PREPARE TO SHOW AT COUNTY FAIR

SECRETARY LAWRENCE URGES AN ACTIVE GET-READY CAMPAIGN FOR BIG SHOW.

The big premium list of the Western Montana fair has been mailed to 2,500 farmers in Missoula, Ravalli, Sanders, Powell and Granite counties. The most dependable list of names and addresses available was utilized for this purpose, but undoubtedly some few who would like to receive one of these lists will be missed so that a request by mail to the secretary will be promptly complied with, or by calling at his office in the Missoula hotel open can be had for the asking.

Attention is particularly called to the instructions "How to Prepare Samples for Exhibit." These instructions are found at the end of the list of premiums.

A little care in the preparation of sheep specimens like alfalfa, clover and timothy when first cut will prevent unnecessary handling when the product is cured, at which time the leaves and fine stems, the most important part of forage crops, will break off and lessen the quality if roughly handled.

The premium list embraces almost every article usually exhibited at fairs, but many meritorious articles of fancy work, art and domestic science have no doubt been forgotten, as also some of the rarer farm products. A supplementary list of additional premiums will be published a few weeks before the fair, so that if anyone having a meritorious article which, in their opinion, should be included in the premium list will notify the secretary he will be pleased to add it to the list.

The secretary would also urge those who intend to offer special premiums to get busy and send them at once, so that due publicity can be given the same.

That the fair will contain a huge agricultural exhibit is already predicted by the number of alfalfa exhibits to be made from the first crop, most of which was cut during the past two weeks. While the rains of this week have interfered somewhat with the harvest, a large number of big stacks of exceptional quality of hay are already noted throughout the county.

Those who have not gathered the first crop of alfalfa yet and would like to exhibit at the fair, should gather at least six good-sized sheaves while there is still time. The best samples can be found at the edge of the field, generally at the north or west end. Select good, slender, leafy shoots, without any rust, dead or blighted leaves, tie at the base with a piece of cloth, then hang up with head down in a dark, well-ventilated place, free from dust.

The clovers are now ready to cut and these should be treated the same. It is very important to gather samples of the first crop of clover, and the opportunity to exhibit should not be missed by anyone having a good stand. There are some big prizes offered in this class and clover all over western Montana is exceptionally high, as we have a natural condition in climate and soil which makes for an unusual growth. At the present time the air in the fields and woods is permeated with the sweet odor of the alfalfa, which grows wild everywhere.

In another two weeks, timothy will be ready to cut and in this crop nowhere in Montana should samples be obtained that can beat us out for the prizes at the state fair. A great mistake made by a large number of exhibitors with timothy is that a coarse, abnormal stand with big seed heads is gathered and sent in as a sample of a man's crop. No farmer would from choice buy this kind of hay if he wished it for feed. The exhibit that always wins the prize is the fine, tender, leafy type, 36 to 38 inches high, cured so that it keeps its color. Don't strip off any leaves, and don't gather samples with dead leaves or rusty, discolored stems.

There is more than honor and glory in exhibiting samples of one's crop at the fair. The realization of the fact that a man grows the best in the county should in itself be an incentive for every man with red blood in his veins to endeavor to win this distinction, but the fact that winning a prize at the fair will place the stamp of merit on his whole crop and ranch, so that he can ask the highest market price for it and not have to look for customers, should urge everyone on to get this much more from his labor.

You, Mr. Farmer, who haven't time to gather these samples, read the instructions to your children, tell them where the best stand of hay or grain is located and offer them the prize money if they win. Encourage them to aspire to grow the best in the county. You and your children will enjoy the fair better, appreciate your ranch, work with a lighter spirit and spend a happier winter if you take home ribbons this fall from the great Western Montana fair.

CANDIDATES READY FOR PRIMARY FORESTRY EXHIBIT AT THE PANAMA MOTION PICTURES TAKEN ON FOREST OF THIS DISTRICT WILL SUPPLEMENT SHOW.

THREE MEN FILE PETITIONS WITH COUNTY CLERK FOR PLACE IN PRIMARIES.

Three candidates for office yesterday filed with County Clerk Bubington their petitions for place on the ballots at the coming party primaries. J. E. Gannon is a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff; Edward McCarthy seeks the nomination of the democrats for county treasurer, and Sam Pulliam would be the republican nominee for constable of Hell Gate township.

Mr. Gannon has had a deal of experience as a peace officer. He was undersheriff during Harry Thompson's term and served as deputy under Davis Graham. Last year he worked as a special officer in the Coeur d'Alenes.

Mr. McCarthy is the present county treasurer, having risen to the office after the removal of his predecessor. He has served as deputy in the office, too.

Sam Pulliam has been constable of Hell Gate township since time immemorial. Sam and the office are practically inseparable, and the filing of petitions is a mere formality, of no practical use.
