Truth and Quality Is Nominee of Democrats. IS NAMED ON FIRST BALLOT

Nomination at Denver Made With Loud Acclaim. On First Ballot Bryan Received 892 1-2 Votes, Johnson 47.

Denver, July 11.—The Democratic national convention concluded its labor late yesterday afternoon by the nomination of John Worth Kern of Indiana for vice president, completing the ticket on which W. J. Bryan was made the nominee for president. The nomination of Kern was made by acclamation amid the resounding cheers of delegates and spectators. No ballot was necessary as the tide of sentiment had set irresistibly toward the Indiana candidate, state after state registering their delegations in his favor, and all other candidates withdrawing before the universal demand for his nomination.

Denver, July 10, 3:40 a. m.—William Jennings Bryan was this morning nominated for president of the United States by the national Democratic convention. The nomination was made at 3:40 o'clock. The first and only ballot gave Bryan the commanding and decisive total of 892 1/2 votes, or 220 more than to nominate, with Gray 50 1/2 and J. A. Johnson 47.

After the ballot was announced the Johnson and Gray shouted to make it unanimous which was done. The announcement was greeted with a perfect pandemonium of sound and motion, floor and galleries joining in deafening and long continued tumult. When the roll call for nominations was completed the secretary proceeded to call the roll of states. Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall was selected to call roll of states.

"Alabama," he shouted and there came the quick response. "Alabama casts her 22 votes for Bryan. Arkansas casts 18, California 20 and Colorado 10. The first split delegation was that of Connecticut, which cast 9 for Bryan and 5 for Johnson. Delaware called the clerk. "Six votes for Judge Gray," was the reply. Georgia divided her votes between all three candidates. A roar went up when Illinois cast her solid vote for Bryan. Iowa and Indiana followed suit. Minnesota cast her 22 votes for Johnson. Missouri cast 36 for Bryan and solid votes came from Montana, Nebraska and Nevada. New Hampshire cast one for Johnson and seven for Bryan. New Jersey went solidly for Gray and then there were calls for silence all over the hall as Charles F. Murphy rose to his feet, when the state was called.

New York is voting under the unit rule and casts 73 votes for Bryan, he said. A wild yell of enthusiasm went up as the Empire state for the first time declared itself. Before the vote was announced Mr. Hammond who had placed Mr. Johnson on nomination moved to make unanimous the nomination of Mr. Bryan, say Minnesota knew how to lose as well as it knew how to fight well. The convention adjourned at 3:40 until one o'clock this afternoon when the candidate for vice president will be nominated.

Louisiana Assembly Quits. Baton Rouge, La., July 11.—The Louisiana assembly adjourned after a 60 days' session in which, on the average, five new laws were passed a day. The total of new statutes was over 300. The abolishment of race-track gambling and the defeat of state-wide prohibition were the two big battles of the session. Tribesmen Slay Two. Manila, July 11.—A telegram from Negros says an officer is on his way to Manila with the bodies of P. D. Everett, a former government forester from Malone, N. Y., and T. R. Wakeley, formerly a school teacher of Chicago, who were killed by hill tribesmen. "Drys" Announce Dates. Columbus, O., July 11.—The national prohibition party is to hold its national convention in Columbus at the Memorial hall July 15 and 16, following the state prohibition convention, which holds its sessions at the Board of Trade building two days previous.

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after-effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time. It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

JUMPING AT A CONCLUSION. Marriage Did Not Follow the Nineteen Year's Courtship. In the amiable way of villagers, they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hyman a burden. "This all along of these hasty marriages," opined one cannie old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other; they'd nobbut knowed each other for a matter of seven year."

A Cold Lunch. The pupils of a distinguished professor of zoology, a man well known for his eccentricities, noted one day two tidy parcels lying on their instructor's desk as they passed out at the noon hour. On their return to the laboratory for the afternoon lecture they saw but one. This the professor took carefully up in his hand as he opened his lecture. "In the study of vertebrata we have taken the frog as a type. Let us now examine the gastrocnemius muscle of this dissected specimen."

VERY GOOD REASON. Father—I told you not to go with that boy. Bobby—I had to, father, 'cause he had hold of my hair! Certainly. "Why do you always read the newspaper criticisms of the opera so carefully after you have attended a performance?" "People will be sure to ask about it, and one must be able to answer it, if one understood something about it, you know."

WIFE WON Husband Finally Convinced. Some men are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience. A very "conservative" Illinois man, however, let his good wife find out for herself what a blessing Postum is to those who are distressed in many ways, by drinking coffee. The wife writes: "No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waking from a troubled sleep with a feeling of suffocation, at times dizzy and out of breath, attacks of palpitation of the heart that frightened me. Common sense, reason, and my better judgment told me that coffee drinking was the trouble. At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered 'no more coffee.' "He knew he was right and he knew I knew it, too. I capitulated. Prior to this our family had tried Postum, but disliked it, because, as we learned later, it was not made right. "Determined this time to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg.—that is, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling commenced, obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich creamy flavor similar to coffee. When snappy and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious. "Noting its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said: 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Head "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine true, and full of human interest.

Cologne, July 10.—The new bridge under construction over the Rhine at Cologne fell in Thursday and many of the workmen engaged on the structure lost their lives. Twenty bodies were recovered and ten men were taken from the water seriously injured. The scaffolding supporting the powerful crane used in the erection of the central span of the bridge collapsed and the crashing down of this section carried with it several other spans. Several workmen were thrown into the river. Some of them were underneath the scaffolding, and there was no hope whatever for their lives. Immediately after the accident boats put out for the scene and began the work of rescue. About a score of struggling men were quickly picked up. The police and fire brigades of Cologne were notified and hurried to the river to assist in the work of salvage and rescue. They secured more boats and succeeded in saving several workmen who were laboriously swimming in the strong current, fully clothed, toward the shore. LED TO LOST BABE BY MOTHER LOVE CHILD FOUND SLEEPING SURROUNDED BY PACK OF HUNGRY COYOTES. ENTIRE CAMP AIDS IN HUNT

Little Girl Loses Trail and Wanders Into Mountain Fastnesses—Mysterious Power Takes Woman to Little One. Thermopolis, Wyo.—At one of the sheep camps, 40 miles northwest of this place, Mrs. J. Powers is employed as a cook, and with her is her four-year-old daughter, a great pet with all the men. A few mornings ago one of the herders, after he had proceeded some distance from the camp, discovered that the Powers girl was following him.

With a hard day before him he did not want the child along, so he turned her back toward camp and gave her instructions to proceed home. Meanwhile the baby had been missed at the camp, and Mrs. Powers was not uneasy when informed that she had been seen accompanying a herder to his day's work, it being a custom of the men to take the little favorite along with them while they followed the sheep. At night, when the herder returned and was questioned regarding the baby, consternation was caused in camp by his announcement that he had sent her home early in the morning. Immediately every available man was sent out to search the nearby country. When hours passed without the discovery of a trace of the child, couriers were sent to other camps, and when morning dawned half a dozen parties were waiting to take up the search. Before afternoon a search of the country for ten miles in every direction had been made without results. Late that night the search was abandoned, and the searchers returned to camp to tell the distracted mother that her baby was probably dead, drowned in the creek or devoured by wolves. Mrs. Powers collapsed at these tidings, but later became strangely calm and sat like one in a trance until morning dawned. Then calling the others to her, she instructed them to follow, and set off at a hard walk for the mountains, six miles distant. Never deviating from a lone line and seemingly indifferent to the country and those following her, the woman pursued her course up the foothills and to the edge of a sage flat, where she broke into a run. Ten minutes later she fell exhausted beside the sleeping missing one. On her approach a pack of hungry coyotes that were seated around the child, but too cowardly to attack her, fed. Strangely enough, the little girl had not suffered greatly during her 48 hours in the open and told a lucid story of her wanderings. When turned back by the herder she had followed a road which she supposed led to the camp, but which finally took her to an abandoned sawmill in the foothills. En route she encountered the creek and took off her shoes and stockings to wade it. On the other side her infant fingers were unable to accomplish the task of replacing the stockings, and she left them and her shoes beside the stream, afterward wandering miles in her bare feet. That evening, says the little girl, she went into the hills, where coyotes began to follow her. "There were little ones and two big ones," she said. The big ones probably were wolves, and why they did not attack the little creature the men of the camp were unable to explain, as wolves are far more courageous than coyotes, and have been known to attack them in the same region.

At night the lost baby laid down under a cottonwood tree, and went to sleep. "I wasn't afraid," she said in her story, "I saw I heard mamma calling all night long and knew she would find me soon." At daylight she awakened and again heard her mother calling, and satisfied, sank again to sleep. At that hour her mother, in camp six miles away, had just begun her journey to her lost loved one's side, and some psychic power had carried to the baby the assurance that mamma would soon be present to care for her.

Magnetic Man. "George," said she, "you have held a good many high positions at one time and another." "Yes," said George, who had been married long enough to know that noncommittalism is the best home policy. "And I have heard it said that your success was due to the magnetism that drew men toward you." "Um—!" "Don't pretend to be bashful, now. And I was just wondering if you were magnetic enough to draw the tracks from that drawing room carpet to-morrow morning before breakfast."

MRS. FRANK STROEBE A Remarkable Recovery. Mrs. Frank Stroeb, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes: "I began using Peruna a few months ago, when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live. Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. "I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder."

GATOR ON THE RAMPAGE. Edifying Story That is Vouched for by the Georgia Ananias.

"Yes," said the fisherman, "the man had fished all the forenoon, an' hadn't got a nibble, so he took another swaller out the jug, pulled off his boots, an' lay down on the river bank an' went to sleep. As soon as he went to snorin' good, an alligator that had been watchin' him all the mornin' crawled up an' swallered his boots, likewise the jug, with 'bout half a gallon in it, I reckon. The cork came out, and, of course, the 'gator got the full benefit of the whisky, which so turned its head that it lashed the water with its tail till the river was a foamin' mass, after which it crawled up on the bank agin an' made desprits efforts to climb trees an' turn double-headers, an' do all manner of impossible things!"

"Why didn't it swallow the fisherman, instead of his boot?" some one asked. "Gators, gentlemen," said the storyteller, "can't stand overthin'. They must draw the line some's."—Atlanta Constitution.

Romance and Reality. "Let the youngsters have their romance—an' I'll be all the better for 'em if they git a purty good dose on it; but don't hide from 'em the fact that that's somethin' in the shape of trouble a-waitin' for 'em up the road," said Mr. Billy Sanders. "Not big trouble, tooby shore, but jest big enough to make 'em stick closer together. It ain't no use to try to rub out the fact that life is what it is. It's full of rough places, an' that are times when you have to leave the big road an' take a short-cut through the bamboo briars for to keep from slippin' in a mudhole. The briars hurt, but the mudhole mouseth suffocate you. It ain't no use to deny it, trouble is seasonin'. I never know'd it to hurt anybody but the weak-minded, the willful an' them that was born to the purple."—Joel Chandler Harris, in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

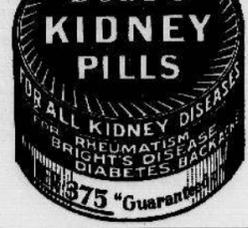

Hurt a Convict's Pride. A church missionary had a letter, recently from a convict begging him to reform the writer's wife, who was also in prison. The convict—who is serving a long term—was very anxious about the matter, because, as he said: "It was no credit to him to receive letters from such a place as prison." Another convict, in the course of a letter to his brother, a pauper, remarked: "Well, Jack, thank goodness I have never sunk so low as the work-house yet."—London Daily News.

A Good Turn. "Here, wake up," cried Subbuss, appearing on his porch in his pajamas. "You've got a nerve to be sleeping in yo hammock." "Nerve?" replied the hobo, sleepily. "Why, I'm a benefactor; if it wasn't for me holdin' dis hammock down de mosquitoes would a' lugged it off long ago."

A Deadly Brigade. "So your son is now a soldier, hey, Uncle Ben?" "Yes, sah; he's done lined de mail-stous corpse, sah."
