Caught on the Run About Town

Children have resumed skating on the slough, which is not half frozen, and exceedingly dangerous. SKATING ON THE SLOUGH presence of a special officer would keep them off, apparently; and only a tragedy will convince parents of the peril of the practice. The slough—meaning the pond west of the Milwaukee depot—is deep enough to drown and the ice there will not be safe for two or three weeks and then might melt enough to let one through, any time.

James L. Bales of Dixon yesterday filed homestead application without appending any description of the amount, or location of land in the desired homestead. The puzzled clerks at the land office turned to their guiding star in technical difficulties, Register Frank McHaffie, asking him how much land the man wanted. "Why, that's easy," was Mr. McHaffie's answer. "The applicant wants a homestead on the earth. Don't you see he has sent $11 to pay for it?"

The county commissioners returned late last evening from a trip up the Big Blackfoot valley to the road camp this side of Potomac, where the new steam shovel and two auto trucks for hauling gravel have been kept at work for several weeks. "We are all through with the Blackfoot job," said Commissioner McQuarrie last evening, "except a short stretch which can be finished up in a few days by team in the spring. It is too slippery now in getting out with the heavy loads of gravel. We have broken camp and will move the machinery to Missoula. If the weather is favorable we may be able to do several small jobs of surfacing near the city yet this fall. Our test of the shovel and trucks has been highly satisfactory. Even with a long haul, such as we have had up the Blackfoot, the work has been done at a very reasonable figure. The surfacing of the county highways with gravel would be entirely out of the question on the old bush of team and hand labor. With steam shovel and trucks I believe our ideals can be realized and that the people will get full value for every dollar expended."

The spirit of the holiday season is making its first appearance, or is being given its first expression, through the latest work of the window trimmers of Missoula's stores. There are some mighty pretty displays to be seen on the avenue now and in each there is a strong hint of the gift season. Thanksgiving decorations, of course, predominate just now; but back of it all shoppers get a glimpse of the first Christmas goods of all sorts. Merchants say that business is steadily growing better. Special offerings are attracting the usual crowds every day. Last Saturday was a hummer in every line of trade. The signs are unusually hopeful for a brisk holiday season.

DORM GIRLS ALLEGE THEIR PRANK A JOKE

Editor, Missoulian—The dormitory girls regret exceedingly that a false impression has been created by their glib prank of Monday night, and that so much undue importance was given it in yesterday's paper. The episode referred to was planned as a joke—not in a revolting spirit. A "revolt against Craig hall rules" is out of the question, as the girls are self-governed, and all rules regulating their conduct are formulated by the girls themselves, and passed by them in open meeting.

PLAN FOR DEBATES DIFFERS THIS SEASON

HIGH SCHOOL TALK-FESTS WILL BE CONDUCTED IN NEW MANNER FOR ECONOMY
The Montana high school debate league is preparing for its tenth year under the supervision of the University of Montana, with 18 schools entered. This year the school is working under a new program, different from previous ones, in that there will be no district or interdistrict debates, but the contests will be arranged at the convenience of the schools with the least possible expense in two series. The debates in the first series will take place any time after October 1, and must be concluded by February 15. The second series must be concluded by April 15, and the final will be held at the interscholastic track meet in the spring. The debates in the first series are being arranged with the assistance of Professor George R. Coffman, of the university, who is president of the scholastic organization. The question to be argued is: "Judges should be subject to popular recall." Teams are to be paired by the president of the league until all but eight teams are eliminated. The second series will eliminate all but two of the contestants and the question is: "Immigration to the United States should be further restricted by an educational test, according to the terms of the Barnett bill, vetoed by President Wilson."

SUDDEN IS THE END OF DAMAGE CASE IN COURT

TRIED FOR STEALING PILLOWS AND FOUND NOT GUILTY, HIGGINS SUES WALKER
The damage suit of Albert Higgins against A. C. Walker, commenced in department No. 2 of the district court yesterday, came to a sudden termination shortly after noon, when the court sustained a motion by the defendant to dismiss the action on the grounds of lack of evidence. The case was started the first thing in the morning and it required all forenoon to secure a jury and hear the plaintiff's witnesses. The dismissal came shortly after the session was resumed in the afternoon. The complaint in the action is somewhat unusual. It is stated that last March the plaintiff was accused of stealing from the defendant two pillows. The defendant caused the plaintiff to be arrested on a charge of petty larceny and the arrest led to a trial in a justice court by which the plaintiff was declared not guilty as charged. Plaintiff Higgins then declared that Defendant Walker's accusations about the pillows were malicious and unwarranted and that the trouble caused the plaintiff much humiliation and trouble, all to his damage in the sum of $5,000. The Higgins and Walker families both reside at Alberton.

NEW COURSES GIVEN IN ALL ROMANIC LANGUAGES

The department of Romanic languages at the University of Montana will offer three new courses at the beginning of the second semester. One of the courses will include a study of the modern French drama. The student will be given practice in rapid reading of the modern dramatists such as Victor Hugo, Alexandre Dumas fils, Angier Brieux, Edmond Rostand. A second course will cover study of French literature of the Nineteenth century. Lectures will be given on the importance and characteristics of the French novels, dramas and poetry of the Nineteenth century. Some of the work of principal authors will be read. A course intended for those contemplating teaching French or Spanish will also be offered at the opening of the second semester. Lectures will be given on teaching of modern languages. This will include an introduction to French pedagogical bibliography and a review of French grammar.

SLY HOMESTEADER FOILED BY OUR UNCLE SAM

ATTEMPT TO JUMP RANGER HEADQUARTERS AND GET BUILDINGS FAILS.
If Homer Hodges had made good his attempt to jump a 320-acre claim near Gold creek, which had been set aside by the government for a forest ranger's headquarters, he would have been ahead building and fences valued at about $1,200 in addition to the land which he hoped to secure under the homestead laws. But Mr. Hodges failed in his attempt and has been ousted from the claim, a decision in the matter having been handed down by Judge Bourquin of the United States district court. The decision has been received here by D. F. McGowan, law officer of the forest service. June 15, 1908, the commissioner of the land office authorized the withdrawal from entry of 320 acres of land near Gold Creek, just outside the national forest, to be used by the forest service in establishing a ranger headquarters. Buildings were constructed, the place was fenced and generally improved toward this end, and, for more than two years, a forest ranger made this his headquarters and home.

Gets Possession.

The location was temporarily abandoned in July, 1912, Homer Hodges asked permission of the ranger to move upon the premises to live. This permission was given by the ranger. When once established on the land Hodges refused to vacate, declaring that he would homestead the claim on the ground that no authority existed for its withdrawal. In the Courts, Suit was brought by the forest service through the United States attorney and the case was heard by Judge Bourquin. In his decision he holds that even though the withdrawal of the land under the act of 1908 would not have been valid, the general act of June 25, 1910, gives the president power to make such a withdrawal; that the actual use and occupancy of the land by the forest service for the specific purpose for which it was withdrawn, made the transaction valid and proper.
