McKINLEY IS THE CHOICE

He Is Renominated for President Amid Tumult and Cheers.

ROOSEVELT FOR VICE PRESIDENT

The Rough Rider Receives a Great Ovation on His Arrival—He Is Nominated by Acclamation—First Day's Proceedings.

Philadelphia, June 21.—The republican national convention was called to order at 10:30 a. m. by Chairman Lodge. Alabama yielded the floor to Ohio and Senator Foraker nominated William McKinley. A roll call was had at 12:48 p. m. and President McKinley was renominated by acclamation.

Theodore Roosevelt of New York was nominated for Vice President by acclamation.

Philadelphia, June 20.—The crowds were slow in gathering at the convention hall. When, shortly after 11 o'clock, the band in the gallery awoke the echoes in the vast roof space, there were not more than 1,000 persons in the great auditorium. But it was astonishing how rapidly the crowds began to arrive after that hour. They poured in in steady streams until they blackened the acres of seats. An unusually large number were women.

The leaders were slow in arriving and it was not until Senator Hanna put in an appearance at 11:45 that the enthusiasm of the thousands was unchecked. He got a cheer as he moved up the center aisle, the full length of the hall to the platform. General Grosvenor, the SENATOR EDWARD O. WOLCOTT, white bearded old veteran, was recognized and he, too, got a cheer. Cornelius N. Bliss of New York got a scattering of applause as he came in and took his seat with the New York delegation, and Senator Platt of New York got a greeting. As the hour of noon approached the delegates entered in a solid stream and spread out over the seats reserved for them.

Demonstration For Roosevelt.

At 12:07 the first pronounced demonstration of the convention occurred. Governor Roosevelt came in and moved down the center aisle. He wore his rough rider hat and was instantly recognized. A deep reverberating cheer greeted him. Men jumped to their chairs to cheer and men and women fluttered their handkerchiefs. Delegates crowded forward to greet him as he moved through the crowd, and his entrance, theatrical though it may have been, was like that of a conquering hero. He took his seat immediately in the rear of Senator Platt and in front of Senator Depew.

"Our Chauncey," who has aroused the admiration of many a Republican campaign, came in at the same time as Roosevelt, but the multitude had eyes on the hero of San Juan.

Senator Hanna seemed in no hurry to call the convention to order. Attired in a sack suit with a white vest he sat chatting with those about him, his eye meantime roaming over the convention. At 12:30 the band broke into the stirring strains of the Star Spangled Banner. Governor Roosevelt was first on his feet in response to the national anthem. His Rough Rider hat came off and he stood with head uncovered.

Entire Audience Joins In.

Instantly the whole convention rose en masse. Ten thousand people stood while the stirring air was played and applauded it with a cheer as they took their seats. Chairman Hanna remained standing. He lifted the ungainly gavel and brought it down with a resounding whack. Instantly all eyes were riveted upon him and a wave of applause swept the hall.

At 12:35 Senator Hanna called the convention to order and Rev. J. Gray Bolton of Philadelphia opened the proceedings with prayer. The secretary of the national committee then read the formal call and again Mr. Hanna was the center of attraction. He left the presiding officer's table and stepping to the front of the platform surveyed the sea of faces, and in a clear voice, began his speech of welcome.

"In bidding you welcome," he began, "I also wish to congratulate you on the magnificent representation from the Republican party. There was no mistake in bringing the convention to Philadelphia. Here was the cradle of liberty, the birthplace of the republic. Here also had the Republican party seen its birth and here, too, was the center of that great, throbbing idea—the protection of American industry."

Cheers for the President.

Another wave of applause swept over the convention at this mention of the protective principle and as it subsided, Mr. Hanna proceeded: "We are on the eve of the greatest struggle. Already we are beginning to form our battalions under the leadership of our great statesman—William McKinley."

That was the signal and for the first time the convention broke forth in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. Senator Hanna bated down in smiling satisfaction at the tempestuous demonstration. Again Mr. Hanna evoked a demonstration when speaking of the approaching campaign he declared: "And with such a leader and such a cause, there is no such word as fail."

As Mr. Hanna closed his speech with a tribute to his colleagues on the national committee and a reference to the close of his chairmanship, he spoke of the sterling advice of the senator from Colorado, Mr. Wolcott, to his party and presented him to the convention as temporary chairman.

Temporary Chairman Wolcott.

Senator Fairbanks, from the first row of delegates, arose and moved that the selection of Senator Wolcott as temporary chairman be approved, and with unanimous voice the delegates so voted. Senator Wolcott, who was on the platform, arose and came forward. The appearance of the Colorado orator set the convention off like a rocket. With a pleasant nod of acknowledgment to Senator Hanna, he turned and addressed the convention.

Senator Wolcott speaks with great rapidity and this, perhaps, somewhat spoiled the effect of his speech. When with outstretched arm he predicted the triumphant election of the Republican ticket in November the audience surrendered and when he first mentioned President McKinley's name he could not proceed for a minute owing to the demonstration. As he rehearsed the history of the four years of Republican administration, the prosperity which had blessed it, the victories it had won, the glorious outcome of the Spanish-American war, the campaign of misrepresentation in connection with the Philippines which its enemies had inaugurated and which it had met, the convention repeatedly broke into applause.

Delegates Greet Roosevelt.

The call of the roll of states for the submission of members of the various committees then began. It proved a tedious process, and the convention was virtually in recess as the names were handed in.

While the lists were being brought to the stage, Governor Roosevelt was holding a regular levee in the pit. Delegates swarmed toward him from all directions. Ex-Senator Quay was one of those who greeted him warmly. The New Mexico delegates with broad sombreros climbed over seats in their eagerness to get to him and shake his hand. Chauncey Depew and other big guns of the New York delegation were ignored.

After the reading of the committees was concluded, Rev. Edgar M. Levy, who delivered the invocation at the first Republican convention in this city 44 years ago, delivered a benediction. The convention then adjourned until noon.

HIS FRIENDS FIND FAULT.

Governor Roosevelt Criticized for His Published Statement.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The fault finders and critics were astir early, as were the partisans on both the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt sides. The friends of the governor were disposed to find some fault with his pronouncement. Said one of the United States senators, who started the movement in

Governor Roosevelt's behalf:

"We can nominate him if he will only say he wants the office, but his halting and coyish attitude renders the task difficult. If Governor Roosevelt is the politician he is credited with being he will come in plain terms as a candidate. Standing as he does now between the lines, he is liable to get shot at by both armies, and it is quite probable that if he fails in the vice presidential nomination he will also fail in securing the New York governorship."

On the other hand there is sharp criticism of the selection of Secretary Long as the administration candidate on the ground that it looks as if the friends of the president thought there was no capable man to be found outside the circle of his immediate official coteries.

FAIRBANKS IS CHAIRMAN.

Republican Committee on Resolutions Organizes.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The committee on resolutions organized immediately after the adjournment of the convention and then adjourned to meet at the Walton Hotel at 5 o'clock.

On motion of Senator Foraker, Senator Fairbanks of Indiana was chosen chairman of the committee and E. Rosewater, the Nebraska member, secretary. In suggesting Mr. Rosewater's nomination, Senator Foraker stated that the place should be given to him as a compliment to his profession of journalism. The suggestion was received with general approval.

EXCHANGE OF BONDS.

Has Already Passed the Three Hundred Million Mark.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The exchange of old bonds under the recent act of congress for new bonds bearing 2 per cent interest, has passed the $300,000,000 mark, and so far has resulted in a net profit of about $8,000,000. The exact amount exchanged is $300,170,250, and of this amount $72,894,800 were received from individuals and institutions other than national banks. The amount exchanged exceeds the expectations of the officials of the department who regard the transaction as an unqualified success.

Will Not Be Towne. INDIANAPOLIS, June 20.—J. W. Kern, Democratic candidate for governor, was asked whom the Democrats would nominate for vice president at Kansas City and replied: "I do not know. I do know it will be a Democrat and not Towne. I have heard a number of persons mentioned."

Ridpath's Condition Serious.

NEW YORK, June 20.—There was no appreciable change in the condition of J. Clarke Ridpath, the historian, during the day. Mr. Ridpath is now regarded as in a serious condition.

Duluth Wheat Supply Large.

DULUTH, June 20.—Wheat stocks here are not decreasing as is usual at this time, and there are in store here now 11,387,000 bushels, which is almost double the quantity at the corresponding date a year ago. Stocks last week actually increased 319,000 bushels. Of other grains there are in store 1,275,000 bushels.

Celebrate Gutenberg's Birthday.

BERLIN, June 20.—The 500th anniversary of the birth of John Gutenberg, the inventor of movable type, was celebrated in Berlin by an immense gathering of printers and type foundries in the Circus Schumann. Celebrations were also held at Frankfurt and Leipzig.

Burglars Miss $50,000 Cash.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 20.—Burglars blew open the safe in the county treasurer's office and secured $500 worth of stamps belonging to the post-office and $125 in cash. They failed to reach the strong box, which contained $50,000.

Remarks of Wm. Reely.

Published by request of a delegation of Garretites: "As a personal request, we ask you not to send John H. Cole to Kansas City as a delegate, as we cannot get along without him in Garnet."
