DAVIS MAKES WARM SPEECH IN SENATE

ARKANSAS STATESMAN WOULD INDICT ROCKEFELLER AND MORGAN FOR TREASON.

DENOUNCES TRUSTS AND COMMENDS PRESIDENT

Scores "Subsidized" Press of the Country in Impassioned Phrases—Leaders of Congress Get Busy Hoping to Appease Roosevelt.

Washington, May 2.—That the art of eloquence is not dead in America was proved Friday when Senator Jefferson Davis of Arkansas delivered a speech, some passages of which cannot be compared with anything less impassioned than Milton, Dante or Whitman.

After moving to discharge the committee on judiciary from further consideration of his bill "for the suppression of trusts, pools and combinations in trade," Mr. Davis read from a manuscript which he had prepared carefully, he said, so that no intemperate language should escape him.

During his speech he roundly denounced the trusts, commended the president's recent measure outlining measures for relief, spoke of the removal of the motto "In God We Trust."

Senator Jefferson Davis.

from the coins, and declared that John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil Company and J. Pierpont Morgan should be indicted for treason, and then continued with the following burning apostrophe to the press:

"Let scavengers of plutocracy howl; truth, God's living truth—where are its defenders?"

"Miserable travesties upon noble manhood, post-graduates in all arts of slander or defamation, I challenge the subsidized press.

"The people know your designs and spurn your pretense, whether under show of argument or more servient hypocrisy.

"Go! Damnable imps of pelf and greed, I defy you! taunts!"

"Tear to fragments my political career if it comport with your execrable will."

"Stifle and distort my every utterance. Not satisfied, if such be your brutal frenzy, lash my poor form into insensibility.

"Then if it be your further pleasure gnaw from my stiffening bones every vestige of quivering flesh.

"How in wretched bestiality through my own innocent blood as it drips from your fiendish visages.

"Drag, then, if you want, what remains into your foul dens and burn it upon the altar of Babel.

"Dare a senator align himself with the people? What?"

"Yes, men, illustrious servants of the people, have lifted honest voices here and elsewhere against the march of plutocracy, to fall ambushed, politically assassinated, and by whom? By the trusts wearing masks. Ah, sir, newspaper masks."

The senator spoke for two hours.

House Leaders Get Busy.

Washington, May 2.—There are signs of a partial surrender by the house leaders to the legislative program put up to congress by President Roosevelt. By the introduction of the house of an anti-injunction bill and a resolution authorizing the house committee on ways and means to prepare for a revision of the tariff by working through the summer recess, Mr. Payne, the majority leader, has indicated his surrender and the surrender of Pennsylvania to those two policies of the president.

All three have promised the enactment of a child-labor law for the District of Columbia; they have under consideration the framing of a bill making the government liable for injuries to its mechanical employees; a currency bill is being worked for night and day and a campaign-fund publicly bid awaits their early sanction to pass the house.

No action will be taken this session on the proposed amendments to the Sherman antitrust law unless an unexpected agreement is reached among the friends of this measure as to its final provisions.

Transferred to Washington.

The Hague, May 2.—J. London, minister of The Netherlands at Tokyo, has been appointed the diplomatic representative of his government at Washington. He will succeed R. de Mares Van Swinderen, who has been made foreign minister in The Netherlands cabinet.

400 SIMIANS ON JAG RUN THINGS ON SHIP

ESCAPE FROM CAGE FOLLOWED BY LIVELY TIME—RELEASED BY PET BABOON.

Philadelphia.—Four hundred drunken monkeys staggering about the decks of the British steamer Braunfels, which arrived the other day from Calcutta, served to banish ennui from the lives of the officers and crew on a dull Sunday afternoon.

The condition of the simians was the result of a prank three days ago by Lizzie, a pet baboon aboard the Braunfels two years.

Evidently sympathizing with the lot of the several hundred members of her family, Lizzie, who had the freedom of the vessel, made her way between decks, where the monkeys were confined, and liberated 400 of the 600 confined in a large cage.

For two days there was no rest among the officers or crew. During the day parties of the monkeys, led chiefly by a crafty simian known as the pig tail monkey, frequently rushed down on the decks, picked up be-laying pins and other handy objects, and quickly climbed back up the rigging.

As the ship was towed up the river the captain, realizing the monkeys must be caught before dock was reached, decided on heroic measures.

He got a large quantity of molasses and mixed with it three quarts of brandy. Putting it in several pans, he placed it about the decks under the rigging in the after part of the steamer, where the monkeys had congregated.

They lost no time in making for the pans filled with the brandy and molasses, and chattering and screeching, they started to devour the contents. Soon there were 400 monkeys staggering around the decks.

This ended the trouble, for as soon as any showed signs of stupor Capt. Weltman summoned the crew and the animals were picked up and placed back in the cage, where they sobered up in a day.

DOG CAUGHT IN FLYWHEEL.

Animal Escapes Without Injury After Being Whirled for Over an Hour.

Chicago, Ill.—Caught in a revolving flywheel making 85 revolutions a minute, and whirled there for more than an hour, Tige, a watch dog, at the plant of J. H. Bell & Co., No. 62 Michigan avenue, escaped with his life, and is as alert as ever.

"Dag, then, if you want, what remains into your foul dens and burn it upon the altar of Babel.

GIRL POSES AS A MAN FOR A YEAR

REVEALS TRUE SELF WHEN SHE LEARNS OF YOUNG WOMAN'S AFFECTION FOR HER.

MASQUERADE EASY, SHE SAYS

Finds It "Funny" at First to Feet All Bills, But Likes Freedom Accorded Male Sex—Views Changed by Experiences.

Chicago.—A Chicago version of the adventures of the famous Mile, de Maupin, with many remarkable resemblances in the two stories, has come to light in the admission of Mary Phelan that for one year she posed as a man, and only revealed her secret when one of her own sex became infatuated with her.

In Gantier's romance the heroine is actuated by a desire to learn the habits of men, not as they are presented for the scrutiny of polite society, but as they are when no restraint is laid upon them. Accordingly, the young woman sets out in male attire, and meets with many adventures, among them winning the love of a woman of rank.

A little more than a year ago Mary Phelan burned her hair close to her head in an accident. She sought employment as a girl, but was unable to secure it. She was unhappy at home, full of the exuberance of 20 years, and eager to get out into the world.

So she purchased a suit of boy's clothing, and one day she left her petticoats behind her, closed the door of her father's home, and stepped on a State street car. After that, Mary Phelan became Jess Fay, a handsome young chap with wavy black hair, brown eyes, full of life, and the brilliant complexion of a healthy girl.

When young Fay reached town he went into Michael's haberdashery store on Eighteenth street to buy a shirt. The owner was attracted by his bright, clear face, and offered him a place as a clerk. So, for one year, Fay successfully concealed "his" sex, and became a friend of the politicians, detectives and other characters of the neighborhood. "His" story of running away from home in Cheyenne was universally accepted. "He" lived at a downtown hotel, became a sort of

And Finally Won a Sweetheart.

Beat Brummel in "his" attire, and finally won a sweetheart.

As long as his affair with the young woman went no further than the comradeship of going to places of amusement together, everything was well, but the deeper note was struck in the growing attachment of the girl for young Fay. The time came when "he" must tell her the truth. After this revelation they remained good friends until Fay left the store several days ago.

Then Fay became Mary Phelan again, content for a little while, at least, to lead the life of the average young girl in her father's home.

"I just can't help it," Miss Phelan said. "I am born a wanderer. I love life, and I want to see all sides of life. I love to be free, and it's so hard for a woman to be that."

"It isn't nearly so hard to pose as a man as one would think. The figure can be disguised, and the little tricks of masculinity easily picked up. I think I took to the life naturally, because I have always been so athletic in my habits."

"The average woman knows almost nothing of men or of the world. I have found men very different from what I once thought them, both better and worse. And I have gotten an entirely different view of women from what I once had."

"At first it seemed funny to foot all the bills. I had often wondered if a man didn't grudge the car fare and incidentals that custom was always forcing him to stand, but I found after awhile that I didn't think of it any more than of lifting my hat. It was merely one of the little drawbacks about being a man."

"I don't mind being a mere girl sometimes, and I will confess that I am awfully fond of pretty clothes. Will I go back to my masquerade again? Well, I don't know. It's a fascinating experience, and maybe the fever to go out in the world will come again."

Another Backset for Reform.

The editor looked over the manuscript and handed it back.

"I don't like your dialect," he said. "But, sir," said the literary aspirant, startled and indignant, "that isn't dialect! That's written in the reformed spelling!"

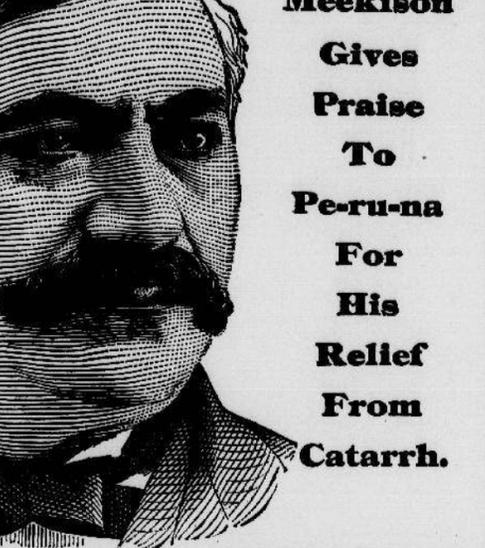

A Grouch.

"Do you think the fruit crop will be a failure this year?"

"Course it will," answered Farmer Cornstossel; "if prices are high there's no fruit and if prices are low there's plenty of it. The fruit crop's always a failure!"

HAD CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.

Congressman Meekison Gives Praise To Pe-ru-na For His Relief From Catarrh.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Pe-ru-na and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galea, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Pe-ru-na I am cured." Mr. C. N. Peterson, 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Pe-ru-na has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Pe-ru-na. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very debilitated. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Pe-ru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

BABY'S ITCHING HUMOR.

Nothing Would Help Him—Mother Almost in Despair—Owas Quick Cure to Cuticura.

"Several months ago, my little boy began to break out with itching sores. I doctored him, but as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and I shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

160 FARMS IN Western Canada FREE

Typical Farm Scene, Showing Stock Raising in Western Canada

WESTERN CANADA

Some of the choicest lands for grain growing, stock raising and mixed farming in the new districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations.

Entry may now be made by proxy (on certain conditions), by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader. Thousands of homesteads of 160 acres each are thus now easily available in these great grain-growing, stock-raising and mixed farming sections.

There you will find beautiful climate, good neighbors, churches for family worship, schools for your children, good laws, splendid crops, and railroads convenient to market.
