

JURY LIST BATTLE IS HEATED AFFRAY

Prominent Citizens of Hamilton on Stand in Trial of County Attorney's Petition for Mandate Forcing Jury Commission to Compile New List.

Hamilton, March 27.—(Special.)—The hearing in connection with the petition for a writ of mandate to compel the jury commission to place the names of all citizens, eligible for jury service on the jury list for 1914, which was started yesterday in the district court with Judge Asa L. Duncan on the bench, was held this morning when court adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Judge Duncan had to return to Missoula this afternoon, and inasmuch as the attorneys for J. D. Taylor, the relator, were not ready with their testimony, the case was not taken up at all this afternoon. Before Monday morning attorneys Wagner and Taylor will have prepared a list of eligible jurymen from the registration books for each precinct, using age as their basis. This will be checked to agree with the assessment rolls of the county, and a copy placed in the hands of the counsel for the commission.

Attorneys to Check List.

When A. J. Horik, county clerk and recorder, was called to the stand this morning with the registration books, the court suggested that the checking of each man in the courtroom would be a tedious matter, and advised that the attorneys prepare a list and submit it. This was readily agreed to.

County Attorney Taylor took the stand this morning and testified as to admissions made to him by Tanner and Hart before the suit was started. These admissions, as related by Taylor, were somewhat different from the testimony given by these witnesses yesterday, and the admission of the evidence was strongly objected to by Attorney O'Hara, on the grounds that the attorneys could not present evidence to contradict the testimony of their own testimony. The court upheld this objection. Taylor testified that Hart and Tanner told him that they wanted to see another jury drawn, the former telling Taylor that he was green at the business and that "they" on the other hand, were "old hands" at it. Later, Miles Romney, while on the stand, added this contribution as coming from Hart: "They will have to show me the next time before any name is left off." Taylor also stated that Hart told him that they (he and Tanner), were advised by Cooper that persons paying a personal or poor tax only were not eligible. This evidence was ruled out by the court, on the grounds that such evidence could be secured only by putting Cooper on the stand. Cooper was not called today, and it is doubtful if the attorneys for the relator will use him.

Conflicting Tales.

Both Taylor and Romney, and E. M. Tucker, who was called just before noon, testified that Hart had told them that all he had to do with the drawing of the jury was to copy the names on the typewriter as they were called off by Cooper and Tanner. Yesterday, while on the stand, he testified that he talked over with the other members of the commission, the eligibility of citizens as their names were called, even stating that when residents of Hamilton Heights and other east bench locations were called, that the commission relied on his knowledge.

Romney on Stand.

Miles Romney, editor of the Western News, was called early this morning, and after stating what had been told him by Hart, he was asked by Attorney O'Hara, in cross-examination, if that was all the information he had concerning the drawing of the jury. Romney declared that the only additional evidence he had was the jury list. O'Hara then asked him if he had proof for the statement, made editorially in his paper, that the jury list was "brazenly hand-picked by O. C. Cooper, business partner of R. A. O'Hara," and Romney declared he had none other than the jury list. O'Hara also asked him if he had proof for the insinuation that he (O'Hara) had something to do with the selection of the names on the list. Romney declared that it was only a surmise with him. He was then asked if he knew there were names left off the list, and Romney stated there was many of them. He couldn't state how many, but declared he had checked off a long list. When he was asked if he knew that all of his list was eligible he declared that "some of them were eligible." He was then asked if he thought the members of the commission could absolutely know whether every man in the valley was eligible. O'Hara referred to the fact that Romney had made a "holier" in his paper because he was left off the list, and added that he himself was left off the list but that he didn't consider that cause for calling for another list. Romney advised the attorney that he considered him a competent jurymen. Here the court advised that the examination cease.

ROOT OF ALLEEVIL IS FAILURE TO VOTE

Woolley Declares no True Churchman or Citizen Will Neglect to Go to the Polls—Big Crowd Hears Anti-Saloon Workers—Morrow Talks Also.

John G. Woolley says that a man can't be a consistent Christian or make good as a man and a citizen unless he goes to the polls at every opportunity and casts his vote in the interests of clean government. "The man who stays at home, either from lack of interest or because he is afraid to take a stand for right, is worse than the man who deliberately votes for unclean men and the continuance of immoral practices."

The First Methodist Episcopal church was filled to its capacity last evening by a crowd which listened eagerly to speeches made by Mr. Woolley, the noted temperance worker, formerly a leader in the prohibition party, and Rev. George W. Morrow, field secretary of the Anti-Saloon League of America. Both are now working in the interest of the national anti-saloon organization and Mr. Woolley explained why he left the prohibition party and turned his efforts to assist the new organization in his address last night. Mr. Morrow was identified with the anti-saloon league in Vermont for six years and with a similar state organization in Michigan for eight years. He has been field secretary for the national league for two years. Both gentlemen are eloquent speakers and are "loaded to the guards" with facts and figures concerning the temperance movement in this country. Personal experience of a service of years in fighting John Barleycorn were drawn upon freely by each speaker last night and both talks were very interesting and instructive.

Not Political Issue.

Mr. Woolley said that at one time he believed temperance could be made a political issue and win. After years of work in the prohibition party he changed his mind. The party was not a success and he left it for that reason, fully convinced that the cause of temperance would never win until it was promoted through some national organization that could appeal and demand support from the true men of all political faiths. After he left the prohibition party he still felt the call to make a noise in behalf of temperance. Then he became identified with the anti-saloon league, which is seeking the support of the men of every political belief, which can ask for and win the support of a democrat or a progressive the same as it can of a prohibitionist.

Make Good to Be Good.

"A churchman must not only be good," said Mr. Woolley, "but he must make good. He is not making good as a churchman or a citizen unless he goes to the polls and votes for what his religion teaches him is right. As a prohibitionist I sought to influence men to leave their political parties and join my party. As a worker in the anti-saloon league I never ask a man to leave his party. I urge him to stay there, and as a progressive or a democrat, or whatever he may be, to work for the cause of temperance within his own ranks. Above all, I urge him to go to the polls and vote. It was not a lack of men who favor the suppression of the liquor traffic that resulted in recent battles in the cause of temperance being lost. It was because these men failed to go to the polls."

A Hot Chase.

"The old liquor fox is just a little ahead of the temperance hound in this country," said Mr. Morrow in his talk. "And the chase will never cease until the old rascal has been caught and skinned and his pelt hung on the barn. Sam Small says, 'It ain't so lonesome as it used to wax.' We are no longer the tail of the dog;

we are the dog itself. And if anybody asks you what kind of a dog we are, tell him we are God Almighty's bloodhounds and that we propose to chase those red-livered liquor wolves out and on and into their everlasting holes, jam the holes in after them and plug them up forever."

The speaker gave some temperance figures and spoke of the organization of the national anti-saloon league as follows:

"There are 36 states in this country now with fewer saloons than New York. One-half of all the people now living in licensed territory are living in four states. One-half of all the saloons in this country are now located in 14 cities. There are fewer saloons south of the Mason and Dixon line than there are in the city of Chicago. One-half of all the saloons in this country are in six states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin. Nine states now have state-wide prohibition. Seventeen other states have more than 50 per cent of their people living in dry territory. Forty-seven million of the people of this country are now living in territory from which the saloon has been banished by the sovereign right of the people."

"These facts make this problem one of national importance and a national evil must have a national remedy. So at Columbus, Ohio, last November at our national anti-saloon league convention, with nearly 5,000 delegates present representing 97 state and national religious and temperance bodies, every state in the Union being included, we issued a new declaration of independence for national prohibition, to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in this country."

"We are going to win this fight."

REAL ESTATE PRICES RETARD IMMIGRATION

Olympia, Wash., March 27.—The decline in immigration to the state of Washington during the last four years is the result of "unwarranted" boosting of real estate prices, according to the declaration of delegates to the state convention on immigration, called by Secretary of State Howell, which opened here today with 100 delegates in attendance. The speakers agreed that some means must be devised to provide cheaper lands for settlers and to provide a system of rural credits to enable immigrants to develop their farms. Consideration of plans to increase immigration and to provide homes for settlers will be taken up tomorrow.

FAMOUS DALY FARM DIVIDED AND SOLD

A ROAD ON THE DALY FARM.

Hamilton, March 27.—(Special.)—That the Bitter Root stock farm will be owned by individual farmers within the next few years seems to be the natural result of the determination of Marcus Daly to dispose of the large ranch in 80-acre tracts as fast as they can be sold.

As the result of a decision reached this week, work was started yesterday on the surveying of the Gilchrist ranch of 1,280 acres of the best land to be found in the farm, dividing it into 80-acre tracts. About June 1 these tracts will be put on the market at such terms that eastern farmers will be able to purchase, paying part down and the remainder during a term of ten years with profits from the ranches. Manager Crawford announces that another large tract will be put onto the market as soon as the Gilchrist ranch is disposed of. No one individual will be sold less than 80 acres. This decision on the part of Mr. Daly means much to the city of Hamilton and the Bitter Root. With a prosperous farmer located on every 80-acre tract into which the farm can be divided, Hamilton will be surrounded by one of the richest farming districts in the state, the increase in population increasing in every way the prosperity and stability of the city and community.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk. The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.
