S. C. MERCER, Editor.

To Our Subscribers.

We find after a few months experience that it is impossible to collect the small amount due us for the Daily in the city, with the regularity that should attend that department, without more time and attention than we can well afford to bestow upon it. In the future we will be governed by the cash in advance principle, and by that "vigorous policy" hope to render profitable, that which up to the present time has been a burden. From this date no paper will be delivered from this office unless paid for in advance. When the time paid for expires, the paper will be discontinued, unless renewed in time to prevent it. Our Agent cannot afford to call on any one three or four times for the paltry sum of twenty cents, and then perhaps not get it. All subscribers in arrears will please pay the route agent on application.

Progress of Unionism in Fayette County, Tennessee.

The Memphis Bulletin receives the most cheering news from Fayette county. The people have seen the utter ruin that secession works. More mischief has been done to persons and property in two years by the practical operations of secession than the declarations of abolitionists could have effected in one hundred years. Every man who has lost a horse, mule, cow, hog, sheep, wagon or negro, can trace it directly to the Pandora's box of all mischief—secession. Every wounded soldier, every sick soldier now confined in hospitals, every one slain in battle, may attribute all to secession.

Had there been no secession, we should have been spared this war, and consequently would have escaped all its horrors. The people now see their mistake, and, like true and honest men, are determined to rectify it.

The people of Fayette county, generally, have taken the oath of allegiance and are zealously engaged in rebuilding the partially dismembered Union.

Col. J. R. Mosby, a true and gallant man, a gentleman in every sense of the word, as the people well know, has joined the great movement now in progress in West Tennessee—to reconstruct the Union.

Colonel Mosby is not the only distinguished name in the county of Fayette who has taken a bold stand for the Union. General Tom Rivers too is all right—never much wrong, if any, in the Union cause. Most of the officers of the county have made friends with Uncle Sam, and the prospect now is that Fayette will give a large vote for Congress on the 29th. Those who imagine that the people of the country take no interest in this election, will be greatly deceived. The people of all West Tennessee are alive to the necessity of electing good and true men to Congress, and the Bulletin has an abiding confidence that the 29th of December will show that West Tennessee is done with Jeff Davis and secession forever.

New York, Dec. 23.—Philadelphia papers publish an account of the forthcoming report of the committee on the conduct of the war.

It appears Burnside's original plan was to move suddenly to Fredericksburg, cross there, open the base of supplies from Aquia creek, and push rapidly to Richmond.

He expected to get 30 or 40 miles south before the rebels came up and felt confident of his ability to whip them.

It was promised pontoons and supplies at Falmouth. This was the fatal omission, caused a delay of ten days, and enabled the rebels to fortify and concentrate.

Burnside's plan was to carry the first line of works by storm, then follow them so rapidly that they could not make a stand, and they would then be driven by reserves and scattered.

The plan was approved by all the leading Generals except Hooker, and endorsed by Halleck, who had previously issued orders that the rebels must be attacked.

Gen. Meigs blames the engineers for the non arrival of the pontoons, but Gen. Halleck exonerates them. Gen. Woodbury says the delay was caused by their not being started in time and bad roads. The President and Mr. Stanton are entirely free from blame; the censure falls on military men.

THE HUNTER AND MILKMAID.

BY JOHN G. SALES.

I.
The lark is singing her matin lay,
O come with me, fair maiden, I pray;
Sweet, O sweet is the morning hour,
And sweeter still is your loved bower;
Wreaths of roses 'round twine for thee,
O come, fair maiden, along with me!
Ah! Sir Hunter, my mother is near,
I really must be getting here!

II.
Thy mother, fair maiden, is far away,
And never will listen a word we say;
I'll sing thee a song that ladies love,
In royal castles to please the King;
A wondrous song whose magical charm
Will keep the singer from every harm.
The Sir Hunter—a fig for your song;
Good bye!—for I must be going along!

III.
Well—if slaying will not prevail,
I'll at this, then, a terrible tale;
'Tis all about a Baron so bold,
Huge and stout, ugly and old,
Who saw the ghost of his murdered wife;
A pleasant story, upon my life!
Ah! Sir Hunter, the story is fat;
I know one worth a dozen of that!

IV.
I'd touch thee, then, a curious prayer
Of wondrous power the wolf to scare,
And frighten the witch that hovers night
To blight the young with her evil eye;
O guard, fair maiden, thy beauty well,
A fearful thing is her wicked spell!
O, I can read my mind, you know,
Good bye!—for I must be going!

V.
Nay, tarry a moment, my charming girl;
Here is a jewel of gold and pearl;
A beautiful cross it is, I swear,
As ever on beauty's breast was seen;
There's nothing at all but love to pay;
Take it and wear it, but only stay!
Ah! Sir Hunter, what excellent taste!
I'm not—in such-particular—late!

How Men Act in Battle.

A writer in the Philadelphia Press gives a graphic picture of the conduct of men under fire. It was French's division of Couch's corps from which the description is drawn:

Steadily the brave fellows ascended the range of hills, two ranks deep under a furious fire of artillery, flashing death's terrors under the most fearful form, and gaily they climbed the numerous fences in their way. Men dropped, and broad gaps were made in their ranks but the lines immediately closed, and were compact as before. The wounded silently fell. All bosh about the screams of the wounded that we read in our books. On they went until a blazing line of masonry stormed upon them from the rifle pits hitherto invisible, and induced a halt. Firmly they stood and returned the fire. Up went the swords of field officers wildly cheering them on. Again they advanced. Again they halted. Line officers ran behind the men, picking up cartridge-boxes of the dead, replenishing those of the living. Back and forth they went in the rear of their companies, asking men if their ammunition held out, indicating location where shots might be effective, and encouraging them with the hopeful words:

"Steady, boys, steady; give 'em hell!"
"Smith, are you hurt?" "Yes, sir; my arm's broke." "Go to the rear, my boy."
Another man falls. "Where are you struck, Roberts?" "In the thigh, sir; I can't move." "Lie still and keep cool; they'll take you away soon."
"Dennis, what's the matter with you? Why the d—n don't you fire faster?" "The ball's banged the top of me musket together, sir, and broke the baggenet." "Pitch it away; here's another. Fire faster, Jones. That's right, Robinson! Give 'em! Splendid! boys, splendid! Down with you! there's a new battery opening!" So it goes; encouragement and reproof by turns, in quantities varied by the individual vitality of the officer, interspersed with constant orders to lie down and avoid the fire of batteries.

"D—n this knapsack!" says one; "I can't stand it," and it is jerked off. "This coat's as hot as hell!" says another, and off it goes. Terrible is the work of death! The enemy in rifle pits have an advantage of three to one. They pop their heads up, fire, and down they go to load. "Oh, blast it! captain, we ain't got no chance against them fellows; we ought to have reinforcements." This cry extends along the lines. Colonels, in their visits to the companies, hear it from the line officers; it soon comes to the knowledge of the generals, and, after an hour's fighting, an order to fall back is given, which is obeyed with a steady pace and but little straggling, toward the city.

KINGSTON—Kingston is situated on the line of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad, and on the north bank of the Neuse river, which runs from Goldsborough to Newbern, twenty-two miles from the former, and twenty-seven from the latter place. It is a small village, but of considerable local importance. Goldsborough, for which General Foster's expedition is aiming, is a point much more necessary to be possessed, being situated at the junction of the railroad already named with the North Carolina road, which runs to Raleigh, fifty-one miles farther west, and the Wilmington & Weldon Road, which, running north and south, is one of the great lines of rail way connecting Richmond with the cotton States.

If any persons who are obliged to take offensive medicine would first take a bit of alum into the mouth, they could then take the medicine with as much ease as though it were as much as sugar.

The Prince of Wales now enjoys an income of a million of dollars per annum, which will be largely increased by a Parliamentary grant as soon as he is married.

Sigel, it is said, will prefer charges against Pope. Really, if our officers would only charge the enemy as severely as they do one another, the rebellion wouldn't live an hour.—Frankfort Com.

Proclamation of the Governor.

WHEREAS, The State of Tennessee is now, and has been, without a full representation in the XXXVIII Congress of the United States of America; and whereas it is believed, upon information received, that a large majority of the voters of the Ninth and Tenth Congressional Districts of this State, as apportioned by the Act passed February 20th, 1852, have given evidence of their loyalty and allegiance to the Constitution and laws of the United States,

Now, therefore, I, ANDREW JOHNSON, Military Governor of the State of Tennessee, in order to secure to the loyal electors of these two Congressional Districts their constitutional representation in the House of Representatives of the United States of America, have deemed it proper to issue this my proclamation, appointing and ordering elections to be held on the twenty-ninth day of December, 1862, to fill the vacancies in the XXXVIII Congress of the United States of America in the following Districts, to wit: The Ninth Congressional District, composed of the counties of Henry, Weakly, Dyer, Obion, Lauderdale, Tipton, Gibson, Carroll and Henderson.

The Tenth Congressional District, composed of the counties of Madison, Haywood, Harleman, Fayette, and Shelby.

Writs of election will be issued, and the election held at the places designated by law, and the proceedings under said writs returned to the office of the Secretary of State. The judges appointed to hold said elections, in addition to the oath prescribed by section 844 of the Code of Tennessee, shall further swear that they will permit no person to vote whom they believe to be disloyal to the Government of the United States.

And no person will be considered as an elector qualified to vote, who, in addition to the qualifications now required by law, does not give satisfactory evidence to the judges holding said election of his loyalty to the Government of the United States.

In testimony whereof, I, ANDREW JOHNSON, Governor of the State of Tennessee, and Commander-in-Chief of the forces thereof, have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Department in Nashville, on this 8th day of December, A. D. 1862.

By the Governor:
ANDREW JOHNSON.
EDWARD H. EAST
Secretary of State.

II. No Sutler will be permitted to ship Boots, Shoes, or any articles of clothing in his regiment, unless he first obtain a certificate from the commanding officer of the regiment, stating that such articles and quantities (which must in all cases be specified) are absolutely necessary for the comfort of his men, and also receive a permit from the Colonel, approved by Brigade and Division commanders, for the shipment of such goods to the regiment.
