A Sewing Machine Man Turned Monk.

A New York correspondent writes: One of the weekly London journals received by last steamer brings us the curious item of news that Mr. I. M. Singer, the famous sewing machine manufacturer, has founded a monastery in the neighborhood of Constantinople.

The President on the Minnesota Indians.

The following is the President's Message on the Indian murders in Minnesota:

To the Senate of the United States:

In compliance with your resolution of December 5, 1862, requesting the President to furnish the Senate with all the information in his possession touching the late Indian barbarities in the State of Minnesota, and also the evidence in his possession upon which some of the principal actors and head men were tried and condemned to death, I have the honor to state that on the receipt of said resolution I transmitted the same to the Secretary of the Interior, accompanied by a note, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, marked 'A,' and in response to which I received through that department a letter of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, marked 'B.'

MEANTIME, I received through Telegraphic dispatches and otherwise, appeals in behalf of the condemned, appeals for their execution, and expressions of opinion as to the proper policy in regard to them and the Indians generally in that vicinity, none of which as I understand, falls within the scope of your inquiry.

TO AVOID THE IMMENSE AMOUNT OF COPYING, I lay before the Senate the original transcripts of the records of the trials as received by me. This is as full and complete a response to the resolution as it is in my power to make.

MIDNIGHT DESPATCHES.

Federal Loss at Fredericksburg

13,055

Vessels Loading at Bermuda for the Rebel States.

The Gunboat Cairo Blown Up.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 18.—The total Federal loss in all the divisions engaged on Saturday in the rear of Fredericksburg, as far as heard from, is thirteen thousand and fifty-five in killed, wounded and missing.

A steamer from Bermuda reports several vessels there loaded with arms, munitions and stores for the rebels.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—House—Army appropriation bill, appropriating seven hundred and twenty-one million passed.

The Senate passed a bill to facilitate the discharge of disabled soldiers.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Special Cairo despatch says the gunboat Cairo was blown up by a torpedo on Friday, and sunk in six fathoms water. No lives lost, but the entire armament and outfit lost.

Cheap Patriotism.

Governor Morehead, of Kentucky, who graduated at Fort Lafayette, after a few easy lessons in treason, has lately been delivering lectures in Europe on the intolerable despotism of the American Government.

The Governor's animosity to the United States has lately taken a new turn, and vents itself now in hypothetical threats against the South and the State of his nativity, if they should prove less inveterate in treason than himself.

He has changed the place of his sojourn abroad to Paris, from which city he fulminates as follows: "that if, under any circumstances, Kentucky ever returns to the Union, he will abjure her, as he will the entire South, if she does not fight till the last man is killed for her independence."

Governor Morehead's chief wealth consists of a large cotton plantation "well stocked with likely negroes," in the neighborhood of Lake Providence, Mississippi. Seeing that if the South fails in its rebellion, the Governor's entire worldly wealth will be confiscated and lost to him forever, and that he himself, in that event, could not return to Kentucky, or to any part of the South, as an admitted rebel, exposed to the penal laws against such, his indignant virtue in "abjuring" his native land in that contingency, would not reach a very high pitch of moral sublimity.

His personal safety would be jumping directly in the line of his patriotism.

The Confederates will find a new impulse to their determined resistance in the known views of this self-banished rebel. In his safe Parisian retreat he cheers them on to the deadly work before them. If they fail, they are assured of his eternal displeasure, if they succeed, they save him and his negroes.—N. Y. Times

The contractors for army drawers, in New York, the Sunday Times says, pay the poor women who make them the exhilarating price of four cents per pair, and one woman, at this rate, made the fabulous sum of eight cents per day. As the contractors get forty cents and the women four, the former make ten per cent profit—ten times four being forty, as every body knows.

Not content with publishing the actual witty sayings of our President, the press in giving him the credit of many sayings before imputed to his predecessors by the Boswells of his day. The story told of Mr. Jefferson and his critics wherein he says he thought he knew everything had about Tom Jefferson, but an editor, whose paper he held in his hand, had made him worse than the devil, is parodied and imputed to the present incumbent. No man has ever filled the Presidential chair who had so few personal strictures passed upon him as Mr. Lincoln.

The failure of Dickens in delineating the characters belonging to good society is imputed, in Siddon's Recollections, to the fact that he never moved in such society till he became eminent, and then he was only lionized. This must be the fact, because Dickens' pictures are from life, and had he been admitted to the inner pale of society, we should have had more than the Dedlocks or the Mulberry Hawks described to us.

The photographers of Philadelphia have formed an association, the object of which is the cultivation and study of all natural laws respecting the reflection of light and more particularly as it applies to photography.

Tom Sayers is out of the ring for life. He thus announces the fact in the newspapers of London: "Tom Sayers begs most respectfully to state that he will never fight again, or second any man who may fight."
