The dead body of John McConnell the missing confidential clerk of J. Hahn of Sacramento, was found near Turlock, last Thursday; death resulted from a dose of laudanum.

The supreme court has decided that the united labor or Henry George party is entitled to an inspector at each polling place. The claims of the socialists and Irving hall were rejected.

The tunnel of the Dresden branch of the C. & C., railway, twelve miles west of Coshocton, Ohio, is reported to have caved in last Sunday. Six men were killed and several wounded.

Unwonted precautions were taken by the French authorities to protect the German officials who were surveying the scene of the recent frontier shooting incident. The utmost courtesy was shown on both sides.

Ogilvie, of the geographical survey, who will winter in northern British Columbia, will take observations for the purpose of defining the 141st meridian, which will form the basis for determining the boundary line between Alaska and British Columbia.

Featherman & Co. have just received an artistic little card showing the new colors which will prevail in ladies' styles during the winter. The card is covered with lithographic work of a high order of excellence and the colors shown are certainly beautiful.

John L. Sullivan arrived in London last Sunday. A crowd of 2,500 betting men, pugilists and roughs assembled at the railway station to welcome him, and when the train arrived a wild rush was made for the car which Sullivan occupied. The excitement was great.

Last Sunday, Engel, one of the condemned Chicago anarchists, attempted suicide by poison. The cells of the others were searched, and six loaded dynamite bombs found in Ling's cell. It is supposed that the bombs were intended as engines of self-destruction.

The remains of a dynamite bomb were found in the ruins of the Fourteenth-street explosion, St. Louis, but the detectives think it was placed there by some of the sensationalists who have been writing to the newspapers, claiming they were agents of a horrible crime.

The advisory committee of Plymouth church, New York, reported in favor of extending a call to Rev. Charles A. Berry, of Wolverhampton, England, to fill the pulpit made vacant by the death of Henry Ward Beecher. A special meeting will be held 15th inst., at which the church will be asked to take final action.

A perfection of more effective powder and bullets has enabled the German war office to adopt a smaller bore of rifles. The defects of a larger bore are only apparent in comparison with the French and Russian repeaters. The expense of the change will be enormous, but the government has decided to manufacture the new rifles with the greatest energy.

Henry Willebrand and William Glennon, charged with saying "Ah, there!" in front of the Cole school, San Francisco, and otherwise disturbing the peace and dignity of the school, were found guilty before Justice Henshaw and fined $5.

Miss Florence D. Peraan and Mrs. F. Pugh, two teachers, testified for the prosecution. Henry Sinram, also charged with the same offense, was found not guilty.

James Smith, a respectable citizen of Boulder, Col., suspected that too intimate relations existed between his wife and a young man named Al. Frazier. Smith sent for Frazier to come to his house, saying he wanted to see him on important business. Just as Frazier opened the gate, Smith opened the door and fired, killing him instantly. He then sent a ball through his own head and died in a few seconds.

The executive committee of trunk lines decided the matter of export rates, at its meeting in New York, last Thursday. The Grand Trunk acquiesced in the decision of the committee, and by a rule adopted the average through rate to Liverpool from Chicago as the rate for all routes to the other side of the Atlantic. By this arrangement it will cost the same by whatever seaboard outlet export stuff may be forwarded.

TERRITORIAL NEWS.

Items of Interest From Both Sides of the Divide.

Notes Clipped and Condensed From Exchanges Published Within the Territory.

District court begins at Missoula, Monday, November 14.

Julius Levy won $2,500 from Joe Woolman, at Helena, on the New York election.

Joseph Rondeau committed suicide at Rimini, Saturday, by taking a dose of morphine.

The Crows are again excited over a report of a visit from the spirit of Swordbearer, the dead medicine man.

Western Union offices are now open for commercial business at Fort Benton, Fort Assinaboine and Great Falls.

Work is going forward on the road to the Rocky Fork coal fields. One hundred more men have arrived there to go to work within the last few days.

Joseph Pierce, an old-timer of Helena, and J. F. Keating, the Montana agent for the Noble powder company, both died in that city last night, of pneumonia.

Six bits reward is offered for the apprehension of the young ladies who unhitched the horse and buggy from in front of the M. E. church in Missoula on Halloween.

George Booker has been appointed general manager of the Helena Water company (the East Side organization) in the place of W. G. Greathouse, resigned on account of ill health.

Independent, 8th: Fred. H. Allison, the Richieu restaurant fakir, was arrested at Miles City, Saturday night, but as he could not be held he was released and went on his way rejoicing.

Last Saturday the Crow war came to an end. The military being drawn up in line were fired upon by the Indians, a soldier killed and another one wounded. The troops returned the fire, killing Swordbearer and five of his warriors. The Indians then surrendered.

In the case of W. N. Baldwin, of Helena, county treasurer of Lewis and Clarke county, against J. E. Landsman, of Helena, and H. A. Nachaun, of Rimini, for carrying on a gift lottery and prize distribution in Rimini, a decision was rendered that merchants are permitted to carry on such enterprises in connection with selling goods, and the defendants were discharged.

An accident occurred in the Gagnon mine, Butte, last Sunday night, by which a man named Miles lost his life. He had been ill during the day, and while in the skip became dizzy, and, losing his balance, fell a distance of 580 feet, smashing his head to a pulp and killing him instantly. The coroner's jury attached no blame to the Gagnon company. The deceased leaves a wife and child and an aged mother in Butte.

Inter Mountain: Commencing December 1, the Northern Pacific, in order to meet the emergency presented by the completion of the Montana Central, will shorten up the passenger time between Helena and St. Paul by about eighteen hours. This will be done by the fast trains stopping only at principal points. The trains will be extra. The only places stopped at in Montana will be Garrison, Helena, Miles City and Glendive.

Independent: J. D. Brown, telegraph operator for the Northern Pacific railroad at Helena, registered at the International hotel, St. Paul. On retiring to bed he blew out the gas, and the fact was not discovered until next morning, when the hotel clerk found the gas escaping from a crack in the door of the room occupied by Brown. As he could not be awakened, the door was broken open and a physician summoned, who succeeded in arousing him from his stupor. Brown will recover.

In Wickes last Tuesday, Coffee Bill clubbed Dutch John, who had asked him for the payment of a debt, breaking his jaw and inflicting other injuries that may prove fatal. Coffee Bill is not yet under arrest, but, in case of his victim's death, may be taken into custody. Recognizing the inconvenience to which he may be subjected in that event, he has taken his victim into his own room and is caring for him with a tenderness born of an abiding sense that Jefferson county justice will not permit a man to be clubbed to death without investigation.

Cooking by Electricity.

Resistance coils of platinum or German silver wire have been used for experimental cooking. The currents used have been of constant direction, and the coils traversed by the currents must needs be in or in close proximity to the substance to be cooked. Further, the surface exposed by a coil taking up considerable room is small, and the amount of heat radiated and conducted from the wire if not nearly red hot will not be large. Cooking by electricity has not come into use as yet; the use of alternating currents offers a solution to the problem. A large electro magnet of great self induction is constantly in circuit. The loss of current through this coil as long as metal is not brought near it is too small to be measured. It being desired to cook flapjacks, an iron spider is placed over the poles of the electro magnet. The rapid reversals of current in the coil induce currents in the iron spider, which is thereby heated. For heating liquids, a copper vessel is preferable where it can be used on account of its greater conductivity. The metal in which or on which the cooking is done need not touch the magnet. Indeed, a lessened heating effect is obtained by separating the dish from the electro magnet.—Electrical Review.

A Nest of Steel Shavings.

A natural curiosity has been discovered at Solothurn, Switzerland, the center of a large watch manufacturing district. It is the nest of a wagtail, built wholly of long spiral steel shavings, without the least part of vegetable or animal fiber used in its construction. The steel shavings are half a millimeter thick and about twelve centimeters long. The nest has been preserved in the Museum of Natural History.—The Argonaut.

An Arctic Summer.

One of the peculiarities of an arctic summer consists in the utter absence of darkness, and the natives do not appear to utilize any considerable portion of their time in sleep. At St. Michaels and Port Clarence we saw them talking and playing at all hours, and as I write, at 2 a. m., the decks of the ship are almost as fully occupied as if it were high noon.—Alaska Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

The Rector's Pansies.

Rector—How cute these pansies are; they look like so many monkeys' faces. Bessie (his daughter)—Yes, papa, each one looks like a chimpanzee.—The Epoch.
