spirit would do well to provide himself, if possible, with strong muscles and obedient nerves.

Often we hear persons of our acquaintance referred to as "blessed with a calm temperament." Sometimes we hear that a friend is "fortunate in having no nerves." The statement of Dr. Eliot, which has been quoted here, tells us that, while this calmness may be a natural gift in some instances, yet it may be made the result of careful training. And that training must be the training of self. I know well some men and women who have put themselves through this course of training. One of the best friends I have is a young man who was born turbulent, yet he is now remarkable for his calmness and he is little more than a boy.

His kind of calmness is the kind that counts the most. He is not of the easy-going type that is represented by the person who is born calm. His calmness is that of the person who has conquered himself. "The soft breeze of June will not turn the windmill." The easy-going individual is not the one who wins much. But I have the greatest respect for that one who possesses the calmness which comes from self-training. THE OPTIMIST.

THE FIRST ROUND

President Wilson won the first round of the canal-tolls battle. The administration's majority in the house yesterday was not large, but it was large enough to put over the resolution limiting debate on the main question. That was the main thing. For immediate results, a small majority is sometimes better than a large one. But for general purposes, yesterday's margin may well cause the president to "watch and wait" a bit. The press-dispatch bulletin, announcing the vote yesterday afternoon, closed thus: "Clark, Underwood and Fitzgerald voted against the resolution." There is significance in that.

The president's final appeal in the matter, made the evening before the vote was taken, was direct and personal. He told his friends that he didn't ask them to change their personal views in the matter of toll-exemption, but he did ask them to forget those views long enough to support the pending measure as a matter of national honor and "to correct a serious international situation which threatened to embarrass the United States in future negotiations of treaties and trade arrangements."

Rather indefinite that, as a basis for an appeal to national honor and patriotism, but it evidently had its effect. And the democratic house has voted to enforce the very gag-rule system for which Uncle Joe Cannon was condemned and dethroned. The situation becomes more than ever embarrassing to the administration. "Clark, Underwood and Fitzgerald voted against the resolution." Upon this question of national honor, the Chicago Post makes these observations:

We have never believed that the United States was not morally free to exempt its coastwise shipping from Panama tolls should it so desire. We have said from the start that it was impossible to reduce this question of one of absolute "honor"; to say that we did not treat our coastwise shipping like the shipping of all other nations, we were breaking our word, and that was all there was to it.

This question is far too intricate to be disposed of by any such boiled-down, summary treatment. In our judgment, repeal of the exemption clause is not a matter of absolute right and wrong, but a matter of wisdom. To us, now, it seems the most generous thing to do to give England every advantage that we have at the isthmus in the matter of tolls.

But we do not believe that the progressive senators and representatives in congress themselves open to the charge of dishonorable conduct by their decision to stand together against repeal. They are keeping their party platform to the letter. Which is certainly not dishonorable, through partisan bitterness seeks to turn it into some curious kind of a breach of faith.

Furthermore, if the progressives are keeping out of the field of public honor, Mr. Taft assuredly did it when he signed the exemption act. And Mr. Woodrow Wilson did it when he advocated repeal before his election as president.

We are not making the plea that two or more wrongs make a right. We are saying that where a man of the unquestioned intellectual integrity of President Wilson could favor exemption, neither he nor others who think as he once did can be simply ruled off the boards as "breakers of our national word of honor." There is lots more to it than that.

EXPERTS TO ADDRESS VALLEY ORCHARDISTS

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—Abley C. Dixon of Three Mile was in town yesterday. Mr. Dixon is president of the Stevensville Fruit Growers' association and he was boosting for a meeting of the organization which will be held on Monday, April 6, at the Paulids hall, when Messrs. Samson and Robins of the North Pacific Fruit Distributors are to be in Stevensville. Mr. Dixon stated the meeting would be of interest to business men and others.

FOUR PAIRS OF TWINS BORN IN SINGLE WEEK

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—Twin calves often make their appearance in a dairy herd, but it is seldom that twice within a week two pairs of twins come to a herd. However, that was the case here this week when the herd of the Stevensville Pure Milk company, conducted by C. E. Huber, was increased in number.

CORVALLIS NOTES

Corvallis, March 27.—(Special.)—E. J. Bade has returned from spending the winter in the east, and is superintending farm operations on his ranch east of town.

The Presbyterian Ladies Aid society met in a pleasant and profitable all-day session Thursday at the church.

Mrs. Amos Christianson returned the first of the week to her home at Alta, after a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Bover.

William Wehr is driving about in a new five-passenger Ford, which he purchased last week from Floyd Logan, the Ford salesman.

After a three days' visit with his parents here, Dudley Bowden returned Monday to Deer Lodge, where he is a student at the Montana college.

Miss Newman of Springfield, Ore., is a guest this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Wilcocks.

Mallory Huls, who has been employed in the mines at Butte during the winter, has returned to assist his father on the farm.

Miss Irene Butler was guest of honor on Tuesday evening at a farewell party tendered her at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bay. Miss Butler, accompanied by her mother, left the day following for their home at Holton, Mich.

J. Stevens of Missoula is a guest this week at the home of his brother, Frank Stevens.

John Allen and family are occupying the ranch property of George Schwab, which they have rented for the year.

M. Boudan has returned to his Mountain View home after having spent the winter in Chicago.

The Woodside Social club will give another of their pleasant dances at their clubhouse this evening.

Mrs. L. J. Ellis and daughters arrived home Wednesday from a lengthy visit with relatives in California and Colorado.

DIET OF STRYCHNINE DOESN'T SUIT CALF

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—A valuable calf belonging to J. D. Miser was a victim to poison this week, when in some manner it ate a quantity of strychnine, which had evidently been placed for dogs. It is supposed the poison was left along the alley, back of the Miser property on Main street, which is in the neighborhood of the corral. Of late there have been quantities of strychnine placed about town to rid the community of some of the dogs, and according to reports it has been carelessly left about.

LOGAN RETURNS.

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—Ralph E. Logan of the firm of Logan & Cochran, real estate and insurance agents here, returned during the week from a lengthy visit to Mississippi. Mr. Logan went to the southern state last September.

CHAFFIN BUYS STORE IN UNIVERSITY TOWN

Corvallis, March 27.—(Special.)—M. L. Chaffin, who left several weeks ago to join his family in Portland, writes that he has purchased a cigar and confectionery store in Eugene, Ore., and has taken charge of the business. As soon as the schools close, Mr. Chaffin will be joined by his family, who will reside in Eugene. Frank Allen, who with his family left Corvallis several years ago, is also settled at Eugene and is proprietor of the "Peter Pan," one of the popular confectionery and ice cream parlors of that city.

IN DEER LODGE

Deer Lodge, March 27.—(Special.)—Joseph McBreen went to Butte Saturday evening where he had a conference with Ducky Holmes, manager of the Butte ball team.

The following is the personnel of the party which took in the sights at Butte, Saturday: G. G. Davis, Dave Reese, Richard Hoover, Joseph Braas, Art Keeler, H. J. Luper, James Kerr and Joe McBreen.

A message to Carl Detrich from Alhambra Springs Saturday brought the information that his wife, who is a patient at the above mentioned place, had suffered a stroke of paralysis the evening before. Mr. Detrich left for her bedside the same evening. He returned Tuesday with the welcome news that she had passed the crisis and was slowly on the road to recovery.

James Thomas returned Sunday from the southern part of Idaho, where he had been looking into a land proposition. He expresses himself as being well pleased with the outlook in that vicinity.

Miss Florence Clark has been called to Butte by the illness of her sister. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods spent Sunday and Monday visiting in Butte.

TICKET IS CHOSEN FOR MUNICIPAL ELECTION

HOWARD SMART CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF STEVENSVILLE, IT IS ANNOUNCED.

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—The first ticket to be placed in the field for the coming municipal election is headed by Howard Smart for mayor and Lewis May for alderman from the First ward and Hugh Moore for alderman from the Second ward. The ticket was selected at a meeting held at the Baptist church Wednesday night, and is called the citizens' ticket. It is the belief of some that as there were no candidates seeking the office, that the church meeting was held with the purpose of selecting a ticket which would favor liquor legislation or more strict laws regulating the liquor business in Stevensville.

However, at the present time there is more interest taken in the coming school election than the municipal election.

IN DARBY TOWN

Darby, March 27.—(Special.)—The Como Orchard company is increasing the force of men at work in its orchards.

Fred Nicols and Dr. Buchen were up yesterday on a fishing trip.

Dr. Day has purchased a new auto from Brandenbach Bros.

J. C. Pickeral, vice president of the Darby bank, went to the Hamilton hospital yesterday. He is suffering with a serious trouble of his throat.

Mr. Richards of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company is solidifying in the city. Mrs. C. E. Stout is visiting in Hamilton with her brother, Earl See, this week.

J. J. Dockery, foreman of the Como orchards, was in the city yesterday purchasing supplies.

Alex Chaffin, stockman for the Edwards meat market of Hamilton, was transacting business in town yesterday.

The Episcopal guild will hold a bakery and confectionery sale at the F. D. Dudley department store tomorrow.

Gus Helmers, the painter, is painting and decorating the new bungalow on North Main street recently finished by Joseph Hanson.

Harper & Harper are moving their logging camps from Tincup and Spoon creeks to Connor gulch, a few miles south from their present location.

Bradenbach Bros. have sold five automobiles during the last month to local people.

The forest reserve people are fencing a tract of land on the hills east of Darby for pasture and other uses.

Charles Stout, the hustling dry goods merchant, has purchased the lower story of the Old Bellows' hall, situated just north of the postoffice on Main street. This is a large concrete building and an ideal location. Mr. Stout expects to greatly increase his stock when he moves to his new store.

Fred Sterling of the Missoula Mercantile company and Mr. Wiles was up yesterday on a trip through the valley. They went on up to the Wiles hot springs on East Fork.

STEVENSVILLE NEWS

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—B. F. Plummer returned the first of the week from a business visit to Wallace, Idaho.

Mrs. Helen Hyde of Fallsville, who is visiting in Stevensville, will leave tomorrow for Phillipsburg, where she will spend a couple of days before returning home.

A. M. Thornburg, formerly of Roman, arrived in Stevensville yesterday. Mr. Thornburg comes here in the capacity of manager of the May Mercantile company, which was organized last week.

A. C. Williams, a member of the Dowling & Williams firm, which recently retired from business, is making preparations to go onto his ranch on the Burnt Fork. He has rented his residence property to Manager Johnston of the farmers' co-operative store here, who is soon to return from Dandee, Minn., to reside in Stevensville.

BRESEE EXPECTED.

Stevensville, March 27.—(Special.)—Charles Bresee, a local horseman, who recently went to Kentucky to purchase a pair of horses, is expected to return with a pair of horses and a pair of mules, which he is expected to return with the stock the first of the week.

400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms here in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Percy, an English Nobleman, says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England. That it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position."

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessible a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grazing.
