

John Hay believes in the fish diet.

Howler Chasler, grocer of Montreal, has suspended with liabilities of $250,000.

Nichols, the tailor of the Canadian bank of Commerce, has absconded, taking over $200,000 of the bank's funds with him.

Rather a novel costume was that of a Livingston county (N. Y.) girl worn at a recent hop, as described in a local paper: "Miss ——— was dressed in a hat and white kids."

The steamer Tarascon struck a snag in the Ohio river below Louisville, Monday of last week, and sank, but no lives were lost. She was valued at $30,000, and insured for $15,000, and can easily be raised.

Two freight trains collided at Hamburg, Ont., Monday, 13th inst., and an engine driver, Alexander Miller, was killed, one fireman badly scalded and a brakeman had a leg broken. One engine and tender were wrecked and several cars burnt.

Multi-colored, female, recently had a counterfeit plate and counterfeit printing plates, the entire quantity numbered, having a negro without shadow of a leg, and "implored the mercy, blessing and counsel of God to attend them."

Ex-Gov. Fletcher, the chairman of the Marsh investigating commission, took the trunk containing all the evidence taken during the investigation on the way back, but found it at a small town in Indiana, where it had been taken by a lady who had left in its place a trunk containing her outfit.

The coming at the San Francisco seas in July and August amounted to $8,830,000, the largest ever known. For the eight months of the calendar year the amount is $30,050,000, against $17,874,000. Of the amount $18,305,000 were double eagles, $2,558,000 trade dollars, and $8,147,000 half dollars.

When Sherman denies the report that he is going to get out a revised edition of his "Memoirs," he says a few errors in names will be corrected in the next edition, but aside from that no alterations will be made. He thinks the adverse criticisms have only increased the sale of the book, and seems little troubled by them.

Sergt. Babcock D. Washington, of Watseka, Ill., and the 1st Illinois artillery, is a great-grandson of Lawrence Washington, brother of the first president of the United States, and has many valuable relics of his illustrious relative, among which is the private seal of George Washington, which will be an exhibition at Philadelphia during the centennial.

A resident of Calamus, O., named Samuel Turner, was lately, in cutting wheat from a neighbor and selling it at a mill. His disgruntled neighbor, upon his mind, that he took a large dose of arsenic, and died on Sunday of last week. The man was miserably poor, having a wife and six children to support, which no doubt induced the theft.

A party who recently had unsuccessfully tried fishing on Cayuga (N. Y.) lake and had gone ashore, saw an eagle flying over them, bearing a large fish in its talons, and gave a loud scream, which so startled the eagle that he dropped the fish at their feet. It weighed a nice, nice weighing more than three pounds, still alive, and it furnished them a hearty meal.

Miss Harriet Hosmer, the American sculptress, will be represented at the Philadelphia centennial by an original group in marble—the largest she has ever undertaken—portraying the idea of the African sibil forswearing the freedom of her race. She will send also a copy of Lord Browne's gaiters, ten feet wide at their feet, six feet high, containing seventy-one human figures.

A horse belonging to a farmer in Gates, N. Y., while running at large in an orchard the other day, attempted to swallow a large apple. It stuck in his throat, and, hardly able to breathe, he reared and tore around the tree like mad. There was a wonderful hurrying to and fro for a short time, but the animal was finally secured, a pair of long tongs were brought from the farm house, and the apple was withdrawn.

The will of the Mormon bishop, George A. Smith, directed that the slab of marble which marks his resting-place should be placed in the center of the mountain wood, plain, but large enough to give ample room for the body to swell with an unnecessary ornaments about it, and with three half-inch holes bored in the bottom; and that the attendants at the funeral should be in clean attire.

Two of the monkeys at the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, fought a duel with knives, the other day. By some accident two large copper knives were left by one of the keepers in the enclosure, and as the monkeys had been perceived that way, the largest monkey seized them, opened the blades, and fell upon each other like a pair of men. One of them was killed at the first pass, while his adversary had one of his paws nearly cut off.

Mr. Ford, formerly the English charge d'affaires at Darmstadt, who was appointed agent for Great Britain on the commission shortly to meet at Halifax under the Washington treaty to determine the amount to be paid by Americans for the use of the coast-guard cutters, and Mr. Berman of the same office, appointed secretary to Mr. Ford for the same commission, have gone to Ottawa to discuss the necessary arrangements and prepare the case on the part of Great Britain.

Three justices of Kansas City, Mo., John Dayton, Owen Rooney and Henry Calk, visited a respectable house in the outskirts, on Saturday night, 11th inst., and, after robbing Charles Caslet, who was in charge of the place, fired several shots through the house and then went upstairs and assaulted the women. Four policemen were summoned and were fired upon by the robbers and one of them, Detective McKnight, badly wounded and only after a fierce hand-to-hand fight with the robbers were the villains captured and jailed.

Queen Victoria has authorized the following reply to a request that she become patron of the church of England temperance society: "Her majesty has already expressed her opinion in favor of the objects which the society desires to promote, and consents to become patron of it, organized as it appears to be on a basis which includes all who advocate temperance without insisting on abstinence on total abstinence. The queen trusts that education and the enlightenment of the people, together with the improvement of their moral and physical condition, will gradually do much to induce temperance, and to diminish the evil consequences of intemperance."

Dickens always believed in Spiritualism after asking at a seance the attendance of the spirit of Lindley Murray, and being answered by the spirits, to whom he put the question, "Are you the spirit of Lindley Murray?" "Yes."

Sabbath Morning.

By Mrs. W. M. Thomas.

Only needs the Sabbath morning

With its deep prophetic warning

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

In our week-day.

That a deluded mind can only

Grow like the dream of a day.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

Teach us, O Lord, the story

Of the soul's prayer.

From the Centennial City.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6, 1875.

Editors Register:—To return to our former home, and meet friends and acquaintances, and renew old associations which the lapse of time and distance has partially obliterated; and to look at the towering mountains, the green hills, the ragged rocks, the tortuous creek, the glistening cascade and the murmuring brooks; in short, to survey and view the grandeur of the face of nature, as she stands clothed in living green, inspires a feeling of emotional pleasure, joy and satisfaction; but alas! that such pleasurable sensations should so often be marred and saddened by the absence of those we loved and cherished, caused by the inexorable hand of death, who asks no license to desolate a hearthstone, for to despoil a home. We were not welcomed at the door by the dear old mother, the dear old father, the dear old sister, the dear old brother, the dear old sister, the Cocktails and Currency.

On the morning after his great inflation speech Mr. Kelly left a third, and walking down into the bar of the Tremont house, Chicago, bade the attendant bar-keeper mix him a whisky cocktail. While the bar-keeper was commencing the liquor, syrup, biters, ice and water, in due proportion he remarked, "You're Senator

Kelly, ain't you?" "I am, but don't be afraid young man, don't be afraid," affirmly replied the great statesman, "I thought you was," said the bar-keeper in reply. "I heard you make a public speech last night, up to Metropolitan hall. Was that all true you told us about them money and greenbacks and that other shenanigan, eh?" "True," said the specie of inflation, of course it was true.

I am a man of principle, young man, a man of strict principle." "Keerret," replied the bar-keeper, as he poured the cocktail in an amber arch into a glass, and filled a tumbler with water.

Mr. Kelly tasted the beverage. "See here, Johnny," he said, "what cocktail doesn't rise and take me the throat for much as it should; I want it to be all to me that the name implies. Just make it stronger, and give it to me in a bigger glass, will you?"

The bar-keeper promptly transferred the contents into a water tumbler, and added about twice their quantity of water.

Mr. Kelly observed some-what testily,

"Hello! Hello! What are you doing,

if I want a bigger drink, more of a cocktail, you keep adding water to it."

The bar-keeper smiled apologetically, and begged Mr. Kelly's pardon, emphatically the diluted cocktail into a weisglass, which he brimmed with water.

There was an ocean of fluid faintly tinged with a pinkish amber, the surface of which floated a shred of lemon peel. The bar-keeper pushed the glass over to his customer, and affably resting both hands on the counter, asked him what he wanted next.