Caught on the Run About Town

From out the turmoil and the wreck that once was sunny France, there comes a human gleam, a tale of Volledammer pants. Of blood and mutilations, of hate and wickedness, we've had too good a harvest; here's a bit of humanness. It is a sturdy, honest yarn of Britons wrecked at sea, picked up, half frozen, by a boat from off the Zuyder Zee. The Volledammer fisherman who manned the little craft, were hardy men who sneered at stoves, and at the north wind laughed. Their dripping fellows fell before the biting of the storm; the boat could boast no shelter to keep the Britons warm. Then sudden comes the happy thought, good Volledammer pants, will keep the poor lads warm until they're safe ashore in France. Each sturdy Holland sailor sheds half a dozen pairs, and garbs in homely, stout Dutch wool the dripping, freezing fares. So, safe to France the Britons sail, no more to look askance at clumsy, ugly, snugly-warm old Volledammer pants.

YOUTHFUL HUNTER

Ernest, the 12-year-old son of W. E. Berkhart, the west side grocerymen, put it all over his dad the other day while out hunting. However, Mr. Berkhart has a good excuse to offer because he is still suffering from a broken arm received in an auto accident a short time ago, one arm being practically useless. Father and son went up Marshall creek Sunday and after a hard afternoon in the wet snow, three feet deep in places, crossed a fresh trail. They came upon the deer, a fine big buck, as they neared the top of a divide. Mr. Berkhart got his rifle in action and it cracked twice, but owing to his crippled arm he could not get the weapon high enough to reach the mark. Just as he was setting fixed for a third shot his son's rifle rang out and the buck fell dead. "I gave dad two chances," said the lad, "and I thought that was enough. I wanted that deer and just couldn't wait any longer." Being afoot, the two hunters did not attempt to bring the game home that night, but left it hanging high in a tree. The next morning they started out at 10 o'clock with a pack horse. They found the snow badly crusted and the horse had a hard time breaching a trail. It was not until 1 o'clock the next morning that they finally reached home with their meat.

THIEF OR INSPECTOR

"I wonder was it a milk inspector or just an everyday hobo that confiscated our cream Tuesday night?" remarked Coroner Charles Marsh yesterday. "You see, it was a pitcher full of cream that was sitting on the kitchen table to be served with my coffee in the morning. Somebody emptied the pitcher and carried off a basket of grapes at the same time. If it was one of these milk inspectors that we are hearing about this week, I want to register a complaint that he didn't obey the law, which requires him to seal the sample in my presence. I won't stand for such disregard for a state law. If it was just a common thief that took the milk, why of course we have no redress. We have to look pleasant and endure with meekness."

LAUGHING AT JACK

Swimmers, yes, regular swimmers, without clothes and all that, yesterday basked in the sunshine and splashed in the water in the slough just west of the Mill-waukee station. It was about noon when the swimmers first made their appearance and the sunlight flashing from their bodies made it apparent to those on the bridge that the swimmers were either no bathing suits at all or else were introducing Missoula to a brand new kind of garment for swimming purposes. Some declared the swimmers were boys who would rather be clean than eat their mid-day meal; others said they were members of the Traveling Gentry, or I. W. W.'s, washing their sins away. In any event, few minded seeing the swimmers disporting themselves and did not care whether the police made the men wear proper clothes or not. The thing that impressed most Missoula people was that the swimmers found the water warm enough for swimming at this time of the year. It was a fine tribute to Missoula's Indian-summer climate; that pleased the onlookers and gave the progressive citizen a new argument—if at any time any argument is needed—to prove that Missoula is the best town in the state in which to live.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

There was great activity in the marriage license business at Clerk of the Court Conlon's office yesterday, the following three having been issued: Ralph Arnold and Marjorie Mason, both of Missoula; Andrew Pringle and Marjorie Cady, both of Missoula; Joe Bourman of Helmsville and Mary Zoek of Missoula.

PARENT-TEACHER CIRCLE IS PLANNED AND MEETINGS FIXED FOR THIS WEEK

(By Miss Alma Binzel, assistant superintendent of the public schools.)
It was in the late forties and the early fifties that many Germans came to this country. Upon their arrival, they established schools for their children. These came to be, and are still known, as "German-English Academies." One of their distinctive features was the regular meeting of parents and teachers for the discussion of school problems and for the promotion of sympathetic understanding between parents and teachers.

With the advent of the kindergarten during the eighties and nineties, into the public schools and into philanthropic organizations, there sprang up almost immediately large numbers of "mothers' classes." Here the kindergarten tried to make clear the meaning and the purpose of this new kind of school, which saw so much value in the child's love of making things and of playing with many kinds of toys; of his curiosity about the world of nature and the work of man; of his tendency to express himself in song and in conversation. The work of these various groups attracted much attention from thoughtful people both in and out of school work. The following quotation, taken from a pamphlet published by the National Congress of Mothers shows the purpose which this organization has steadily adhered to in its efforts to organize the existing circles and to establish new ones:

"For 17 years one of the principal works of the Mothers' congress has been the formation of Parents' associations in schools. For 17 years it has worked to interest educators and to organize the parenthood of the nation in connection with the public schools, with the definite purpose of thus providing for parents the opportunity to study the interests and developments of childhood in home and school, and for the teachers the opportunity for a more sympathetic and complete insight into the individual needs and capabilities of their pupils.

"The co-operation of school superintendents, principals and teachers has been generously given. Associations fostered by the Mothers' congress are built upon a foundation of loyalty to the school and a desire to help, as well as to receive help. The history of such circles shows them to have been powerful aids in obtaining benefits for the school."

Missoula's opportunity for allying itself with this forward movement is at hand.

In Missoula.

The need of such an association in Missoula is apparent and at the request of some of the teachers and parents of the children of the Roosevelt school, two preliminary meetings to make plans for organization have been arranged. The first will be for the teachers of the first, second and third grades of the city schools and the parents of these pupils. This will be held this afternoon at 2:30. The other meeting is for teachers and parents of pupils of the fourth to eighth grades, inclusive, and will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Both meetings will be held in the assembly room of the Roosevelt school. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of parents and teachers, and all others interested.

STUDENTS LISTEN TO GOOD TALK BY PIONEER

F. D. Brown of Phillipsburg, one of the old settlers of Montana, spoke to the students at convocation at the university yesterday. Mr. Brown urged the students to get all they could out of their schooling because it will be but a few years until the affairs of the state and country will be in their hands altogether. He asserted that educated men had always been to the front in all of Montana's history and that whenever a man who was not a college graduate held a position of honor it was hard for him to hold it because of the greater efficiency of a university man. Mr. Brown cited the fact that $125,000 is spent a year in keeping the game wardens of the state in office, but that it is practically impossible to get the state legislature to turn free even $100,000 annually for the upkeep of the training places of the coming citizens.

The speaker praised "Following Old Trails," a book written by A. L. Stone of the university faculty, by saying that it was one of the finest histories of Montana that was ever written. In this book are many fascinating stories depicting clearly and truthfully the battles of the pioneers, he said.

COUNCIL POSTPONES JACKSON STREET RESOLUTION

CITY DADS IN REGULAR WEEKLY SESSION — HEAR REPORT OF ATTORNEY

At the regular city council meeting yesterday the final passage of the resolution creating a special improvement district for the opening of Jackson street was deferred until next Wednesday. There were no protests, but the extra time was given upon the advice of the city attorney so that there would be no question about proper publication of the notices.

Not Available.

City Attorney Wallace reported to the council yesterday concerning his inability to secure a copy of the annual statement of the business transacted here by the Missoula Light & Water company, such statement not having been filed with the state public service commission. The figures of this statement are desired by the special engineers now engaged in estimating the value of the water plant. The commission wrote Mr. Wallace to the effect that in many cases an extension of 30 days was granted corporations for the filing of their annual reports, they being due on September 15 of each year.

One Signer.

A petition asking for the creation of a special improvement district for grading Hickory street between the north line of South First street and the north line of the alley running east and west through blocks 52 and 53 in Knowles addition, was received by the council. "We, your petitioners," consisted of J. E. Wilson. The council decided to hold the petition until it was sufficiently signed to insure the creation of the district's being approved by a majority of the property holders.

Routine business took up the rest of the council's time.

GROWERS FURNISHING BIG SPUDS AND FINE APPLES

State Horticulturist M. L. Dean says that big potatoes for the Panama-Pacific exposition have begun to arrive at his office in the Masonic temple. These potatoes, Mr. Dean says, will be weighed immediately upon their arrival and a record of the exact weight will be kept in the office, also sent to the shipper.

Inspectors are busy throughout the state gathering a collection of apples for the exposition. The collection is extensive and of exquisite quality, owing to the general high quality of apples grown in Montana this season. The growers are most generously donating fruit for the exposition, all being vitally interested in the publicity that will be gained for Montana in this way.

Mr. Dean expects to leave today for Plains, where he will go through orchards selecting fruit for display purposes.

WHY FAMOUS PASTRY COOKS USE K C BAKING POWDER

The patrons of our first class hotels and restaurants are exacting—they demand the best. Women go where the pastry and cakes are noted for their excellence. Men are attracted by hot bread and biscuits—when fresh and moist and light.

The pastry cook with a reputation uses K C Baking Powder because he knows that results are certain; every time everything is as good as his best.

Then, too, with K C Baking Powder he can mix the various kinds of batter before the rush of the meal begins and bake as needed so that every order goes to the table fresh and hot, yet the last he bakes are just as good as the first.

The reasons behind these reasons is that K C is really a blend of two baking powders. One commences to give off leavening gas as soon as moistened. The other requires both moisture and heat to make it active. Dough or batter will remain in a partially leavened condition for hours, and when put in the oven, will come up as light as if mixed a moment before.

For cookies, pancakes, doughnuts and the like, which cannot all be baked at once, K C is indispensable. For all baking the doubleraise makes doubly certain.

Follow the example of the professional cook and your baking will be equal to his.
