

R. B. DODDS HOME FROM VACATION TRIP

CHIEF DISPATCHER OF ROCKY MOUNTAIN DIVISION OF NO. PAC. VISITS OLD HOME

Ray Dodds, chief dispatcher of the Rocky Mountain division of the Northern Pacific, returned yesterday afternoon from a vacation trip of three weeks. Mr. Dodds has been to the Pacific coast and from there jumped to Bloomington, Ill., his old stamping ground. Mr. Dodds had no interview to give last evening but declared he had a good time while away. Like all Missoula residents he was glad to get back to the Garden city. The reins of the Rocky Mountain division of the Northern Pacific will be turned over to him again in two days.

The Latest Books

"Little Eve Edgerton," by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, is the account of a young lady who though she has little charm of form or face, contrives to be a presentable heroine. In many ways she is an unusual young lady, especially to be in a novel, being plain and careless in her dress and with what seems to be an impediment of speech. She is very muscular, however, in spite of her slight stature, and after leading the man in the story a wild chase through a terrific storm and after discovering him in a state of coma brought on by a bolt of lightning, she lifts him to his horse and returns him safely to the hotel. There is a scene in a cave.

A warm friendship springs up, the heroine being much taken with the gleaming whiteness of the hero's skin, some of which she has seen while resuscitating him; and he admires her for her energy and grit. They come to love one another as so many couples in novels do. The love part reaches its zenith only after her impulsive appearance at a ball where she dances in an original manner to the delight of each and every beholder. Though abounding in hysterical dialogue, the book has the author's manner which charms many.—(The Century company.)

COFFEE CAUSES STOMACH TROUBLE AND OLD AGE

Physician Says It Interferes With Digestion and Hastens Death by Hardening Arteries.

Among other physiological effects of coffee drinking it is found that this beverage with its drug, caffeine, is one of the causes of premature old age, according to Dr. J. E. Kellogg, of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. He says: "The evil effects of coffee on all persons of whatever age may be briefly summed up as follows: "First, the tannic acid in coffee interferes with digestion. "Second, the caffeine of coffee is a nerve poison. "Third, the effects produced are similar to those of alcohol. When long used, the result is damage to the poison destroying glands, particularly the thyroid gland, liver and the kidneys, as a result hardening of the arteries and premature old age. All medical authorities forbid the use of caffeine or coffee to persons whose arteries are hardened or who have high blood pressure. This condition is always present in elderly people. "Coffee is particularly bad for young children, because the thyroid gland and other poison-destroying glands are not yet well developed. Any intelligent parent would not permit a child to use coffee."

NOTE.—Among invalids and those recovering from disease and surgical operation coffee drinking is almost invariably forbidden. On the contrary the pure food-drink INSTANT POSTUM finds extensive use in hospitals and sanitariums the country over. This delicious beverage is taking the place of coffee in thousands of American homes where health is valued. "There's a Reason."—Adv.

CLARK GOT REBATES FROM SANTA FE IS CHARGE

SHIPMENT OF HIS MACHINERY TO ARIZONA MINES MADE ON SECRET SCHEDULE

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—At a hearing here today before a special examiner of the interstate commerce commission, alleged copies of private correspondence between President E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fe railway and former United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana were introduced, purporting to show that the railroad had allowed Clark a secret rate on machinery to his smelter at Clavisdale, Arizona.

W. C. Donnelly, until March 1, 1913, confidential secretary of Edward Chambers, vice-president of the Santa Fe, testified that he had abstracted from the office private papers and had made copies of them for his own use. Some of the originals, Donnelly admitted, he had obtained by the use of specially made keys.

The copies of the letters shown to Examiner Henderson indicated that Clark and his interests enjoyed a transcontinental rate of $1.50 per 100 pounds on machinery, the open rate being $1.87 1/2.

The hearing was in response to a petition by Donnelly, who seeks to obtain a refund from the Santa Fe of rate charges for the Western Machinery company, et al. G. H. Baker, Santa Fe rate clerk, stated that if the railroad was ruled against by the commission it would be forced to make refunds aggregating $2,000,000.

author's "Happy Warrior," as it is blessed with a happy ending. Philip Wiford is a clever young novelist of promise, "thirty, not bad looking, successful and held to be one of the lucky ones." Worry and too much work, however, bring on a temporary frenzy and he attempts to end his life in the Thames. He is rescued and resuming his sanity he enjoys many a wild and absurd adventure in the company of an amiable old beggar who is surely one of the most pleasing characters found in a book for some while. The acquaintance of this Mr. Puddlebox alone is worth the reading of the book. Love enters the book further on and the heroine is a creature of matchless charm. "The Clean Heart" has much humor and infectious cheer.—(Little, Brown & Co.)

"When to Lock the Stable," by Homer Croy, is a humorous story with its setting in a rural community of the middle west. The story's humor is too often as insular as its scene. Among the characters—and there are many of them—there is one that reveals in the author a budding creative ability. "Brassy," a person of some portliness and a shell-game artist, is well worth knowing. His past is not unskillful and this somehow seems to enhance his personal charm. He is eloquent and resourceful. Perhaps another time Mr. Croy will make a book with more of such as Brassy in it and less of the rest. It would be a decided advance.—(Bobbs-Merrill company.)

"African Adventure Stories," a collection of hunting and adventure tales, by J. Alden Loring, should provide great entertainment for the average boy reader. Mr. Loring is a field naturalist of eminence and was in the party of the Roosevelt African expedition. In this recently published collection of stories, some of which have appeared in various boy magazines, he narrates every sort of adventure that might befall one among the beasts and savage tribes of Africa. From a wealth of material he has carefully selected such as will satisfy the average boy's appetite for thrills. While some of the stories cannot be regarded as serious fact, the great part of them

statement that farmers are brought within the provisions of the proposed law by virtue of its terms, and what he does say amounts merely to a declaration that they may come within its provisions of their own accord if they so elect, which the law specially provides they may do.

Proof Conclusive.
As before stated, the proposed Montana law is the same, so far as any provision that might include the farmer is concerned, as that now in force in the state of Washington, and that the farmers of Washington are not subject to the provisions of the law in that state—and which by the same logic and reason would be true in this state under a similar law—it is only necessary to quote the following letter from the industrial commission of Washington which administers the compensation law in that state, recently addressed to the People's Power League, viz:

Olympia, Wash., Oct. 1, 1914.
Mr. M. McCusker,
Sec. Treas. The People's Power League of Montana, Livingston, Montana.

Dear Sir—Your letter of September 30 received. Kindly be advised that there has never been any attempt on the part of the commission or the framers of the act to include in the provisions of the same, farm labor or any work incidental to agricultural pursuits. There are instances where farm laborers, who have been injured while operating hay balers, combined harvesters, or threshing machines have made application, but same have always been denied on the ground that their work was incidental to agricultural pursuits and therefore not covered.

We wish you success in your fight, and if we can assist you in any way possible, do not hesitate to call upon us.

Yours very truly,
INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE COMMISSION,
P. Gilbert.

Nothing that Mr. Reynolds is credited with saying, in any way controverts this letter. And considering the purpose for which he made the address in question, it is evident to any one of reasonable intelligence that, from the standpoint of the importance of that feature of the matter in the campaign of the Montana Advancement association, if the farmers actually do come within the provisions of the proposed Montana law, by either the express or implied terms thereof, he would have made a straight out, clean cut declaration to that effect on the subject, and not contented himself with the statement that "in a great many of their operations farmers are contributors to the state insurance fund."

The gentleman simply dodged the issue which is equivalent to an admission that the farmers are not either directly or indirectly affected by the law, unless they desire voluntarily to bring themselves within its provisions by specific application to the commission which will be entrusted with the administration of the law.
