At Union Lenten Service Christian Minister Talks on "Secret Discipleship" Before a Big Audience—Congregational Singing Makes Temple Tremble.

NO SERVICE TONIGHT.

There will be no union Lenten service at the Methodist church tonight. Sunday morning congregations will attend services at their own temples.

get married and when they get sick and when they die, with perhaps a few church collections thrown in between, and that is the extent of their profession. They refuse to take a positive stand and publicly commit themselves on the great issue of Christian redemption.

A splendid audience, with a good percentage of men, assembled at the First Methodist church last evening for the third sermon of the union Lenten services. The song service that preceded the sermon by Rev. H. H. Griffis of the Christian church, was one that will always be remembered by those present.

One of the causes of this secret discipleship is an affected superiority. Some people want to be considered religious and even Christian, but they think themselves too important to be lined up with what they call the common bunch.

The Sermon.

Rev. Mr. Griffis spoke on the subject of "Secret Discipleship." He said: "Joseph and Nicodemus were followers of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews. They allowed secondary considerations of political prestige and social standing to block the path of duty and consistency."

Conditions Changed. "We should remember that the South American republics were in their infancy at the time the Monroe doctrine was declared, and were struggling against great odds for liberty."

CHANGE IS NEEDED IN MONROE DOCTRINE

ADMIRAL CHESTER SAYS CONDITIONS ARE SO DIFFERENT WE SHOULD AMEND.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 3.—Scientists, public officials, army and navy officers and leaders in the world of industry and finance gathered here in force today for the opening of the annual conference of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Among the persons of prominence who are on the program for papers or addresses are Congressman James L. Slaylor of Texas, Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright, U. S. navy, Rear Admiral F. E. Chadwick, U. S. navy, Professor L. S. Rowe of the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard university, Professor B. C. Stowell of Columbia university, A. Maurice Low of Washington, D. C. and W. Morgan Shuster, former financial adviser to the Peruvian government.

A "concert of action" among American republics in defense of the principle of "America for the Americans" as a substitute for the manner in which the Monroe doctrine is enforced today by the United States alone, was urged by Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester.

Two distinct and far-reaching principles are laid down in the Monroe doctrine," he said. "The first is the principle of 'self-defense.' The second is that South American republics, which followed our lead in declaring their independence, should have our protection in maintaining this doctrine for themselves."

The question today, so far as our own national defense is concerned, is, would it be a menace to interests centered so far away as the United States if a European power, whose political and even religious aspirations may be the same as our own, should attempt to acquire territory in Argentina, for instance? Such an assault would, of course, affect the interests of that country, but should the United States attempt to interfere in the matter unless asked by Argentina to aid her in throwing off the menace that assailed her?

Leading statesmen of Brazil and the other South American republics have declared that the Monroe doctrine is discredited in the republics for whose benefit it was devised, not that they do not appreciate the good intentions of the United States, but they deny the right of this nation to appoint itself guardian over their welfare.

"We cannot, however, with propriety form an 'alliance' for that word has been tabooed by an unwritten law of the land."

But there is a field in which the interests of the United States should not be shared with any other nation, the speaker added in considering the countries of the Caribbean sea or along the Gulf of Mexico. "The right of the United States to protect these countries from foreign aggression has been recognized in many ways by European countries, and the protection of the Father of Republics has been called for and accepted so many times as to establish this policy of the American government as an inalienable right," he said.

"In defending the continental policy of 'America for the Americans,' the United States will have ample cause for keeping up an efficient navy, and she will need every ship that our non-military country will authorize to be constructed."

STORY OF EXOXYRA AN EXTINCT MOLLUSK

Many thousands of years ago, before the birth of the Rocky mountains and when the shores of the Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico lay far inland from their present position—when, indeed, the North American continent was relatively very small—there lived in the seas and estuaries, together with various species of oysters, vast numbers of a closely related mollusk with a twisted shell which is now known to science as Exogyra.

efficiently pronounced to enable the specialist of today not only to distinguish the shells of members of the original colonies from those of their descendants, but also to recognize several distinct varieties among the later shells.

covered by a mass of later deposits, which contained the fossil shells of the Exogyra. Subsequent erosion by rain and running water has carved valleys and ravines which expose, from top to bottom, the fossiliferous sediments and enable the geologist to interpret their history, using the different varieties or species of Exogyra to identify definite rock beds and thus trace them across country with a certainty impossible without the aid of this prehistoric mollusk.

THEY'RE KICKING.

Washington, April 3.—There was every indication tonight that the announcement of the reserve districts and cities by the reserve bank organization committee had given the signal for a determined struggle on the part of the several cities which were disappointed, to overturn the committee's decision and bring about a redistribution of the territory, or at least a change in the reserve cities named.
