POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Forgery is all right in the iron business.

It manages to get late very early nowadays.

Fair weather friends are often enemies in disguise.

True charity begins at home, but it doesn't end there.

It is all well enough to judge a tailor by his clothes.

The more you pelt a tanner the better he seems to like it.

Speaking of clothes, a judge says that lawsuits become attorneys.

Never confide a secret to a woman with a pedigree. Blood will tell.

Ask a conceited man a question and he will never say, "I don't know."

It is difficult to convert a man unless you practice what you preach.

Convicted criminals are not allowed to hurry; they must take their time.

It takes a brave man to face a thing after he has refused to countenance it.

If a man always pays cash he is entitled to a lot more credit than he ever gets.

The easier it is for a man to run into debt the harder it is for him to get ahead.

When a wolf changes his coat he does not change his appetite for mutton chops.

Many a man reserves the kind words his wife is entitled to for her tombstone.

A woman who has false teeth likes to pretend that she has the toothache occasionally.

A man who has the gout feels pretty good when he gets down to ordinary rheumatism.

You have doubtless observed that the maid who is in love with herself has but few rivals.

When you meet a worthless man it's doughnuts to fudge he can tell you a sure cure for corns.

A mule imagines he has a musical voice—and a good many people seem to be built on the same mistaken plan.

The average wife dislikes to ask her husband for money almost onethen as bad as he dislikes to have her do it.

When some men give a dollar to charity they manage to get two dollars' worth of satisfaction from the contemplation of their generosity.

No wonder men get discouraged when it takes years to establish a reputation for honesty and sobriety, while one can gain notoriety as a thief or a drunkard in a few hours.—Chicago News.

SAYINGS OF THE WISE.

The greatest prayer is patience.—Buddha.

The art of life consists in being well deceived.—French Proverb.

Young authors give their brain much exercise and little food.—Joubert.

Truth is too simple for us; we do not like those who unmask our illusions.—Emerson.

Oh, banish the tears of children! Continual rains upon the blossoms are hurtful.—Richter.

The utmost that severity can do is to make men hypocrites; it can never make them converts.

There is nothing more frightful than for a teacher to know only what his scholars are intended to know.—Goethe.

If you have built castles in the air your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put foundations under them.—Thoreau.

INDISCRIMINATE ADVICE.

Don't ask a man if he would die for you. Of course he would.

Don't deride a girl with freckles. Those are the best part of the show.

Don't kiss a girl who has a little brother. His ears are not stuffed with cotton.

Don't snuggle up to a man and suddenly lay your head on his breast. He may have a fit.

Don't marry a girl who looks nice and uses slang. You may "get it in the neck" if you do.

Don't tell a girl you love her if you don't. Remember there is such a thing as breach of promise.

Don't speak to a man who accuses you by saying, "Ah, there!" He has probably ah-thered many times before.

Don't be afraid to take your girl out in an automobile. An auto needs no driver. You may stop at the first stone wall, but never mind.

Barnum's Practical Joke.

P. T. Barnum was a great practical joker. On one occasion he notified the dealer from whom he bought a large amount of supplies that half the pepper he sent him was peas. The dealer indignantly denied the charge and quite a warm correspondence followed. It being finally ended by Barnum, who inquired whether half the letters in the word "pepper" were not 's.

Balfour on Municipal Ownership.

In speaking recently on the subject of municipal ownership, Prime Minister Balfour said: "Although I am not opposed to municipal enterprise, I confess I sometimes ask myself whether it is possible to view with absolute serenity the extension of the municipality as an employer in its own constituency."

A Self-Made Marquis.

It is told of the Marquis Ito that when a youth he wandered about the streets of London, penniless, ragged and hungry, a starving alien in a strange land. No employment was too lowly for that one whose eager and ambitious mind was in after years to point out to the civilized world a new sun of astonishing brightness arisen in the East.

Worth Remembering.

One of the best things Jos. Billings ever wrote was in an album kept by a Negro usher, Oswald Smith, in the office of the general passenger agent of the Erie railroad. He dashed off hastily: "It is better not to know so much than to know so much that ain't so."

Artificial Flavor for Eggs.

The flavor of eggs may be influenced by the food eaten by laying hens. The North Carolina experiment stations, by feeding a quantity of chopped wild onion tops and bulbs to hens, obtained eggs so pronounced in flavor that they could not be eaten and this continued while the onion ration was fed.
