Caught on the Run About Town

The day of women has arrived, sing loud ye suffrage boosters; it's breaking fine for erinoline and hard for hectored boosters. Behold a Belgian leader comes and offers Belgian wives the luscious sum of fifteen cents for all their husband's lives. Just send the loafers over here, the heartless scoundrel offers, and we will pour three "lits" a day into your family coffers. Think of the joy that word will bring to wives of lazy men; without a chance of holding out the boys must work again. For every day they serve the flag, the lazy, drunken swine, their wives drag down their fifteen cents in money, ain't it fine? And maybe, heaven grant it so, some German with a gun, will meet the whole dad-shooting bunch and slaughter every one.

What a rush there should be for the front when the purport of that Belgian official's message becomes generally understood. Think of it! To the wife of every American resident now fighting in the Belgian army, the government of Belgium will pay 15 cents a day, with five cents a day additional for each child in the family. If the Belgian husbands rank anywhere near a good many we know, their wives will be hurrying them to the front in Jon lots. Fifteen cents a day! That's more than a good many husbands kick in with when they're at home, and under this arrangement all the mud the husbands truck into the kitchen is dispensed with. How that Texas woman who tried, not long ago, to sell her husband's body to a museum for use as a mummy, would have revelled in this situation. She complained that she never got a cent out of her man while he was alive. This war would have been a blessing to her.

Yesterday, bright, clear and crisp, ushered in the finest season of western Montana's year. The lazy, warm days of spring, the sunshiny days of summer, some of the fair, bracing days of winter—all these have their champions among our weather boosters, but to us none can compare with September and October. These months combine the good features of the others without their faults. There is no slushiness nowadays, no excessive heat. The sun is warm, but only comfortably so; the nights are cold and bracing; the morning sharp and clear. And the world outdoors is at the climax of its beauty. Leaves are just beginning to turn. Apples are getting ripe. Hunting and fishing are good. There is no time in all the year like this. The chamber of commerce should take advantage of this season.

The chamber of commerce may not be taking full advantage of weather possibilities, but that is the only bet in the whole game that has been overlooked. Tonight the chamber of commerce concludes its rally week. Secretary Ferguson has been conducting a great campaign for new members, and has been fairly successful. However, in Missoula there are still many who should join the organization. In a community as young as this the chamber of commerce represents no class. It is working for the development of the common resources, for the good of all. The work which the chamber of commerce is doing just now is of great importance to all western Montana. It has started an industrial analysis of the country tributary to Missoula, with the idea of making its files a great repository for acts. There the people of the state may learn just what the possibilities of this section are. There will be no hot air; only cold facts. Later this survey will extend to economic and social conditions. The task is not one of a year or a decade. It is an infinite process. It alone should draw most of us into the chamber of commerce.

TWO NEW JERSEY STUDENTS COME TO VARSITY

FAME OF MONTANA'S LAW SCHOOL SPREADS EAST TO FAR AWAY NEW JERSEY

The policy of the University of Montana has been high standards and an efficient faculty. This has been especially emphasized by President Craighead. Eminent educators have been surprised at the men President Craighead has been able to secure.

Additional proof of this is the presence here of two new students of the law department.

Having finished high school, the young men wished to study for admittance to the bar. They were back in New Jersey. A young man they asked to direct them to a law school was one who had been taking a legal course at the University of New York. But when Alfred Malmel and Henry Bober, the New Jersey boys, questioned him, he directed them to Montana. He said that it was a young school but that the quality of the professors and the efficiency of the school as a whole made the law school of the University of Montana one of the best in the country.

SATURDAY IS DATE FOR BIG CLASS BATTLE

SOPHOMORES WILL DEFEND THEIR FLAG AND WRESTLE AND RACE WITH FRESH

The student council of the university has set Saturday afternoon as the date for the official class struggle between the frosh and sophomores. The affair of Wednesday night was not sanctioned by the upper classes. In fact, it was in direct opposition to them. The freshmen claim, however, that they were in ignorance in regard to the rules for street fights, so no one is to blame for the public battle now.

No "Rough Stuff."

The fray Saturday is to be regulated and no "rough stuff" will be permitted. Every affair is to be refereed by the older students and everything will be conducted in a harmless manner. But even so, the fight will be filled with thrills.

Flag Rush.

For the first time in the history of the school the flag rush will be done away with in favor of a flag rush. Heretofore it has been customary for the classes to "scrap" over a keg of cider. This year a flagpole will be set on the campus and a class flag of the sophomores will be run up. Then the sophomores will gather around and five minutes will be allowed to freshmen to lower the flag. If they fail to capture the pennant in the allotted time they are defeated.

Wrestling and Races.

Besides this there will be five wrestling matches between picked men from both classes. Then the relay race between the two classes will be run. This promises to be one of the closest in years as the sophomores are minus their fastest man, Jones. He has not as yet returned and the quartet of runners will be without a leader. They have Higgins and W. Brown as a nucleus, while the freshmen have Kemp of Missoula and Bridgman of Great Falls, winners of the half-mile and mile in the interscholastic last year.

PINKERTON MEN PROTEST AGAINST REPORT

COLLECTION AGENTS OBJECT TO UNFAIR REPORT OF METHODS, COME FROM HELENA

In yesterday's afternoon paper appeared an article, sent to the Missoula Chamber of Commerce officials by a local concern in Helena, casting aspersions upon the work done as a collection agency by Pinkerton & Co., United States Detective Agency.

Included in the communication was a circular letter of "warning" sent out by a rival concern of a similar name—Pinkerton's National Detective Agency.

Messrs. Gilkey and Talsen, who are in the city as representatives of the first named Pinkerton company, are deeply incensed that the opposition company should resort to what they believe unfair and disreputable tactics.

When seen by a reporter last evening, Mr. Gilkey said:

"The facts of the matter are as follows: We not only do not misrepresent ourselves, but take particular pains to get squarely before the public prior to attempting to do business.

"We have with us the various articles that we have had published in the towns of the state where we have so far worked, and a similar article was handed to the afternoon paper Thursday morning, before we had called on a single firm. This article specifically stated that we were in no way connected with Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, and the same statement appears on all our circular matter.

"About two years ago the services of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency were dropped by the American Bankers' association, and much of the work was turned over to the Burns Detective Agency, but a portion of the business went to Pinkerton & Co., United States Detective Agency, and because of this the enmity of the other agency caused them to take certain undignified means to damage the younger agency.

"Pinkerton & Co., United States Detective Agency was established in 1883, and has been doing general detective work ever since. They have been connected with many of the most prominent cases of this class in the country, and have gained an enviable reputation. About six years ago they added the collection or commercial department to their agency, and have been handling all kinds of collections ever since."

Many of the leading business publications of the country have at various times commented on the service of this collection or commercial department, and the following are a few excerpts from them:

"Business America of February, 1914—The most novel advancement of pressing the public with peculiar modern days, and one that is impressing the public with peculiar force, is the operation of the commercial department of Pinkerton & Co.'s United States Detective Agency. This department of the agency seeks to discover the criminal intent in the attitude of a person who owes money and can pay it, but won't."

"The Wisconsin Banker says, February, 1914—No one is surprised that this novel idea should emanate from Pinkerton & Co., United States Detective Agency, for it is in keeping with their usual alertness; nor is any one surprised at the amazing success the agency has in reducing this novel idea to a practical basis, for everybody knows that Pinkerton & Co., United States Detective Agency get what they go after, and that this reputation can only be attained by born detectives."

"The Chicago Daily Journal, April 22, 1914—In recent years the commercial department of Pinkerton & Company United States Detective Agency has specialized on the criminal intent on the part of the delinquent debtors. This commercial department and its successful reduction of this psychological proposition to a practical basis is attracting the attention of the banks and the business world generally. Some of the results that flow from its operation are little less than marvelous."

"National Banker of Chicago, February 21, 1914—Regarding Pinkerton & Co. United States Detective Agency of this city, will say that they are thoroughly reliable and responsible regardless of what Pinkerton's National Detective Agency says about them."

"The above together with hundreds of testimonials from satisfied clients in all parts of the United States and Canada," Mr. Gilkey continued, "certainly testify not only to the absolute reliability of our agency, but also to their wonderful success in the handling of the very worst class of accounts, many of the letters stating that they have collected accounts that other collection agencies had returned to the client as absolutely uncollectible."

"The suit that the Pinkerton National Agency claims to have pending is the remnant of one brought in November, 1912, and in which they were defeated in December of the same year. They applied for a temporary injunction, and the plea was overruled in the circuit court of Cook county, Illinois, in the following month, and while the main complaint has never been brought to a hearing, it has been postponed from time to

LUSK ASSISTS IN SOLVING PROBLEM

from the delegates to this meeting, which committee shall at once confer and report their recommendations to the federal reserve board, and be it further,

Resolved, that if necessary, such committee shall arrange for the appointment of committees by the clearing houses of the various reserve cities of the United States to accomplish the objects stated in this resolution.

THE COMMITTEE.

The committee appointed included James E. Forgan, chairman, Benjamin Strong, Jr., L. L. Rue, Sol Wexler, and Thomas P. Beal. The recommendations made by this committee to the secretary of the treasury and the federal reserve board held the following suggestions for solving the tremendous financial problems of nations in this stress of war:

"The committee appointed by the conference of bankers appreciates the desirability of relieving the present international exchange situation and particularly of regulating the outflow of gold. The committee at the same time realizes the necessity of promptly meeting the obligations of banks, corporations and individuals to Europe, thereby maintaining the high credit of this country and demonstrating its ability to meet its obligations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"For this purpose and with this object in view, the committee recommends to the federal reserve board the following plan: That the banks of this country, especially those located in reserve and central reserve cities, be requested to contribute to a gold fund of $150,000,000, of which $25,000,000 is to be immediately paid into the depository of the Bank of England in Canada, for which a participation deposit receipt will be furnished to each contributing bank. The remainder of the contributed amounts to be subject to call by the New York committee, through the local committees of respective contributing cities."

"The committee appointed by the New York clearing House association to be charged with the duty of handling the said fund, of fixing the price at which foreign exchange is to be bought and sold and to make requisition from time to time upon the respective contributing cities through the local committees thereof. Said local committees shall have supervision in the respective cities of the shipments and general withdrawals of gold.

"This committee recommends that the federal reserve board take steps to ascertain the amount of gold that will be contributed by the banks in the respective cities and that it use its influence to have the said banks contribute their proper pro rata."

All the world of financiers will watch with interest the results that follow the acceptance of these resolutions.

EXPOSITION CONFERENCE.

In Chicago, Mr. Lusk met with 40 or 50 men representing 18 states in the capacity of commissioners or secretaries of boards making ready for the Panama-Pacific exposition. "The vital issue at that meeting," says Mr. Lusk, "was the statement made by direct authority of those in charge of the exposition, that each nation of Europe, including those now engaged in war, has assured the exposition managers of its intention to participate in the exposition. These assurances have been made since the war was begun. The nations had their exhibits well advanced in preparation before the whirlwind of destruction had begun to sweep Europe. The South American states have even asked for more space and have increased their appropriations, realizing their opportunities for developing in world-wide influence as a direct result of the war. A national organization of commissioners was effected at the Chicago meeting."

Here! It's Proven

There's nothing succeeds like success—and good advertising.

There's no better, quicker, more economical method of reaching all of the people in Western Montana than through the medium of The Missoulian and The Sentinel—your newspapers.

Mr. Brooks inserted the ads which appear in this space.

They made their initial appearance in the Sunday issue of September 6th.

On Tuesday, September 8th, the four-room house was sold.

Yesterday the 40-acre tract of land was sold.

These were directly the result of Missoulian-Sentinel advertising.

The returns were gratifying to the advertiser and are convincing examples of the worth of newspaper advertising as a common field for supply and demand, buyer and seller.
