A neat, handy and valuable reference book has been issued by the State Ore Sampling company of this city. It gives the method of sampling and selling ores, and is full of valuable tables of weights, measures, monetary affairs and good rules. It is furnished free to all who write for it.—The Mining Industry and Tradesman, Denver, Colorado. 22-tf.

This seems to be the camping-out season, judging from the number of those talking of taking a few days' recreation on Rock and other places in this vicinity. A number have gone out already and others are making arrangements to go. There will probably be a great scarcity of fish in the streams and birds in the air after this month has passed and gone.

The Jag Springs "picnic" has been postponed for a couple of weeks owing to the fact that most of the members are at present camping out with the various parties on Rock creek and other places. The lord high executioner feels some delicacy in calling his men to duty, thus compelling them to desert their lady friends, his principal objection being that he don't believe they would obey the call to attend the regular annual "stag" picnic of the above named organization under the present circumstances. The picnic will positively be held later on.

The advance guard of the Walker camping party started out Tuesday morning for ten days' outing on Rock creek. They will camp somewhere near the first Hogback, spending the time in hunting, fishing, killing mosquitoes and other outdoor amusements. Those who went out Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. D. M. John C. Argall, who for many years has been popular among the people of this district, will be a candidate for the nomination of clerk and recorder on the republican ticket. Should he get the nomination it would be difficult to defeat him. He is in every way competent and would fill the office in a creditable manner.

A number of Philipsburgers are in attendance at the grand lodge meeting of the Degree of Honor and A. O. U. W. at Anaconda this week. Among those who are in attendance and whose names we have obtained are Mrs. F. J. Wilson, Mrs. J. C. Wilson, Mrs. Josiah Shull, Miss Mary Pizer, Miss Lottie Pizer, Josiah Shull and John Harding. This session of the grand lodge will be one of unusual interest, and outside of the regular programme there will be a grand barbecue, ball and banquet, etc. The organization has grown wonderfully during the past year and this session will be numerically stronger than any yet held in the state. The Anaconda people will take particular pains that all who visit that city during the festivities may enjoy themselves thoroughly.

The citizens of Granite have reason to complain of the mail service now afforded them between here and Philipsburg. It seems that the schedule time for the star line to leave the 'burg is 4 o'clock p. m., and whether the train has arrived at Philipsburg by that time or not the mail wagon comes up just the same, and it has so happened that of late the train has not been getting in until after that hour and consequently we have been receiving mail one day late for some time. The postmasters here or at the 'burg have no authority to hold the carrier in Philipsburg to wait the arrival of the train. It must be remedied through the department, and Postmaster Swartz has applied for the necessary relief.

A HIGH COMPLIMENT.

Paid to Miss M. C. Ryan on Her Visit to Her Ohio Home.

The following clipping is taken from the Bellaire (Ohio) Herald, and as it relates to a person well known in this vicinity, we gladly reproduce it. It shows in what high estimation Miss M. C. Ryan, principal of the Philipsburg schools, is held at her home in that Ohio town, where she has taught school so many years:

In the confusion of getting out our paper last week, we omitted to notice the arrival of Miss Marie C. Ryan from the West to visit her brother J. B. Ryan and her other friends of former days. Miss Ryan was a teacher in our public schools for twenty-four successive years and many of the generation now active in our affairs were her pupils. During the past eight years she has been laboring in the far west. Four years she taught at Montrose, Colorado, and the last four at Philipsburg, Montana. It is six years since she had before visited her native town, and the coming of one who had been so closely associated with the community in so vital a capacity was no ordinary event. Her old friends were glad to greet her and have improved the opportunity. Sabbath evening by invitation of Rev. Alexander she gave quite an entertaining and instructive talk in the Presbyterian church on the subject of Church and Christian Endeavor work in the west. A large audience was present and when Mr. Alexander called upon those present who had been her pupils to stand up, some fifty or sixty arose. Miss Ryan will remain here the remainder of the summer, but will probably return West in the fall.

One of Helena's Claims.

A pamphlet recently issued by the Helena capital committee contains the following paragraphs:

"Something might also be said about the social life of Helena, of its beautiful homes and its refined and intellectual society. Here on the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains are found many people of high culture, whose standards of thinking and living compare favorably with those of the best elements of eastern city life.

"A pleasant and sensible custom prevails among the business and professional men of the city to spend an hour at the club after leaving their banks, offices and stores before going home for supper. Between 5 and 7 there is sure to be found in the card rooms a score or more prominent people, engaged in playing Australian whist, cribbage or Montana freeze-out, with no higher possible loss than cigars or drinks, for no playing for money is allowed by the rules of the club. In this daily club gathering you will be pretty sure to meet two or three ex-governors, half a dozen bankers, several judges of the federal and state courts, and many prominent lawyers and merchants. The freedom of the club is invariably extended to members of the legislature and most liberally to visitors to the city."

The laboring classes of Montana are requested to lend their support toward the maintenance of such conveniences for the ex-governors and bankers! It's a strong plea, sure enough, to come from the town that prides itself on its class distinction.

Services at the M. E. church next Sunday: At 10 a. m., Sunday school; sermon by Rev. J. J. McAllister; class meeting at 12 m.; Epworth League at 7 p. m. Preaching at the Granite M. E. church at 7:30 p. m.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McWilliams was the scene of a pleasant group of children Tuesday afternoon in honor of their daughter Anna's sixth birthday. The following are the names of the little guests present: Hazel Reek, Maude Hammond, Miamie McRae, Rosa Rust, Estella Ries, Beulah Smalley, Rena Castle, Graec McDonald, Lizzie Cole, Mary Cole, Florence Cole, Ena Castle, Lily Reek, Hazel McDonel, Phillis McLeod, Anna Holtquist, Nicholas Browning, Cora Williams, Miles Williams and Walter Ballard. After the luncheon and a happy play-time they all returned home, wishing Anna that all her birthdays might be as pleasant and joyful as this one.

THE GIRTH OF THE EARTH.

A Measurement That Will Deal With Feet About to Be Taken.

The computers of the coast and geodetic survey will take up within a few months a huge mathematical problem from which they are expected to determine more accurately than has ever been done before the distance around the world. The results will be of great importance to scientists of all countries and will be awaited with interest by those who would like to know whether this terrestrial ball on which we live is really larger or smaller than it is supposed to be. The measurements of the surveyors, from which this information is to be compiled, are now almost completed.

The task is one of great magnitude and will require from two to three years of solid mathematical grinding, such as would turn the majority of students pale. Many men have worked over this ground before, and it has long been supposed that the person who circumvented the globe covered a distance of about 24,000 miles or that, if he could drop from the icy pinnacle of the north pole to a similar location in the southern hemisphere, he would descend through one-third this amount of space. The scientists have long ceased, however, to be satisfied with an expression of miles and furlongs for these distances and are striving to obtain a correct measurement in feet. Mr. Andrew Braid, executive officer of the coast and geodetic survey, recently said he believed the distance would eventually be computed so that the error in the diameter would not exceed 50 feet.

The preparation for this mammoth undertaking of the mathematical men of the survey requires the accurate measurement of the longest possible distance on the earth's surface. This is what is technically called an arc, because it comprises a portion of the earth's circumference. The surveyors will soon have an arc 8,000 miles in length, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, which has been determined with infallible precision by the use of the most accurate instruments and the employment of the most skilled men. This line is along the thirty-ninth parallel and will be completed, with the system of triangulation through what is called the continental divide, the present season.—Washington Post.

A BIG TUMBLE IN PRICE.

How the Cost of Equipping an Electric Car Has Fallen in Six Years.

Take the electric railway field, for instance, which is undoubtedly the branch of electrical work possessing the greatest possibilities for rapid commercial development, and consequently offers a constantly growing market for electrical manufactures. Six years ago the price for a complete equipment for a trolley car, including two motors, was about $4,500. This price held for a year and a half and then dropped to $3,550, $3,500 and $3,300, until two years ago it was about $2,850. One year ago $2,000 was the price of the same equipment, greatly improved in quality and efficiency, while today the average price is between $1,000 and $1,200. We have been told of an electric railway manager who desired quite recently to purchase an equipment for a single car. He wrote to seven manufacturing companies and immediately was called upon by seven salesmen, all of whom had paid traveling expenses, to try for the order. The prices quoted ranged from $1,500 to $840. The manager bought the $840 apparatus.

Here we have a decrease in actual selling prices from $4,500 in 1888, to $640 in 1894, a period of six years. In 1888 there were seven electric railways in the United States. In January, 1890, there were 162 railways in operation and in process of construction. In January, 1891, this number had grown to 281, while today there are probably over 500 cities in the United States equipped with electric roads, many of them of great mileage.—Electrical Review.
