

THE MISSOURI OUTLAWS.

Governor Crittenden Tells What Has Been Done for the James Gang.

Governor T. T. Crittenden, of Missouri, was interviewed in Cincinnati on Thursday last by a reporter of the Enquirer. The governor said: "You may say all the James gang are either dead, in prison or under the control of the officials, with the exception of Frank James, for whom a reward and conviction there is still a reward of $10,000 offered. The Lewis brothers are in jail awaiting trial, and will certainly be convicted. The Meyers gang are all dead or in the penitentiary; and the Mason gang—the Brookfield bank robbers—were captured, tried, convicted, sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment each, and placed in the penitentiary in less than one week after the robbery of the bank."

The governor said, he wished to impress the reporter with the fact that all these gangs were not Missourians, and wanted the public to know the same. He said that the Mason gang was from Indiana, and was led by Frank Mason, who once taught school near Terre Haute, where he was well known; and that the Meveyers gang was from Illinois. He thought these men had been attracted to the state by the successful raids of the James brothers, and the fact that notwithstanding the amount of travel and traffic over and through the state, they were afforded protection and shelter by its comparatively unoccupied condition.

In answer to the question as to the probable whereabouts of Frank James, Governor Crittenden said that his place of residence if he had any, was unknown, though he admitted having received a telegram some few days ago to the effect that Frank was living in one of the upper counties in this state. He also said that, in his opinion, Frank James was a much better man than Jesse, and stated that he knew of several instances in which he had saved human life at the risk of his own. Members of the gang relate that Frank had many and frequent quarrels with Jesse on account of his reckless disregard for human life, and for a long time he would not forgive Jesse for shooting Express Messenger Westfield in the Winton train robbery, when it had been agreed that no murder should be committed unless absolutely necessary for their safety. It will be remembered that Westfield was shot down by Jesse in cold blood while unresisting in order to show his accomplices what would become of them did they betray him.

The governor said that the mother and wife of Frank James had called upon him in Jefferson City, Missouri, to see whether Frank would be allowed to surrender and be free from the charges against him.

"Indeed, I do," he replied. "I shall never forget it as long as I live."

"Well," he continued, "you behaved so well about it that I thought you a perfect jewel."

"Yes," she answered, "I remember being very well about it at the time, but, good Lord, you should have seen the mark of my teeth on the bed post that night." (Philadelphia Times.)

Opinion of eminent Doctor H. R. Walton, Annapolis, Maryland: "Collier's Liquid Extract of Liebig's Beef and Tonic Invigorator is a most excellent preparation. It is far excellence, superior to cod liver oil or anything I have ever used in wasted or impaired constitutions, and an excellent preventive of malarial diseases." (Remember the name, Collier's—take no other.)

A Mean Husband.

Many of the singularities of the Jewish question in Russia are due to the autonomy in some respects enjoyed by the Jewish communities there. For example, they have their own marriage laws—the marriage laws of the Talmud, that is, and of the ancient Hebrews. In accordance with these laws, divorce is a very easy matter. Husband and wife have but to agree to separate, attend the rabbi, and the thing is done, the ceremony consisting solely in the handing of the "bill of divorce" to the woman. Under these circumstances strange things sometimes occur. A few months ago a young Jewish girl, an orphan, arrived in Odessa, intending, as many young Jewesses do, to obtain a situation as an assistant housekeeper in a Jewish family. While looking for a place, she was recommended to stay with a respectable middle-aged married woman, whose husband—a man very much younger than herself—was away for a few weeks. The middle-aged Jewess soon won herself into the confidence of her guest, and ascertained that the young girl would have a dowry of some 300 rubles whenever she married. Thereupon she formed a bold design. She persuaded the girl to marry instead of going into service, promising to procure a suitable husband—an undertaking not uncommon among Jews. When her own husband returned from his journey, she imparted to him her plan. He was to divorce her, marry the young Jewess, secure her 300 rubles, and then, divorcing the new bride, return to his first spouse. After seeing the promised bride, the husband agreed. The divorce was given; the marriage took place, and then the husband, perfectly content with his new partner, refused to divorce her. Furious at this breach of promise, the divorced wife summoned him before the chief rabbi, Schwabacher. He, however, pronounced the divorce binding and the marriage valid. But as a solatium he decided that the disappointed woman was entitled to a commission of twenty-five rubles, or 3 per cent. of the dowry, for having acted as "schadzchen" or marriage-broker!—187. Every day in this city thousands of persons eat too much at dinner, and, as a consequence, suffer from sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc. If these will take just one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after eating, they will be surprised by the entire absence of those unpleasant feelings which daily distress them, and may continue in their improper course of eating big dinners without fear. Only one little pill, remember; 25 cents. All druggists. For sale by Williams, Tolliver & Walker, druggists.

Nero.

After the burning of Rome, says a writer in the London Quarterly, Nero gratified his taste, in entire disregard of the proprietors, in rebuilding it. He at once appropriated a number of the sites and a large portion of the public grounds for his new palace. The porticos, with their ranks of columns, were a mile long. The vestibule was large enough to contain that colossal statue of him, in silver and gold, 120 feet high, from which the Colosseum got its name. The interior was gilded throughout and adorned with ivory and mother-of-pearl. The ceilings of the dining rooms were formed with movable tablets of ivory which shed flowers and perfumes on the company; the principal salons had a dome which, turning day and night imitated the movements of the celestial bodies. When this palace was finished, he exclaimed, "At last I am lodged like a man." His diadem was valued at half a million. His dresses, which he never wore twice, were stiff with embroidery and gold. He fished with purple lines and hooks of gold. He never travelled with less than a thousand carriages. The mules were shod with silver, the muleteers clothed with the finest wool, and the attendants wore bracelets and necklaces of gold. Five hundred slaves followed his wife, Popaea in her progresses, to supply milk for her bath. He was fond of figuring in the circus as a charioteer and in the theatre as a singer and actor. He prided himself on being an artist; and, when his possible deposition was hinted, he said that artists could never be in want. There was not a vice to which he was not given, nor a crime which

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR.

IT SAVED THE PEOPLE OF SAVANNAH, GA., WHO USED IT THROUGH THE HORRIBLE EPIDEMIC OF 1865.

MESSES J. H. ZEELIN & CO.,

GENTLEMEN.—We, the undersigned, Engineers on the Georgia Central Railroad, in grateful remembrance of the benefits we received from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator during the Yellow Fever Epidemic in Savannah in the summer and fall of 1865, desire to make the following statement. That during the aforesaid Epidemic we used the medicine known as Simmons Liver Regulator or, prepared by J. H. Zeelin & Co., and though exposed to the severe and malignant influences of the Yellow Fever by passing in and out of Savannah at different hours of the night, and also in spending entire nights in the city during the prevalence of this most fatal epidemic, with but the single exception of one of us, who was taken sick, but speedily recovered, a circumstance we can account for in no other way but by the effect under Proofs of the habitual and continued use of Simmons Liver Regulator, while we were exposed to this Yellow Fever epidemic. Respectfully yours, C. H. Patterson, John H. Collins, Jas. L. Mallette, Melton F. Cooper.

Always ask your Druggist for Dr. Simmons Liver Regulator, and be sure to see those identical words printed on the label, and having thereon a Trade Mark, Seal and signature of J. H. Zeelin & Co. None other is genuine.

How She Won Him.

I have just heard the most remarkable story of the evenness of the female temper. It is a beautiful little fairy story, and may appropriately be called "How She Won Him." It happened here in Philadelphia. You know that there was a beautiful dinner given "many years ago," and she sat opposite him and looked ever so charming in white-colored silk with a square neck, and otherwise arrayed as never were the ladies in any valley of this poor earth. Well, the idiot of a waiter in handing the soup, upset the entire contents of the plate in her lap. Just think of it, girls! The whole front breadth utterly ruined, and for the world it could not be matched. Well, what did she do? Did she faint? Did she say you horrid man? Did she scream? Not at all; she passed the thing off in some witty remark about fiery baptism and calmly resumed her dinner. Her, of course, was delighted, thought her the most remarkable woman, and indeed she was, became attentive to her, and finally married her. One evening, long after the event, they were sitting before the fire, the children having gone to bed, and were talking about old times, when he said:

"My dear, I never told you, I think, how I first thought I would like to marry you, did I?"

"Why, gracious goodness, no, never."

"Well," he said, "do you remember that dinner at Mrs. Simkin's, where your dress was spoilt by the soup?"

"Indeed, I do," she replied. "I shall never forget it as long as I live."

"Well," he continued, "you behaved so well about it that I thought you a perfect jewel."

"Yes," she answered, "I remember being very well about it at the time, but, good Lord, you should have seen the mark of my teeth on the bed post that night." (Philadelphia Times.)

O XMAS XMAS, August 16, 1882.—CARTER'S STOMACH COMPOUND.

GENTLEMEN.—Please send me five vials of Carter's Liver Pills by return mail; enclosed please find one dollar.

I take pleasure in recommending your Liver Pills to my neighbors and would say to the people in general that Carter's Little Liver Pills cannot be surpassed for common family use, and I dare say cannot be equaled.

I have been using them for some time, and I find that they are entirely curing me of dyspepsia, and that is more than I can say of any other medicine I have ever used.

Respectfully yours, Jas. H. MARTIN.
